Politicians Show Unusual Interest in King's Visit

Many Wondering Why He Is Coming To U. S. at This Time

MAY TALK POLITICS WITH THE PRESIDENT

Lindsay Says His Visit Is Only Effort To Make Friends

By ANDREW BERDING

Washington, June 5 (AP)—The visit of King George VI to the United States this week will be subjected to microscopic scrutiny by numerous politicians trying to figure out its political purposes and effects.

Scarcely a person in the government or diplomatic corps but has his hand on himself—and others—the question:

Why is the King coming here and what does he expect to get out of it?

The British ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, told a press conference recently that there was only one political purpose behind the visit—to improve the friendly relations existing between the two countries.

Politicians Interested

But the fact that the first visit of a reigning British monarch to the United States is made at one of the most critical periods in the history of the British empire cannot but stir the thoughts of international politicians. His majesty arrives in Washington as his ministers frantically gird up Britain's loins in his case and hastily seek allies for a possible show-down with the Rome-Berlin axis.

He comes at a moment, too, when the United States itself is engaged in the greatest peacetime armaments program in its history. He comes at the instant Congress is considering a change in effect would enable Britain to get arms and munitions in the United States in return for war.

It is scarcely to be supposed that King George will not have occasion to talk politics.

Pope Renews His Efforts To Keep Peace in Europe

Holds Conference with British Minister to the Holy See

Vatican City, June 5 (AP)—Informed Vatican sources said tonight Pope Pius XII had renewed his efforts to promote peaceful solution of Europe's controversies.

The Pope conferred with the British minister to the Holy See, Francis D'Arcy Godolphin Osborne, and Vatican sources said he had dispatched separate messages to London, Paris, Berlin, Rome and Warsaw in which he sought to initiate a definite way out of problems perplexing European States.

Facts Kept Secret

While the subject of his conversation with the British envoy was kept secret, it generally was assumed that it dealt with the Pontiff's peace moves.

Prime Minister Chamberlain, questioned in the House of Commons whether the Vatican had made representations against a British-French mutual assistance agreement with Soviet Russia, answered, "I am not aware of any."

A news service which generally makes available reports of Vatican activities announced it was "certain that conversations" (between the Vatican and European governments) were continuing.

Pope Optimistic

This source said that in these contacts the Holy See was expressing the "hope and comforting faith" which Pope Pius has derived from the "good intentions of which he has thus far received assurance and which he trusts will become ever more firm and more effective."

The Pope said June 2 he had "no longer any fear of imminent war in Europe a month ago, but that the passing of time since then had given him greater hope of reaching a stable peace."

Il Popolo D'Italia of Milan, Premier Mussolini's newspaper, said the Pope's reference in his message to the cardinals June 2 to "influential Statesmen" from whom he had received reassurances regarding their intentions undoubtedly meant Mussolini and Reichsfuehrer Hitler.

House Refuses To Consider Changes In Wage-Hour Act

Declines to Even Consider Proposed Series of Amendments

Washington, June 2 (AP)—Upsetting administration plans, the House refused today even to consider a series of wage-hour amendments under procedure which called for a strict limitation of debate.

The action came on a teller vote of 110 to 167 against a routine parliamentary move which would have led to 40 minutes of debate and then a direct vote on the revisions themselves.

The amendments were designed, among other things, to redefine farm exemptions under the law, and it was on this point that most objections were heard.

Five farm organizations had expressed dissatisfaction with the proposed changes, contending they would rather have the law as now written. A month ago the House Labor Committee approved a set of changes, then Chairman Norton (D-NJ) withdrew the entire bill because of farm opposition. Only last Thursday the committee rewrote them again and had expected little opposition this time.

The farm organizations, however, renewed their objections. Vexed by the House's action, Mrs. Norton said that so far as she was concerned there would be no further attempt to bring up the amendments.

And she criticized, too, the farm organizations—the America Farm Bureau Federation, the National Grange, the National Cooperative Milk Producers Federation, the National Cooperative Council, and the Agricultural Producers Labor Committee.

"The farmers are the dupes of these organizations," she told newspapermen. "And I can't say it in too strong language. They don't know what these people are trying to do to them."

Mrs. Norton had sought consideration of the committee bill under a procedure which would force the House to accept or reject it as it stood, without making any changes. She said that if the wage-hour law were thrown open to general amendment "a certain group" of House members would "do everything they can to emasculate the act."

CIO Given Right To Meet Despite Jersey Ordinance

Supreme Court Decides Against Mayor of Jersey City

BACKS INJUNCTIONS AGAINST THE CITY

Court Also Rules in Favor of Fixing Milk Prices in Two Cities

(By The Associated Press)

The Supreme Court in decisions yesterday (Monday): Invalidated a Jersey City ordinance under which Mayor Frank Hague's city government denied the CIO permission to hold meetings in public places.

Held valid an agriculture department order fixing milk prices in two major eastern markets.

Ruled that the proposed child labor amendment still was subject to ratification, since a state could ratify it after once rejecting it.

Washington, June 5 (AP)—Wind-up of a busy term, the Supreme Court today struck down a Jersey City ordinance which prevented CIO mass meetings, upheld the administration's milk marketing controls, held declared the unratified child labor amendment is still alive, although 15 years have passed since Congress submitted it to the states.

In its 5 to 2 decision in the Hague-CIO case, the tribunal sustained injunctions against Mayor Hague and other city officials issued by the federal district court for New Jersey and the Federal Circuit Court at Philadelphia.

Roberts Writes Decision

Writing the majority opinion on the ordinance, under which a permit was required to hold meetings in streets and parks, Justice Roberts declared it violated the constitutional right of free assembly. He said that CIO members were "free to hold meetings without a permit and without regard to the terms of the void ordinance."

He added: "Wherever the title of streets and parks may rest, they have immemorially been held in trust for the use of the public and, time out of mind, have been used for the purposes of assembly, communicating thoughts between citizens, and discussing public questions."

"Such use of the streets and public places has, from ancient times, been a part of the privileges, immunities, rights and liberties of citizens."

Justice Stone said in a concurring opinion the "real issue" was whether the CIO had a right to sue for protection under the due process clause.

"It is enough," he said, "that petitioners have prevented respondents from holding meetings and disseminating information for the organizations of labor unions or for any other lawful purpose."

Lee Pressman Pleased

Lee Pressman, CIO counsel, described the decision as "a notable victory" which would "lend new encouragement to labor everywhere by giving assurance that the workers have definite legal recourse to check the tyrannies by which he (Mayor Hague) and other petty Hitlerians have attempted to destroy the civil rights of American workers."

At Jersey City a spokesman for Hague said the city administration would follow "implicitly" the court's ruling.

Washington, June 5 (AP)—Use of part of the profits from gold devaluation as "a cushion" for a liberal new system of loans to small business was urged on Congress today by Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

The former Utah banker and leader among the administration's "spending-lending" school told a Senate banking subcommittee his proposals would help fill a "gap" in our financial mechanism that retards small and medium-sized business and industry.

About the same time undersecretary John W. Hanes of the treasury urged a house committee to press ahead with a revision of business taxes in the interests of business recovery.

Hanes, one-time Wall Street broker, supported earlier recommendations of Secretary Morgenthau for tax revision to remove "tax irritants" and so-called business "deterrents."

While congressional committees wrestled with the complicated problems of business recovery, Senate and House leaders informed President Roosevelt at their weekly White House conference that they were uncertain as to when Congress could wind up its legislative tasks and adjourn.

The chief executive has been delaying fixing a date for a trip to the Pacific coast pending adjournment plans.

Senator Barkley (D-Ky.), one of the congressional leaders at the White House, said no date for adjournment was agreed upon, that the president had not fixed his departure time, and that there was no decision on neutrality legislation, possible snag to any adjournment plans.

Not Competing With Banks

Eccles told senators his proposed new system for loans to small business "in no way involves competition with banks or private business or calls for a budgetary outlay."

He explained that the treasury had a book profit of about $2,800,000,000 resulting from reduction of the gold content of the dollar. Congress, he added, authorized use of $139,000,000 of this profit when it set up the government insurance for bank depositors.

Of this, he said, only $27,000,000 had been used. He proposed that the remaining $112,000,000 be utilized to set up a separate corporation for business loans.

This corporation could be established within the framework of the federal reserve system, Eccles said, or operated under "any other agency Congress wishes."

Two Types Of Loans

Eccles said this corporation would make two types of loans: First, long-term loans up to $1,000,000 that might extend for 10 years or longer; second, short-term loans.

Squalus Report Commends Rescue Force and Crew

Heroism and Efficiency Aided in Saving 33 Men, Cole Asserts

Three Given Particular Mention for Bravery in Dangerous Situation

Washington, June 5 (AP)—A blend of heroism, calm efficiency and sterling performance of new lifesaving equipment accounted for the rescue of 33 men from the submarine Squalus, Rear Admiral Cyrus W. Cole informed the navy department today.

Admiral Cole, commander of the Portsmouth navy yard and officer in charge of the rescue, reported to Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations. His 20-page report described the life saving operation in unemotional language, but nevertheless three heroes stood out in clear relief in the account.

They were:

Three Outstanding Heroes
Martin C. Sibitzky, United States navy, Padgett, N. J.
William Badders, chief machinist mate, Annapolis.
John Mihalowski, New London, Conn., diver.

Sibitzky was the first diver to go down to the Squalus, lying nearly 250 feet deep off Portsmouth.

Admiral Cole said of Sibitzky: "The extremely skillful work of this first diver resulted in marked expedition of the whole rescue operation and contributed greatly to its ultimate success."

Badders and Mihalowski descended in the rescue chamber, after the survivors had been taken off, and opened the torpedo room hatch to see if the room were flooded. Water poured into the rescue chamber, proving the torpedo room was filled with water, and they refastened the hatch.

Were Aware of Danger

"These men," said Admiral Cole, "were fully aware of the great danger involved. If they became incapacitated there was no way in which they could be rescued, as the chamber could not be entered from the outside. Considering all factors, it is felt that these men accepted the greatest personal risk of any during the entire rescue operations and performed their duties in accordance with the highest traditions of the service."

Admiral Cole paid high tribute to the efficacy of the rescue chamber, developed largely by the navy.

The report revealed that only one strand of the rescue chamber's cable remained after the cable fouled during the fourth and last trip to the surface with survivors. The chamber was lowered back to the bottom and its buoyancy adjusted. Then the chamber was pulled to the surface by hand with the remaining strand of the cable.

Others Are Cited

In addition to the three men already mentioned, Admiral Cole cited Lieutenant Warren D. Wilkin, commanding officer of the Sculpin, sister ship of the Squalus; David L. Ullman, boatswain of the Portsmouth navy yard; the coast guard; Commander Allan R. McCann and Lieutenant Commander C. B. Momen; Captain William F. Amsden and his aide, Lieutenant Commander John J. Curley of the Portsmouth navy yard.

As to the conduct of the men aboard the Squalus, Cole commented: "The appearance and bearing of all the Squalus officers and men as they stepped out of the rescue chamber indicated a high state of discipline and morale under most trying conditions."

Chamberlain Says Sinking of Thetis Will Be Probed

Prime Minister Addresses Parliament on Submarine Tragedy

London, June 5 (AP)—Promising a "full public inquiry" into the sinking of the submarine Thetis, Prime Minister Chamberlain rose personally in the House of Commons today to give the puzzled British public an official account of the disaster.

He presented what he described as a full account of the accident "so far as the facts are yet known," and said that "so far as can be ascertained" the sinking of the Thetis last Thursday with loss of 99 of 103 men aboard "was caused by flooding of the two forward compartments through one of the bow torpedo tubes."

"The rear door of one of these tubes," he said, "came open or was thrown open through reasons which cannot be fully explained."

In the face of criticism of the fact that the 103 men aboard the Thetis were approximately double the craft's normal complement, Chamberlain asserted the presence of builders' representatives and others "normally carried" in such accepting trials "in no way contributed to the sinking of the submarine."

The prime minister said the signaling apparatus of the Thetis was destroyed by the impact with which the craft hit the bottom, and he declared that exceptionally strong spring tides made it "impossible to undertake diving operations" except in slack water.

He disclosed also that the submarine was lost for about four hours Friday night, when those aboard presumably had about six hours' supply of air left, after a pontoon wire broke the marker buoy.

Duchess Not Injured and Is Not Told of Plot To Shoot Her Until Long after Man Is Arrested

London, May 5 (AP)—An attempt was made on the life of Marjorie, Duchess of Kent, tonight as she left her house in exclusive Belgrave Square for the movies.

A man was arrested by police officers after a shot was fired as the duchess—wife of the young prince's brother of King George—got into her car.

He was overpowered after a brief struggle and later a sawed-off shotgun was picked up near the house.

Duchess Not Injured

The duchess was not injured. Neither was Lady Portarlington, who was accompanying her. Policemen, waiting to direct the royal car to the theatre, made a dash toward the man standing nearby as the shot was fired, and quickly subdued him.

He was rushed to a police station for examination. The shotgun was taken to the police station and examined. Officers said it contained but one cartridge.

The duchess and Lady Portarlington were said to have been unaware of the incident and to have proceeded to the movie where they saw "Wuthering Heights."

After seeing the film they were told of the incident.

Washington Ready To Welcome King And Queen to City

Elaborate Precautions Taken for Protection of Royal Couple

Washington, June 5 (AP)—Growing more excited with each passing minute, Washington bustled today with last-minute preparations to gape, gasp and exclaim over their majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

Up and down Pennsylvania avenue, bits of bunting began appearing, hinting only at the gay decorations which will adorn the route on Thursday, when the British monarchs parade in state from Union station to the White House.

With minute care, secret service, police and army and navy officials studied and restudied their elaborate plans for protecting the royal visitors against over-enthusiastic well-wishers and any one of less kindly intent as well.

Sell Many Window Seats

Shop-keepers along the avenue, already doing a depression-breaking business in the sale of seats at upper windows, anxiously tried to find space for more spectators at $1 to $5 each. They did so under the eyes of the secret service, its agents demanding exact lists of just who would be seated at each window.

At Demmon's, caterers to the capital's diplomatic set, preparations were made for receiving 25,000 luscious, perfectly-ripe Virginia strawberries, to be served with gallons of cream at the British embassy's garden party in honor of the king and queen.

Policemen will be out in force wherever their majesties go. Their numbers, in fact, will be reinforced by the addition of 425 firemen, who have special orders, as to pressing their uniforms, shining their shoes and rubbing their insignia to a brilliant polish.

Heavy Guard of Troops

Plans are that as the royal couple motor slowly from the station to the White House they will pass between two unbroken files of soldiers, sailors and marines. Steel cables along the curbing will restrain the spectators jamming the sidewalks.

In a cleared space between the service men and the sidewalks will be the police, committing the lease majesty of facing the crowds and presenting their backs to the royal procession.

907 Refugee German Jews Get Permission To Land in Cuba

Havana, June 5 (AP)—The wandering liner St. Louis today was granted conditional permission to land its 907 refugee German Jews on Cuba's Isle of Pines for a temporary stay.

President Federico Laredo Bru, granting the qualified permission, gave Jewish aid organizations until tomorrow noon to accept the conditions.

Laredo Bru said the refugees might land if they agreed to live in a concentration camp which would be established on the Isle of Pines and if guarantees were given that their stay would be temporary.

The president said that under the Evian conference agreement Cuba had had a "moral duty" to accept the landing of 3,000 German Jewish refugees. He added, however, that since the agreement, more than 7,000 had landed, so the obligation was ended.

In offering conditional permission for the St. Louis refugees to land, Laredo Bru spoke of his "sorrow for the painful situation of hundreds of persons, many of them old men, women or children, who have been ejected from their motherland."

He stipulated that the offer applied only to those on board the St. Louis and that there must be guarantees they would not become public charges and the expenses of their upkeep and re-shipment would be paid.

Meanwhile, appeals by Prof. Albert Einstein and Stephen S. Wise that the refugees be permitted to land in Panama were rejected by the president of Panama, Dr. Juan Demostenes Arosemena.

House Investigators Hear 5,000 AFL Workers Get Jobs under WPA

Washington, June 5 (AP)—House investigators received testimony today that the WPA in New York City had given work to at least 5,000 mechanics of the American Federation of Labor who were not on relief rolls.

H. Ralph Burton, an attorney sent to New York by the House committee looking into the relief agency, came before the investigating group with two assistants and as many filing cabinets crammed with affidavits and other documents.

Before he slammed shut the metal filing cases and placed them under lock and key for the night, he had produced from them statements that:

Sean Russell In Custody as King and Queen Near Windsor

Detroit, June 5 (AP)—Federal agents tonight took into custody Sean Russell, a reputed leader of the outlawed Irish Republican army, and were reported holding him incommunicado. King George VI and Queen Elizabeth are due in Windsor, Ont., across the Detroit river, tomorrow.

The Free Press said a man accompanying Russell was identified as Joseph McGarrity of Philadelphia, who it said was known as an I.R.A. leader in the United States. He was not held, however.

The two men were accosted by government men as they were about to enter a taxicab in front of the Michigan Central railway station.

Russell was said to have been touring the United States making speeches. The I.R.A., a major figure in Ireland's fight for independence, is outlawed in Ireland and has been suspected in connection with the recent bombings in England.

Viscount Halifax May Visit Russia To Speed Alliance

Foreign Secretary Likely To Be Sent in Place Of Chamberlain

London, June 5 (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain rejected today a suggestion, that he try to speed British-Soviet Russian negotiations by a visit to Moscow but authoritative sources said Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax might go.

A decision was not likely until the cabinet considers the latest Soviet note Wednesday.

Chamberlain told the House of Commons he did not believe his visiting Moscow at this time would serve a useful purpose in British-French efforts to bring Soviet Russia within their mutual assistance framework.

He refused to make a statement on the negotiations until the cabinet gives the Soviet note further study.

The French and British were understood to be working together to find a formula on guarantees to Baltic states which would satisfy Russia and also meet the approval of Finland, Latvia and Estonia.

Sources close to the government indicated little or no progress had been made on this point, which they described as the chief obstacle now in the way of bringing Russia into the British-French front.

It was Laborite David Adams who asked Chamberlain whether "in view of his (the prime minister's) public declaration before the Munich conversations, that it was of great benefit for the heads of states to confer personally, he had considered or will consider the desirability of making an official visit to Moscow."

Chamberlain replied to Adams: "The declaration in question was of course subject to considerations and the condition of the time. In the present circumstance I do not consider that the suggestion made by Mr. Adams would serve a useful purpose."

Eccles Proposes New System for Business Loans

Would Use Part of Profits from Gold Devaluation as "Cushion"

Says Proposal in No Way Involves Competition with Banks

Washington, June 5 (AP)—Use of part of the profits from gold devaluation as a "cushion" for a liberal new system of loans to small business was urged on Congress today by Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

The former Utah banker and leader among the administration's "spending-lending" school told a Senate banking subcommittee his proposals would help fill a "gap" in our financial mechanism that retards small and medium-sized business and industry.

About the same time undersecretary John W. Hanes of the treasury urged a house committee to press ahead with a revision of business taxes in the interests of business recovery.

Hanes Backs Morgenthau

Hanes, one-time Wall Street broker, supported earlier recommendations of Secretary Morgenthau for tax revision to remove "tax irritants" and so-called business "detractors."

While congressional committees wrestled with the complicated problems of business recovery, Senate and House leaders informed President Roosevelt at their weekly White House conference that they were uncertain as to when Congress could wind up its legislative tasks and adjourn.

The chief executive has been delaying fixing a date for a trip to the Pacific coast pending adjournment plans.

Senator Barkley (D-Ky.), one of the congressional leaders at the White House, said no date for adjournment was agreed upon, that the president had not fixed his departure time, and that there was no decision on neutrality legislation, possible snag to any adjournment plans.

Not Competing With Banks
Eccles told senators his proposed new system for loans to small business "in no way involves competition with banks or private business or calls for a budgetary outlay."

He explained that the treasury had a book profit of about $2,800,000 resulting from reduction of the gold content of the dollar. Congress, he added, authorized use of $139,000,000 of this profit when it set up the government insurance for bank depositors.

Of this, he said, only $27,000,000 had been used. He proposed that the remaining $112,000,000 be utilized to set up a separate corporation for business loans.

This corporation could be established within the framework of the federal reserve system, Eccles said, or operated under "any other agency Congress wishes."

Two Types of Loans

Eccles said this corporation would make two types of loans: First, long-term loans up to $1,000,000 that might extend for 10 years or longer; second, short-term loans.

He said the corporation would be financed by the sale of government bonds, and that the government would guarantee the loans.

Other speakers include Attorney General William C. Walsh, Col. Beverly Ober, new state police commander; Sgt. Marlin D. Brubaker, director of the state accident prevention bureau; State Attorney Charles Wagoner of Washington county; Guy Hottel, of the federal bureau of investigation, and Dean S. S. Steinberg of the University of Maryland college of engineering.

Mayor Richard Sweeney of Hagerstown will make a welcoming address at the association luncheon.

Squalus Report Commends Rescue Force and Crew

Three Given Particular Mention for Bravery in Dangerous Situation

Washington, June 5 (AP)—A blend of heroism, calm efficiency and sterling performance accounted for the rescue of 33 men from the submarine Squalus, Rear Admiral Cyrus W. Cole informed the navy department today.

Admiral Cole, commander of the Portsmouth navy yard and officer in charge of the rescue, reported to Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations. His 20-page report described the life saving operation in unemotional language, but nevertheless three heroes stood out in clear relief in the account.

Three Outstanding Heroes

Martin C. Sibitzky, United States navy, Pedricktown, N. J.

William Badders, chief machinist mate, Annapolis.

John Mihalowski, New London, Conn., diver.

Sibitzky was the first diver to go down to the Squalus, lying nearly 250 feet deep off Portsmouth.

Admiral Cole said of Sibitzky: "The extremely skillful work of this first diver resulted in marked expedition of the whole rescue operation and contributed greatly to its ultimate success."

Badders and Mihalowski descended in the rescue chamber, after the survivors had been taken off, and opened the torpedo room hatch to see if the room was flooded. Water poured into the rescue chamber, proving the torpedo room was filled with water, and they refastened the hatch.

Were Aware of Danger
"These men," said Admiral Cole, "were fully aware of the great danger involved. If they became incapacitated there was no way in which they could be rescued, as the chamber could not be entered from the outside. Considering all factors, it is felt that these men accepted the greatest personal risk of any during the entire rescue operations and performed their duties in accordance with the highest traditions of the service."

Admiral Cole paid high tribute to the efficacy of the rescue chamber, developed largely by the navy.

The report revealed that only one strand of the rescue chamber's cable remained after the cable fouled during the fourth and last trip to the surface with survivors. The chamber was lowered back to the bottom and its buoyancy adjusted. Then the chamber was pulled to the surface by hand with the remaining strand of the cable.

Others Are Cited

In addition to the three men already mentioned, Admiral Cole cited Lieutenant Warren D. Wilkin, commanding officer of the Sculpin, sister ship of the Squalus; David L. Ullman, boatswain of the Portsmouth navy yard; the coast guard; Commander Allan R. McCann and Lieutenant Commander C. B. Momen; Captain William F. Amesen and his aide, Lieutenant Commander John J. Curley of the Portsmouth navy yard.

As to the conduct of the men aboard the Squalus, Cole commented: "The appearance and bearing of all the Squalus officers and men as they stepped out of the rescue chamber indicated a high state of discipline and morale under most trying conditions."

House Investigators Hear 5,000 AFL Workers Get Jobs under WPA

Washington, June 5 (AP)—House investigators received testimony today that the WPA in New York City had given work to at least 5,000 mechanics of the American Federation of Labor who were not on relief rolls.

H. Ralph Burton, an attorney sent to New York by the House committee looking into the relief agency, came before the investigating group with two assistants and as many filing cabinets crammed with affidavits and other documents.

Before he slammed shut the metal filing cases and placed them under lock and key for the night, he had produced from them statements that:

Chamberlain Says Sinking of Thetis Will Be Probed

Prime Minister Addresses Parliament on Submarine Tragedy

London, June 5 (AP)—Promising a "full public inquiry" into the sinking of the submarine Thetis, Prime Minister Chamberlain rose personally in the House of Commons today to give the puzzled British public an official account of the disaster.

He presented what he described as a full account of the accident "so far as the facts are yet known," and said that "so far as can be ascertained" the sinking of the Thetis last Thursday with loss of 99 of 103 men aboard "was caused by flooding of the two forward compartments through one of the bow torpedo tubes."

"The rear door of one of these tubes," he said, "came open or was thrown open through reasons which cannot be fully explained."

In the face of criticism of the fact that the 103 men aboard the Thetis were approximately double the craft's normal complement, Chamberlain asserted the presence of builders' representatives and others "normally carried" in such accepting trials "in no way contributed to the sinking of the submarine."

The prime minister said the signalling apparatus of the Thetis was destroyed by the impact with which the craft hit the bottom, and he declared that exceptionally strong spring tides made it "impossible to undertake diving operations" except in slack water.

He disclosed also that the submarine was lost for about four hours Friday night, when those aboard presumably had about six hours' supply of air left, after a pontoon wire broke the marker buoy.

Cutting Stern Too Risky
An attempt to cut a hole in the exposed tail of the Thetis "would have involved a risk of flooding which was quite unjustifiable," he told the commons. Geoffrey Shakespeare, under-secretary of the admiralty, had been scheduled to discuss the Thetis tragedy before the house. He merely announced, however, that Chamberlain himself would appear to answer the questions of a stirred parliament "owing to the magnitude of the Thetis question."

Man Opens Fire as She Leaves Her Home To Attend Movies in London Theatre

Duchess Not Injured and Is Not Told of Plot To Shoot Her Until Long after Man Is Arrested

London, May 5 (AP)—An attempt was made on the life of Marjorie, Duchess of Kent, tonight as she left her house in exclusive Belgrave Square for the movies.

A man was arrested by police officers after a shot was fired as the duchess—wife of the young prince's brother of King George—got into her car.

He was overpowered after a brief struggle and later a sawed-off shotgun was picked up near the house.

Dutchess Not Injured

The duchess was not injured. Neither was Lady Portlinton, who was accompanying her.

Police, waiting to direct the royal car to the theatre, made a dash toward the man standing nearby as the shot was fired, and quickly subdued him.

He was rushed to a police station for examination.

The shotgun was taken to the police station and examined. Officers said it contained but one cartridge.

The duchess and Lady Portlinton were said to have been unaware of the incident and to have proceeded to the movie where they saw "Wuthering Heights."

After seeing the film they were told of the incident.

Washington Ready To Welcome King And Queen to City

Elaborate Precautions Taken for Protection of Royal Couple

Washington, June 5 (AP)—Growing more excited with each passing minute, Washington bustled today with last-minute preparations to gaze, gasp and exclaim over their majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

Up and down Pennsylvania avenue, hints of bustling began appearing, hinting only at the gay decorations which will adorn the route on Thursday, when the British monarchs parade in state from Union station to the White House.

With minute care, secret service, police and army and navy officials studied and restudied their elaborate plans for protecting the royal visitors against over-enthusiastic well-wishers and any one of less kindly intent as well.

Sell Many Window Seats
Shop-keepers along the avenue, already doing a depression-breaking business in the sale of seats at upper windows, anxiously tried to find space for more spectators at $1 to $5 each. They did so under the eyes of the secret service, its agents demanding exact lists of just who would be seated at each window.

At Demone's, caterers to the capital's diplomatic set, preparations were made for receiving 25,000 luscious, perfectly-ripe Virginia strawberries, to be served with gallons of cream at the British embassy's garden party in honor of the king and queen.

Police will be out in force wherever their majesties go. Their numbers, in fact, will be reinforced by the addition of 425 firemen, who have special orders, as to pressing their uniforms, shining their shoes and rubbing their insignia to a brilliant polish.

Heavy Guard of Troops
Plans are that as the royal couple motor slowly from the station to the White House they will pass between two unbroken files of soldiers, sailors and marines. Steel cables along the curbing will restrain the spectators jamming the sidewalks. In a cleared space between the service men and the sidewalks will be the police, committing the less majestic of facing the crowds and presenting their backs to the royal procession.

Fayette County Officials Named In Graft Inquiry

Grand Jury Asserts Racketeers Have Paid for Protection

Uniontown, Pa., June 5 (AP)—Fayette county's "Blue Ribbon" investigating committee reported today to three county judges it had uncovered evidence of collusion among racketeers, lawyers and county officials, including District Attorney James A. Reilly.

Its report, covering 1,100 pages of testimony taken as an agency of the court over a seven-month period, made no recommendations but expressed the opinion racketeers have "paid for protection while mulcting thousands of dollars" from citizens.

Named with Reilly as being involved in the testimony concerning "protection" of "numbers" lottery operators were Attorneys John J. Duggan, Jr., and Alex Goldstein, County Detective John C. Wall and Constables Tony Roberts and Charles Zack.

Three Lawyers Named

Attorneys Charles C. Carter, Elias Goodstein and Duggan were named as being involved in other cases reported.

The committee, appointed in 1938 by the court to aid in a "racket cleanup" drive, had as members two former judges, Thomas H. Hudson and E. H. Reppert, and Attorneys J. B. Adams, Jr., Brown Higbee and Bowman McDonald.

Tonight, Reilly said he would issue a statement on the report after he had time to study it carefully. He said that might take a "day or two." Others named did not comment immediately.

The report said the committee found William G. (Big Bill) Lias, of Wheeling, W. Va., had paid "as a bribe" $5,000 for the "numbers" lottery "concession" in the county, about the time Reilly and others were being tried for the "third degree" murder of Hotelman Frank C. Monaghan.

The committee said the money had gone to Duggan and Goldstein, defense counsel for Reilly, adding: "The setting forth in an agreement that the $5,000 was a loan is, in the opinion of the committee, a mere subterfuge and is evidence of the criminality which existed in the transaction."

The committee believes from its investigation that an almost unbelievable sum is collected each year from the people of Fayette county by persons engaged in the "numbers" and other rackets.

The report stated Goldstein had denied receiving the money. Steve Samonas was to "take over" the "numbers" business for Lias, the report found, stating that witnesses testified Detective Wall and Constable Roberts had told one George Bettlers they were acting for Reilly and that he was to turn over his "numbers business to Samonas or to get out of business."

"Tony Roberts corroborated that testimony given by Bettlers," said the report.

Constable Zack was accused of attempting to get a witness not to appear against Samonas.

Samonas pleaded guilty to a charge of operating a "numbers lottery" several months ago and was sentenced on April 6 to 60 days in jail and fined $1,500.

Two days before Samonas was sentenced the "Blue Ribbon" committee in a report to Judge W. Russell Carr recommended he and three others be prosecuted further. This recommendation was given to the district attorney.

The committee said it found Samonas had deposited $84,762.42 in the Second National Bank, Uniontown, between December 12, 1938, and April 8, 1939.

Attorneys Carter and Goodstein were named in the report in connection with testimony stating they had received money from clients for which they had not properly accounted. One of the cases named involved $300 collected by Duggan, part of which was reported to have been paid to Goodstein.

Andersen (R-Minn.) led the opposition to the procedure. Afterward, Cox said the House's action did not mean that efforts to improve the statute were over.

"It does mean, however, that members of the House have reclaimed the right to legislate for themselves and upon their own responsibility," he said in a statement.

The farm amendments, recently rewritten by the labor committee, would have exempted the preparation, but not processing, of fresh fruits and vegetables in the "general recognized production section" from both the wage and hour standards of the statute. They also would have exempted small canners of the same commodities.

Other changes would have permitted employment without overtime pay up to 60 hours a week for 14 weeks in a year in 16 specified agricultural operations and would have exempted cotton ginning.

Other amendments would have exempted from the law white collar workers whose monthly salary is more than $200, and workers in small telephone exchanges. Another would have permitted interstate industries in the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico to pay less than the legal minimum wage in certain instances.

Walsh Says State Conservation Law Is Up To Voters

Declares Referendum Must Be Held on Dual Agencies

Baltimore, June 5 (AP)—The attorney general's office ruled today that a referendum must be held on the new state conservation law, establishing dual agencies to control commercial fishing and sportsmen's interests.

The ruling, handed to Secretary of State Francis Petre by Attorney General William C. Walsh, held that the new law, passed by the last legislature, does not impose new taxes and therefore is subject to a referendum.

The Maryland Citizens' Conservation Committee already has filed a referendum petition containing more than 11,000 names. Walsh ruled the petition "in proper legal form" thus virtually assuring a statewide test on the law in November, 1940.

In the meantime, the present conservation law will be in effect.

Last February, Governor Herbert R. O'Connor named Edwin Warfield of Howard county; William H. Labrot of Anne Arundel county and Robert Harrison of Talbot county conservation commissioners under the old law. The new law then was scheduled to become operative June 1.

All three appointees are Democrats, and a section of the old law requires one member to be a representative of the minority party.

Under the new law, Chesapeake Bay fisheries would be controlled by one agency and upland game and sports interests by another.

The measure, sponsored by the governor, was one of the most hotly-contested issues of the legislative session.

John Barrymore Returns to Stage

Chicago, June 5 (AP)—Throwing aside the role of a sick man, John Barrymore returned to the stage tonight after almost a week in bed and gave a lively performance.

The noted actor, whose heart condition forced suspension of the play, "My Dear Children" at the Selwyn theater last Tuesday, resumed the leading role as an eccentric father full of pep and mischief.

Associates said they noted an improvement in the vigor of his performance. Barrymore had been under an oxygen tent at times during the rest ordered by physicians.

Ethel Barrymore, who came here several days ago, saw the show for the first time and later joined her brother back stage.

The papers stated James V. Cookerly, one of the incorporators, would be resident agent of the club, which would have headquarters at 2 Laing avenue, Cumberland. William L. Wilson was the third incorporator.

Prince Paul and Hitler Part after Long Conferences

Berlin, June 5 (AP)—Yugoslavia's Regent, Prince Paul, quit Berlin after a five-day state visit tonight with a lingering hand-clasp from Reichsfuehrer Hitler whose government declared the two countries now were determined to deepen their political, economic and cultural relations.

The news service, Dienst Aus Deutschland, which has excellent sources of information from the foreign office, said Yugoslavia now could be counted in the front against Communism.

Prince Paul and Princess Olga departed from the Lehrter railway station in the midst of a half-holiday declared to give them a hearty send off.

Hitler accompanied them to the station. The Yugoslav visitors were bound for Dresden for a program of sightseeing tomorrow. They were scheduled to go to Eberswalde tomorrow night to be the guests of Field Marshal and Mrs. Hermann Wilhelm Goering at Karinhall, the Goering summer home.

Before leaving Berlin Prince Paul had an unscheduled talk with Hitler which lasted several hours.

A communique issued after Prince Paul's departure placed special emphasis on the relations between Yugoslavia and Germany, which it said were most hearty, and on their intimate political cooperation with Italy.

Decide Milk Cases

In two sweeping decisions, the court declared that the regulation of milk marketing in the New York and Boston areas through the fixing of minimum prices and the pooling of returns was constitutional. Similar marketing controls are in operation in 28 other areas.

The regulation was established under the marketing agreements act of 1937, designed to stabilize the milk industry. Rejecting two attacks on this act's validity, the majority opinion read by Justice Reed declared that "the authority of the federal government over interstate commerce does not differ in extent or in character from that retained by the states over interstate commerce."

The power enjoyed by the states to regulate the prices of handling and selling commodities within their internal commerce rests with the Congress in the commerce between the states.

By a five to four decision the high court reversed a federal district court ruling invalidating the New York marketing order promulgated last September 1 and by a six to three ruling it sustained another federal court decision upholding the constitutionality of the Boston order.

Chief Justice Hughes and Justices McReynolds, Roberts and Butler dissented from the New York opinion but only McReynolds, Roberts and Butler dissented in the Boston case.

Latvia, Estonia and Germany To Sign Peace Pacts

Non-Aggression Agreement To Be Concluded in Berlin Tomorrow

Berlin, June 5 (AP)—The foreign ministers of Latvia and Estonia are expected in Berlin Wednesday to sign non-aggression pacts with Germany.

It was reported unofficially here today that Foreign Minister William Munters of Latvia was starting for Berlin tomorrow night and that Foreign Minister Karl Selter of Estonia would come by airplane Wednesday to sign agreements with German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop.

The projected treaties were regarded here as an indirect consequence of President Roosevelt's April 15 suggestion that Chancellor Hitler specifically give assurances that Germany would not infringe on the integrity of 31 named states.

Hitler's reaction was to offer non-aggression pacts to Norway, Sweden, Finland, Latvia, Estonia and Denmark. Denmark accepted and treaty has been signed. Norway, Sweden and Finland reported that they regarded non-aggression assurances as unnecessary.

In addition a treaty embodying non-aggression clauses was signed with Lithuania, another Baltic state, soon after Germany's annexation of Memel on April 22.

Latvian and Estonian agreements have been under discussion for several weeks.

The status of the two Baltic states is reported to be under consideration in London where the British government is studying its next move in negotiations with Soviet Russia for a tri-power mutual assistance pact. Russia's reply to British proposals demanded that the Baltic states be included in the arrangement so they could be given assistance in event their independence was threatened by an attack.

Duchess Is Popular

The 32-year-old duchess is considered probably the most popular foreign princess in Britain since Alexandra, the wife of Edward VII. She is the youngest daughter of Prince Nicholas of Greece, and a sister of Princess Olga, wife of the regent of Yugoslavia who left Berlin today after a state visit to Chancellor Hitler.

The Duke of York, fourth son of the late King George VI, and the duchess are to leave England next October for Australia where the Duke will be governor general of the dominion.

The duchess has two children, Prince Edward, born in October, 1935, and Princess Alexandra, born on Christmas day, 1936.

Since her marriage to the duke November 26, 1934, Marina has steadily become a favorite with the British people due to her striking beauty and position as a leader of fashion.

During the abdication crisis when Edward VIII left the throne, the duke and duchess were reported to have been sympathetic with the now Duke of Windsor.

Arthur P. Hoffa Is Barton Mayor In Upset Vote

'Write-ins' Elect Him over John A. Keyes, Regular Candidate

An upset featured yesterday's municipal election at Barton, Md., where 94 voters wrote in Arthur P. Hoffa's name on the official ballot to elect him mayor.

Hoffa, former mayor of Barton, was not on the official ticket but ran away with the election as the regular candidate, John A. Keyes, received only 45 votes.

Two commissioners elected were Maurice B. Lamberton, who collected 125 votes, and William J. Chapell, 74. James Russell Kiddy with 42 votes was next high in the three-way commissioner race.

The newly-elected mayor and commissioners will serve two-year terms with Patrick Gallagher and R. S. Wilson, holdover councilmen, having one more year to serve.

Although 310 were qualified to vote in yesterday's election, only 162 cast ballots between the hours of 5 and 8 p. m. Judges at yesterday's election were Frank E. Williams and Giffen McCormack. Election clerks were Albert Frenzel and Phillip Lashbaugh.

Chamberlain Says Sinking of Thetis Will Be Probed

sent a 1,300-word prepared statement and then answered numerous questions.

The loss of life, greatest in the history of undersea craft, had aroused the country's press to make strong demands for a thorough investigation.

The promised "full public inquiry" in addition to the "usual naval investigation" will be a departure from the tradition of keeping navy affairs private. It is to be held "as soon as the submarine has been salvaged."

Raising the Thetis is expected to take from five to ten days.

Shortly before Chamberlain spoke R. S. Johnson, managing director of Cammell Laird, Ltd., builders of the submarine, stated that it had not yet been determined whether a damaged torpedo tube or failure to shut the forward door had caused the tube to be flooded. He said no one was drowned when the two forward compartments were flooded.

Grim Fight To Survive

He told of a grim fight for survival fought by those aboard. Water overpowered the crew, he said, when they opened the after door thinking there was no water in the tube.

"They were forced to retreat through the next water-tight door and to try to shut the door, but water again overpowered them," he said.

After the first two men escaped by the Davis lung, four others made fatal attempts. Three died and were taken into the submarine from the escape hatch, and the fourth was stricken gravely and died later.

Johnson said it was not known whether those who died in attempts to come up had heart failure or drowned.

Johnson said the obstacles against rescue operations were "terrible" and he asserted that the admiralty did everything possible to save lives.

As Chamberlain discussed the tragedy before parliament the admiralty announced plans for memorial services for the victims to be held Wednesday over the wreck, with 150 relatives attending aboard the minesweeper Hebe. Services also are planned for the same day in dockyard churches at Portsmouth, Devonport and Chatham and in the Central Square at Birkenhead.

Dempsey Acquitted Of Socking Negro

New York, June 5 (AP)—"Listen," Jack Dempsey told a jury today, "if I had socked this little guy he wouldn't be here to tell this story."

"And if I have to pay him $3,000, I feel I should be entitled to one punch at him."

The jury thereupon returned a verdict denying the claims of Charles McFarland, 135-pound negro bootblack, who said that while helping the ex-champion on with his coat in a barber shop, he couldn't resist the temptation to tickle Dempsey's ribs and that Dempsey socked him with a right.

The blow, which Dempsey dismissed as a mere nudge of the elbow—"all in good fun"—caused stomach injuries, the negro testified, and a negro doctor supported his claim.

King and Queen Explore Nickel Mine in Canada

Go Down 2,000 Feet To See Miners at Sudbury

Sudbury, Ont., June 5 (AP)—Down 2,800 feet below the earth's surface, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth today explored the workings of the world's largest nickel mine.

The royal visitors arrived late in the day originally to spend an hour but extended their stay to two hours in order to descend into the shaft of the International Nickel Company's mine.

After a four-mile ride from Sudbury Junction into Sudbury the King and Queen motored two and one-half miles to the mine, in the heart of this mining district which produces 90 per cent of the world's nickel supply.

In safety helmets and mining clothes, the king and queen descended to the spick and span exhibition working level.

King Wears Overalls

The queen and her ladies-in-waiting wore light raincoats, rubbers and gloves. The King and the men of the party wore overalls.

Mine regulations required each member of the party to wear the safety helmets and the King wore in his one of the regular battery lamps used by miners. The queen carried a flashlight.

They entered one of the 60-passenger cages and at a bell signal the hoistman dropped them through solid rock at a speed of 1,500 feet a minute.

Few workmen were in evidence because the 2,500 miners were on a holiday to see the royal procession. A skeleton crew summoned hastily was at work and the royal party climbed into a special car which a battery locomotive drew along the main cross-cut to the ore body.

At cross-cut No. 22 they left the mine car, walked to the face of the ore body and for several minutes watched two miners operate roaring drills into the gleaming surface which yields 11 different metals.

Visit With Miners

Later the King and Queen talked to the miners. After the return trip to the surface they inspected giant compressors which supply air to the pneumatic drills far underground.

The royal train reached here after a 24-hour run through the lake-dotted northwest sector of Ontario. Here they found 100,000 men and women gathered from all corners of the mining country.

Prospectors and miners, trappers and fishermen cheered them. They were people of Anglo-Saxon descent, Finns, Ukrainians, Italians, Poles and Serbians who dropped their toil for the day to see the King and Queen.

The fertile fields of Western Ontario lay ahead of the royal visitors as they completed their visit here and headed toward the Niagara Peninsula.

Two of the busiest days of their tour lay ahead of them before they enter the United States at Niagara Falls Wednesday night for a four-day visit.

Eleven official welcomes were on their program. At no other time in the tour have they been called upon to see so many cities and so many people in so little time.

ond, loans form $500 to $25,000 which might extend for 10 years and which would be fully insured under certain conditions.

"These would meet in a liberal and practical way the credit needs of small business," the fast-talking banking authority said, after telling senators that banks should not be criticized for refusing to take risks involved in loans to small business.

Eccles asserted that $25,000,000 capital should be used to create a "revolving fund that would supply $250,000,000 credit" for the smaller loans.

This, he added, would operate as a pool for loans made by banks so that all losses would be covered, providing the losses of any one bank were not more than 10 per cent of its total of loans of this type.

In opening his testimony, Eccles said his proposals would be supplementary to a bill by Senator Mead (D-NY) which calls for insurance of 90 per cent of loans by banks to small business.

Under questioning by senators, Eccles said this insurance proposal "would be very disappointing" because banks would not care to advance funds if they had to bear the first 10 per cent of any losses.

Eccles also warned senators that no "lending device" would provide "the primary motive power to full recovery."

Whether senators accepted his loan proposal or not, Eccles asked repeal of existing powers of the federal reserve to make business loans.

"They do not meet the situation," he said.

At present the reserve system loans are limited to five years. They may be for "working capital" of an established business.

Fayette County Officials Named In Graft Inquiry

Grand Jury Asserts Racketeers Have Paid for Protection

Uniontown, Pa., June 5 (AP)—Fayette county's "Blue Ribbon" investigating committee reported today to three county judges it had uncovered evidence of collusion among racketeers, lawyers and county officials, including District Attorney James A. Reilly.

Its report, covering 1,100 pages of testimony taken as an agency of the court over a seven-month period, made no recommendations but expressed the opinion racketeers have "paid for protection while mulcting thousands of dollars" from citizens.

Named with Reilly as being involved in the testimony concerning "protection" of "numbers" lottery operators were Attorneys John J. Duggan, Jr., and Alex Goldstein, County Detective John C. Wall and Constables Tony Roberts and Charles Zack.

Three Lawyers Named

Attorneys Charles C. Carter, Elias Goodstein and Duggan were named as being involved in other cases reported.

The committee, appointed in 1938 by the court to aid in a "racket cleanup" drive, had as members two former judges, Thomas H. Hudson and E. H. Reppert, and Attorneys J. B. Adams, Jr., Brown Higbee and Bowman McDonald.

Tonight, Reilly said he would issue a statement on the report after he had time to study it carefully. He said that might take a "day or two." Others named did not comment immediately.

The report said the committee found William G. (Big Bill) Lias, of Wheeling, W. Va., had paid "as a bribe" $5,000 for the "numbers" lottery "concession" in the county, about the time Reilly and others were being tried for the "third degree" murder of Hotelman Frank C. Monaghan.

The committee said the money had gone to Duggan and Goldstein, defense counsel for Reilly, adding: "The setting forth in an agreement that the $5,000 was a loan is in the opinion of the committee, a mere subterfuge and is evidence of the criminality which existed in the transaction."

Large Sum Collected

The committee believes from its investigation that an almost unbelievable sum is collected each year from the people of Fayette county by persons engaged in the "numbers" and other rackets.

The report stated Goldstein had denied receiving the money. Steve Samonas was to "take over" the "numbers" business for Lias, the report found, stating that witnesses testified Detective Wall and Constable Roberts had told one George Bettors they were acting for Reilly and that he was to turn over his "numbers business" to Samonas or to get out of business.

"Tony Roberts corroborated that testimony given by Bettors," said the report. Constable Zack was accused of attempting to get a witness not to appear against Samonas.

Samonas pleaded guilty to a charge of operating a "numbers lottery" several months ago and was sentenced on April 6 to 60 days in jail and fined $1,500.

Two days before Samonas was sentenced the "Blue Ribbon" committee in a report to Judge W. Russell Cary recommended he and three others be prosecuted further. This recommendation was given to the district attorney.

The committee said it found Samonas had deposited $84,762.42 in the Second National Bank, Uniontown, between December 12, 1938, and April 8, 1939.

Attorneys Carter and Goodstein were named in the report in connection with testimony stating they had received money from clients for which they had not properly accounted. One of the cases named involved $300 collected by Duggan, part of which was reported to have been paid to Goodstein.

House Refuses To Consider Changes In Wage-Hour Act

Andersen (R-Minn.) led the opposition to the procedure. Afterward, Cox said the House's action did not mean that efforts to improve the statute were over.

"It does mean, however, that members of the House have reclaimed the right to legislate for themselves and upon their own responsibility," he said in a statement.

The farm amendments, recently rewritten by the labor committee, would have exempted the preparation, but not processing, of fresh fruits and vegetables in the "general recognized production section" from both the wage and hour standards of the statute. "They also would have exempted small canners of the same commodities.

WHERE 650 GIRL SCOUTS CHEATED DEATH

Here is a general view of the wreckage which resulted when an express train, carrying 650 girl scouts back to their homes in eastern Pennsylvania from a New York World's Fair visit, crashed into the rear end of a freight train at Lake Hopatcong, N. J. Two cars on each train burst into flames. The blaze was extinguished by firemen from nearby towns. All the girls escaped injury but two trainmen were hurt. Most of the scouts continued their trip by bus.

Walsh Says State Conservation Law Is Up To Voters

Declares Referendum Must Be Held on Dual Agencies

Baltimore, June 5 (AP)—The attorney general's office ruled today that a referendum must be held on the new state conservation law, establishing dual agencies to control commercial fishing and sportsmen's interests.

The ruling, handed to Secretary of State Francis Petto by Attorney General William C. Walsh, held that the new law, passed by the last legislature, does not impose new taxes and therefore is subject to a referendum.

The Maryland Citizens' Conservation Committee already has filed a referendum petition containing more than 11,000 names. Walsh ruled the petition "in proper legal form" thus virtually assuring a statewide test on the law in November, 1940.

In the meantime, the present conservation law will be in effect. Last February, Governor Herbert R. O'Connor named Edwin Warfield of Howard county; William H. LaBroet of Anne Arundel county and Robert Harrison of Talbot county conservation commissioners under the old law. The new law then was scheduled to become operative June 1.

All three appointees are Democrats, and a section of the old law requires one member to be a representative of the minority party.

Under the new law, Chesapeake Bay fisheries would be controlled by one agency and upland game and sports interests by another.

The measure, sponsored by the governor, was one of the most hotly-contested issues of the legislative session.

What judgment international statesmen may reach as to the results of the visit can only be guessed, but some quarters here think it may:

- 1—Improve the already friendly relations between the two countries.
- 2—Improve the already friendly relations between the two countries.
- 3—Increase American sympathies for Great Britain at a moment when England is striving to circumvent Adolf Hitler's expansion.
- 4—Dispose Congress toward a new neutrality act.
- 5—Form a Washington-Ottawa-London moral axis.

The papers stated James V. Cookery, one of the incorporators, would be resident agent of the club, which would have headquarters at 2 Laing avenue, Cumberland. William L. Wilson was the third incorporator.

Prince Paul and Hitler Part after Long Conferences

Berlin, June 5 (AP)—Yugoslavia's Regent, Prince Paul, quit Berlin after a five-day state visit tonight with a lingering hand-clasp from Reichsfuehrer Hitler whose government declared the two countries now were determined to deepen their political, economic and cultural relations.

The news service, Dienst Aus Deutschland, which has excellent sources of information from the foreign office, said Yugoslavia now could be counted in the front against Communism.

Prince Paul and Princess Olga departed from the Lehrter railway station in the midst of a half-holiday declared to give them a hearty send off.

Hitler accompanied them to the station. The Yugoslav visitors were bound for Dresden for a program of sightseeing tomorrow. They were scheduled to go to Eberswalde tomorrow night to be the guests of Field Marshal and Mrs. Hermann Wilhelm Goering at Karinhall, the Goering summer home.

Before leaving Berlin Prince Paul had an unscheduled talk with Hitler which lasted several hours.

A communique issued after Prince Paul's departure placed special emphasis on the relations between Yugoslavia and Germany, which it said were most hearty, and on their intimate political cooperation with Italy.

Decide Milk Cases

In two sweeping decisions, the court declared that the regulation of milk marketing in the New York and Boston areas through the fixing of minimum prices and the pooling of returns was constitutional. Similar marketing controls are in operation in 28 other areas.

The regulation was established under the marketing agreements act of 1937, designed to stabilize the milk industry. Rejecting two attacks on this act's validity, the majority opinion read by Justice Reed declared that "the authority of the federal government over interstate commerce does not differ in extent or in character from that retained by the states over interstate commerce, x x x. The power enjoyed by the states to regulate the prices of handling and selling commodities within their internal commerce rests with the Congress in the commerce between the states."

By a five to four decision the high court reversed a federal district court ruling invalidating the New York marketing order promulgated last September 1 and by a six to three ruling it sustained another federal court decision upholding the constitutionality of the Boston order.

Latvia, Estonia and Germany To Sign Peace Pacts

Non-Aggression Agreement To Be Concluded in Berlin Tomorrow

Berlin, June 5 (AP)—The foreign ministers of Latvia and Estonia are expected in Berlin Wednesday to sign non-aggression pacts with Germany.

It was reported unofficially here today that Foreign Minister William Munters of Latvia was starting for Berlin tomorrow night and that Foreign Minister Karl Selter of Estonia would come by airplane Wednesday to sign agreements with German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop.

The projected treaties were regarded here as an indirect consequence of President Roosevelt's April 15 suggestion that Chancellor Hitler specifically give assurances that Germany would not infringe on the integrity of 31 named states.

Hitler's reaction was to offer non-aggression pacts to Norway, Sweden, Finland, Latvia, Estonia and Denmark. Denmark accepted and treaty has been signed. Norway, Sweden and Finland reported that they regarded non-aggression assurances as unnecessary.

In addition a treaty embodying non-aggression clauses was signed with Lithuania, another Baltic state, soon after Germany's annexation of Memel on April 22.

Latvian and Estonian agreements have been under discussion for several weeks.

The status of the two Baltic states is reported to be under consideration in London where the British government is studying its next move in negotiations with Soviet Russia for a tri-power mutual assistance pact. Russia's reply to British proposals demanded that the Baltic states be included in the arrangement so they could be given assistance in event their independence was threatened by an attack.

She is the youngest daughter of Prince Nicholas of Greece, and a sister of Princess Olga, wife of the regent of Yugoslavia who left Berlin today after a state visit to Chancellor Hitler.

The Duke of York, fourth son of the late King George VI, and the duchess are to leave England next October for Australia where the Duke will be governor general of the dominion.

The duchess has two children, Prince Edward, born in October, 1935, and Princess Alexandra, born on Christmas day, 1936.

Since her marriage to the duke November 26, 1934, Marina has speedily become a favorite with the British people due to her striking beauty and position as a leader of fashion.

Arthur P. Hoffa Is Barton Mayor In Upset Vote

'Write-ins' Elect Him over John A. Keyes, Regular Candidate

An upset featured yesterday's municipal election at Barton, Md., where 94 voters wrote in Arthur P. Hoffa's name on the official ballot to elect him mayor.

Hoffa, former mayor of Barton, was not on the official ticket but ran away with the election as the regular candidate, John A. Keyes, received only 45 votes.

Two commissioners elected were Maurice B. Lamberton, who collected 125 votes, and William J. Chapell, 74. James Russell Kidd with 42 votes was next high in the three-way commissioner race.

The newly-elected mayor and commissioners will serve two-year terms with Patrick Gallagher and R. S. Wilson, holdover councilmen, having one more year to serve.

Although 310 were qualified to vote in yesterday's election, only 162 cast ballots between the hours of 5 and 8 p. m. Judges at yesterday's election were Frank E. Williams and Giffen McCormack. Election clerks were Albert Frenzel and Phillip Lashbaugh.

Chamberlain Says Sinking of Thetis Will Be Probed

mented a 1,300-word prepared statement and then answered numerous questions.

The loss of life, greatest in the history of undersea craft, had aroused the country's press to make strong demands for a thorough investigation.

The promised "full public inquiry" in addition to the "usual naval investigation" will be a departure from the tradition of keeping navy affairs private. It is to be held "as soon as the submarine has been salvaged."

Raising the Thetis is expected to take from five to ten days. Shortly before Chamberlain spoke R. S. Johnson, managing director of Cammell Laird, Ltd., builders of the submarine, stated that it had not yet been determined whether a damaged torpedo tube or failure to shut the forward door had caused the tube to be flooded. He said no one was drowned when the two forward compartments were flooded.

Grim Fight To Survive

He told of a grim fight for survival fought by those aboard. Water overpowered the crew, he said, when they opened the after door thinking there was no water in the tube. "They were forced to retreat through the next water-tight door and to try to shut the door, but water again overpowered them," he said.

After the first two men escaped by the Davis lung, four others made fatal attempts. Three died and were taken into the submarine from the escape hatch, and the fourth was stricken gravely and died later. Later the second two men escaped, but no one was able to follow.

Johnson said it was not known whether those who died in attempts to come up had heart failure or drowned.

Johnson said the obstacles against rescue operations were "terrible" and he asserted that the admiralty did everything possible to save lives. As Chamberlain discussed the tragedy before parliament the admiralty announced plans for memorial services for the victims to be held Wednesday over the wreck, with 150 relatives attending aboard the minesweeper Hebe. Services also are planned for the same day in dockyard churches at Portsmouth, Devonport and Chatham and in the Central Square at Birkenhead.

Dempsey Acquitted Of Socking Negro

New York, June 5 (AP)—"Listen," Jack Dempsey told a jury today, "If I had socked this little guy he wouldn't be here to tell this story."

"And if I have to pay him $3,000 I feel I should be entitled to one punch at him."

The jury thereupon returned a verdict denying the claims of Charles McFarland, 135-pound negro bootblack, who said that while helping the ex-champion on with his coat in a barber shop, he couldn't resist the temptation to tickle Dempsey's ribs and that Dempsey socked him with a right.

The blow, which Dempsey dismissed as a mere nudge of the elbow—"all in good fun"—caused stomach injuries, the negro testified, and a negro doctor supported his claim.

King and Queen Explore Nickel Mine in Canada

Go Down 2,000 Feet To See Miners at Sudbury

King Wears Overalls and Queen Carries Own Flashlight

Sudbury, Ont., June 5 (AP)—Down 2,800 feet below the earth's surface, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth today explored the workings of the world's largest nickel mine.

The royal visitors arrived late in the day originally to spend an hour but extended their stay to two hours in order to descend into the shaft of the International Nickel Company's mine.

After a four-mile ride from Sudbury Junction into Sudbury the King and Queen motored two and one-half miles to the mine, in the heart of this mining district which produces 90 per cent of the world's nickel supply.

In safety helmets and mining clothes, the king and queen descended to the spick and span exhibition working level.

King Wears Overalls

The queen and her ladies-in-waiting wore light raincoats, rubbers and gloves. The King and the men of the party wore overalls.

Mine regulations required each member of the party to wear the safety helmets and the King wore in his one of the regular battery lamps used by miners. The queen carried a flashlight.

They entered one of the 60-passenger cages and at a bell signal the hoistman dropped them through solid rock at a speed of 1,500 feet a minute.

Few workmen were in evidence because the 2,500 miners were on a holiday to see the royal procession. A skeleton crew summoned hastily was at work and the royal party climbed into a special car which a battery locomotive drew along the main cross-cut to the ore body.

My! My! How Annoying Parents Can Be!

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Some high school students were asked to write, without signing their names, about some ways in which they felt they were annoyed at times by their parents.

One of them made this statement:

"As a rule, I do not like to be questioned after having a date or going to a party. I usually tell all about it in time and I resent being questioned by my parents. They usually, Dad especially, want to know everything. I guess this is because I have a bad disposition though."

If we parents were in the place of this 15-year-old girl, we probably should feel as she does, regardless of our dispositions. I have a notion that this is one of the most serious offenses by well-meaning parents, and that it does more in some homes to break down parent-child companionship and to build up a wall between the child and parent than any other practice. Eager as we might be to know what our child did in her absence, we cannot afford to put her on the witness stand and cross-question her. The more we try to play detective, the farther away from us we drive the child.

Other Views

Here are some other statements on the subject:

"Every time I leave the house a million questions follow." (A number of answers of that sort.)

"My mother goes out an awful lot, and I think this country would be better if there wasn't such a game as bridge."

"Too many family secrets are not revealed."

"Mother thinks that boys and girls under 20 do not know how to drive a car, therefore has a tendency to be a back seat driver."

"Mother does not like cats and I desire to have one because I am very fond of them."

"Our family has just bought a new radio. Of course, it is continuously going night and day. I am anxious to become an accomplished pianist, but whenever I choose to practice for an hour, a loud protest is heard. Of course, it is up to me to obey."

Maybe some of my adolescent readers would like to write me of some of the vexations they think they have to endure from their parents. In case these seem to be of wide interest, I shall publish those sent in, without revealing name and address. An occasional sufferer might, in this way, be able to correct some such "innocent" practice by the parent. I also should like to print some statements by children about the ways their parents make them happy.

By burning 25% slower than the average of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands tested—slower than any of them—CAMELS give smokers the equivalent of
5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK!

HERE is today's big news for smokers who want the most for their money in smoking pleasure at its best. Read the convincing comparisons made between cigarettes by a group of prominent scientists. In a leading laboratory, 16 of the largest-selling cigarette brands were tested impartially with these results:

- 1 Camels were found to contain MORE TOBACCO BY WEIGHT than the average for the 15 other of the largest-selling brands.
- 2 CAMELS BURNED SLOWER THAN ANY OTHER BRAND TESTED—25% SLOWER THAN THE AVERAGE TIME OF THE 15 OTHER OF THE LARGEST-SELLING BRANDS! By burning 25% slower, on the average, Camels give smokers the equivalent of 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK!

- 3 In the same tests, CAMELS HELD THEIR ASH FAR LONGER than the average time for all the other brands.

Right now is an ideal time to switch to Camels—AT THE START OF THE SUMMER SEASON, when you're apt to be smoking more. Camel certainly is the cigarette for steady smoking. You'll appreciate its COOLNESS, its COST-LIER TOBACCOS that cost so little per smoke! See how much longer you can enjoy a slow-burning Camel. Note the striking difference in Camel's milder, more delicate taste and fragrance. Try Camels now—America's luxury smoke that every smoker can afford!

My! My! How Annoying Parents Can Be!

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Some high school students were asked to write, without signing their names, about some ways in which they felt they were annoyed at times by their parents.

One of them made this statement:

"As a rule, I do not like to be questioned after having a date or going to a party. I usually tell all about it in time and I resent being questioned by my parents. They usually, Dad especially, want to know everything. I guess this is because I have a bad disposition though."

If we parents were in the place of this 15-year-old girl, we probably should feel as she does, regardless of our dispositions. I have a notion that this is one of the most serious offenses by well-meaning parents.

and that it does more in some homes to break down parent-child companionship and to build up a wall between the child and parent than any other practice. Eager as we might be to know what our child did in her absence, we cannot afford to put her on the witness stand and cross-question her. The more we try to play detective, the farther away from us we drive the child.

Other Views

Here are some other statements on the subject:

"Every time I leave the house a million questions follow."

(A number of answers of that sort.)

"My mother goes out an awful lot, and I think this country would be better if there wasn't such a game as bridge."

"Too many family secrets are not revealed."

"Mother thinks that boys and girls under 20 do not know how to drive a car, therefore has a tendency to be a back seat driver."

"Mother does not like cats and I desire to have one because I am very fond of them."

"Our family has just bought a new radio. Of course, it is continuously going night and day. I am anxious to become an accomplished pianist, but whenever I choose to practice for an hour, a loud protest is heard. Of course, it is up to me to obey."

Maybe some of my adolescent readers would like to write me of some of the vexations they think they have to endure from their parents. In case these seem to be of wide interest, I shall publish those sent in, without revealing name and address. An occasional sufferer might, in this way, be able to correct some such "innocent" practice by the parent. I also should like to print some statements by children about the ways their parents make them happy.

The Townsend Bill Defeat

OPINION seems to be general that the Townsend old-age pension plan is done for as a result of the latest emphatic thumbing down it received in the national House of Representatives.

But, there is much criticism over the method by which the adverse vote was registered. It was brought out with gag rule attached which would have prevented any amendments from the floor designed to eliminate its more objectionable features. It was used by the House Democrats to put on the spot those Republicans from districts where the Townsend clubs have been the most active. This strategy pre-supposed a solid Democratic vote against it. But it didn't work, as forty Democrats voted for it.

As politics goes, the defeat was legitimate enough, but the fact remains that Democratic leadership resorted to a cheap and mean method of killing it by deliberately stacking the cards against it.

The death of the plan is not accepted by some observers. The New York Herald Tribune, for example, says the answer to that will not be available until the next elections.

"While some, of course, of those who voted for the Townsend plan sincerely believed in it, and others equally sincerely felt that the proportion of their constituents favoring it was so great that they were bound, as representatives of the voters to support the plan," it says, "others voted for it because they feared the threatened revenge of the Townsends if they opposed the bill."

As for the latter it may be said that if a representative does not have the courage to vote his convictions, but yields it to group pressure, he does not have any business being in Congress.

"In the next election," the Herald Tribune continues, "the Townsends will know whom to punish. If any substantial number of the members of Congress who opposed the plan are beaten, and it can be made clear that they were beaten because of the votes of Townsends, then the plan may be expected to crop up perennially in Congress. But if, as there is reason to believe, friends and enemies of the plan alike over-estimated the number of its supporters, then it is more than likely that the plan will cease to be a serious political factor."

The plan has a beautiful sound and it looks attractive, but it seems to be one of those boot-strap ideas that, however good looking, just won't work out. The reason for its latest defeat has been summarized by Representative Charles Eaton, of Cincinnati. "The pyramiding taxes which this bill would levy," he said, "are not merely unequal, unfair and unsound, but are bound to jeopardize our entire financial structure and drive every branch of industry closer to bankruptcy and ruin." The unsound and burdensome taxes we already have have just about done that as it is.

Mystery

THE LATEST MYSTERY THRILLER seems to have been provided by the Cumberland city council in suddenly reversing the attitude long entertained at City hall about an airport and turning thumbs down on it.

The reason for the sudden action seems to be the kernel of a mystery for the Scotland Yards to tackle. Surveys and other preparations for an airport have been encouraged in the past. When even much more costly airport plans were under consideration, the city fathers seemed to be in favor of it.

Now, when quite by accident a much less costly and more suitable project has been evolved, the council goes haywire on it. The latest plan would involve WPA labor, which some seem to think advisable, but there seems to be much opposition to it among the councilmen.

Perhaps the increasing opposition to the New Deal squander has played a part in this development, and can be chiefly blamed. There is no countenancing the fact that this opposition is spreading pretty much like wildfire all over the country.

Unicameral Legislatures

ALTHOUGH states have been slow to follow Nebraska in adoption of one-house legislatures, nine bills proposing unicameral organization gained place on 1939 legislative calendars, according to a report submitted to the Council of State Governments by Prof. Alvin W. Johnson, Pacific Union College.

The report shows that three of the nine proposals were introduced in the Washington legislature, which adjourned without passing any of them. Unicameral bills were defeated in the legislatures of Maryland, Kansas and Michigan, which also have adjourned. They are pending in Ohio, California and New Jersey.

The 1939 bills showed several definite trends, according to the report. Most of them proposed higher pay for legislators "in order that persons might devote a reasonable amount of their time to law-making without too much financial sacrifice." One of Washington's measures, for example, allowed $400 a month plus expenses. California's proposal provides a salary of $2,500 a year.

Four of the measures proposed two-year terms for legislators and four set four-year terms. Most state legislative terms are two years for representatives and four for senators. The Ohio unicameral proposal provides for two classifications. One group, known as senators, would be elected from congressional districts in the state and would serve four years. The other group, known as representatives, would be elected from the state's eighty assembly districts and hold office for two years. Both groups would meet as one body.

In size, some of the proposals followed the Nebraska law in specifying a minimum and maximum number of members, leaving the exact number to be determined by the legislature. The number in California, however, is specified as eighty in the bill. In New Jersey, it would be not more than sixty.

Two of the bills proposed non-partisan legislatures. Annual sessions were proposed in Ohio and Washington.

The report noted that last year, when only nine legislatures met in regular session, four proposals for single-house bodies were introduced and two were made to New York's constitutional convention. From 1935 to 1937 over half the states considered one or more measures designed to institute the one-house system. Unicameralism made its debut in 1912, when measures were introduced in Ohio and Oregon proposing a single legislative chamber. Nebraska provided for its one-house legislature in 1934.

Pudding Proof

NEW DEALERS frequently try to excuse their failure to restore prosperity by talking of "world-wide deficits and depression." It would be well for them if they looked a little more carefully at the recent financial history of England. The United Kingdom had 45,000,000 inhabitants, to our 130,000,000, which on a population basis should give us three times their national income. In 1929 our national income was four times theirs. In 1932, at the bottom of the depression, it was two and two-fifths times that of England.

Now, the United Kingdom did not attempt to spend itself out of hard times. From 1932 to 1938 the English budget showed a surplus of about $400,000,000. During the same years the United States budget showed a deficit of about $29,400,000,000. What have been the comparative results in restoring prosperity in these two countries?

From the low point of the depression in 1932 to the beginning of 1938 the national income of the United Kingdom had increased 101 percent. During the same years the national income of the United States increased only forty-nine percent. In England since 1932 national tax receipts have increased eleven percent. In this country the increase has been 193 percent.

Isn't it about time for the New Dealers to learn that like charity, economy begins at home?

Welcome Trend

THOSE familiar with conditions agree that the long awaited activity of the building industry has begun. And most significant is the statement that conditions again favor the building of small homes.

Real estate prices are advancing, and money is becoming available to finance small building projects on reasonable terms. Tending to promote this movement also, is the fact that owners of houses are finding it possible to boost rents.

The difference in the cost of living in a multi-family building and in a one-family house is militating in favor of home ownership. This is a definite sign of a return of desirable conditions. The home owner is the firm defender of safe institutions, of good government and observance of law and order.

If President Roosevelt succeeds in establishing peace in Europe he might see what he can do for the Democratic party.

America will need all its old pioneering spirit, as well as arithmetic, if posterity is to find a pass through the mountains of debt.

What type of program will feature television? asks a radio mag editorial. That's easy—bathing beauty contests, you dope.

Maybe in 1940 Farley will bring out the point that the country should not change mules in the middle of the toboggan.

But if Junior is so smart and wonderful, why suspect him of dumbness just because you don't like the girl?

The man at the next desk says his plans for a spring vacation have been nipped in the bud.

Our Nudist Colony

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I used to belong to a nudist colony, myself. Our toes were all stubbed, our knees were lacerated, our backs were red and blistered, we had freckles all over our faces, we were scrawny and noisy and the farmers in the neighborhood were known to complain about our presence—but as I remember our nudist colony it was a great success.

It met every sunny day in summer on the banks of a little California river, right where the Salpiedes creek flowed into Pairaio, near a rock where a turtle was always sunning himself until we came along. . . . We had fun. . . . It was a mile out of town by a dusty road, and sometimes we'd catch a ride all the way on the water wagon or we walked along squishing our toes in the newly watered road. We had to go through a farmer's orchard to get there and the farmer had a couple of fierce dogs who made the day even hotter for us if they caught us. . . . But we usually succeeded in filling our shirts with apples as we went through.

Last one in the water was a nigger baby—and unless you hid your clothes the last one out always found that somebody had chewed beef on him and if you think it isn't possible to tie a small boy's shirt into what is practically a Gordian Knot then you never had anybody chew beef on your clothes. We climbed into trees and dived in like frogs. We tried to see who could swim the farthest under water. We got way up the creek and knocked two big rocks together under water—and that hurts the other fellow's ears something awful. . . . But most of the time I guess we just lay on the sandy-silly bank and ate apples and threw the cores in the creek and watched them float away and smoked wormwood cigars or cubels or maybe real cigars—I was a sissy and wouldn't smoke those—and boasted!

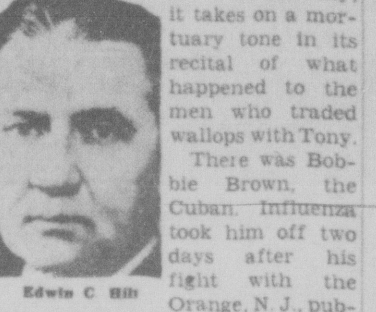

Boasted about everything! About where we'd been and what we'd done and how long we could stay under water and how tough we were and what we were going to do when we got out of school. . . . We didn't have any fancy ideas about freedom and the joy of going without clothes and being "free of the intolerable restrictions of civilization." . . . But, except for the absence of girls, it seems to me it was just as much a "nudist colony" as any of those I read about in the papers.

Or maybe we were just naked small-town kids swimming in a creek in the summer time. . . . I won't argue about it.

The Human Side Of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

If Joe Louis is superstitious, it will be perhaps just as well if he never reads this new book, "Galento the Great," by Joseph P. Donovan. While it is an eloquent encomium for Two-ton Tony, it takes on a mortuary tone in its recital of what happened to the men who traded wallops with Tony. There was Bobbie Brown, the Cuban, who took him off two days after his fight with the fight with the Orange, N. J., publisher. Al Friedman lived only two months after his fight, as did Phil Mercurio. Ernie Schaefer was killed in his fight with Primo Carnera, soon after fighting Galento. On the night Max Schmeling defeated Joe Louis, a Tom O'Rourke, old-time manager of fighters, died in Tony Galento's dressing room, with Tony fighting Al Gainer in a preliminary bout.

Students of the combat du boxe can, and doubtless will, offer satisfactory explanations of this high mortality rate in Tony's vicinage. None of the knowing railbirds thinks there is anything particularly deadly about him, although his round-house swing is quite as errant and sometimes almost as disastrous as a train wreck. However, fight crowds seem to nurse legends and to cherish them more than the most shrewdly and coldly calculated expert fight dope.

If by any chance the rhomboidal Tony should dump Joe Louis, the fact that he has more hair on his chest than he has on his head, will be noted to fan him into some kind of abysmal brute, and the deaths in his neighborhood will become pertinent thereto.

Must Have A Behemoth

The crowds must have a belting Behemoth ever so often. I remember an incident pertaining thereto at Reno, in 1910, when the Jeffries-Johnson hostilities were impending. Jack London had been getting away with a great deal of expensive lingo about the "abysmal brutes." The fans lapped it up because, no matter how you slick up prizefighting, with grammatical contenders like Gene Tunney and Lou Nova, we like nothing better than a dash of the cave-man stuff in our ring gladiators—Dempsey, for example.

London stirred the other reporters to competitive jungle chatter, but they didn't have a chance. They could never hope to match the master in low, savage snarls and the throb of the jungle drums. This so embittered a hard-bitten veteran sports writer of the then flourishing Chicago Inter-Ocean that he went into training in his room, with two flagons of red-eye, for a word-fight with London, under no rules whatsoever.

"I'll show up that imitation tough guy and all his dude words," he told his mates. That evening, in the bar, punch-drunk from beaming himself with big words, he showed the boys his night story, ready for filing. He had been interviewing Jeffries in his shower. The story began: "There stood the shaggy monster, beating his bearded breast." Legend Grows By Itself

The boys haven't used up much

The Question a Valuable Tool

So Declares Writer In the Current Rotarian Magazine

The question is one of the most valuable of conversational tools. It pays to know how to use the little barked hook, says Farnsworth Crowder in the current Rotarian Magazine, for when you do, you have the key to delightful conversation, friendly contacts, and desired information.

"It is often remarked that the two most absorbing subjects for talk in the world are shop and love," he says. "It was probably as well not to go about asking people about their love life. But its safe to ask them to talk shop." You'll be surprised at the interesting things you'll learn from asking about the work of folks who "know their stuff" in trades or professions different from your own. A question along this line is sincere flattery; it is bound to get results for it shows an interest in the thing most interesting to the person himself—his own life.

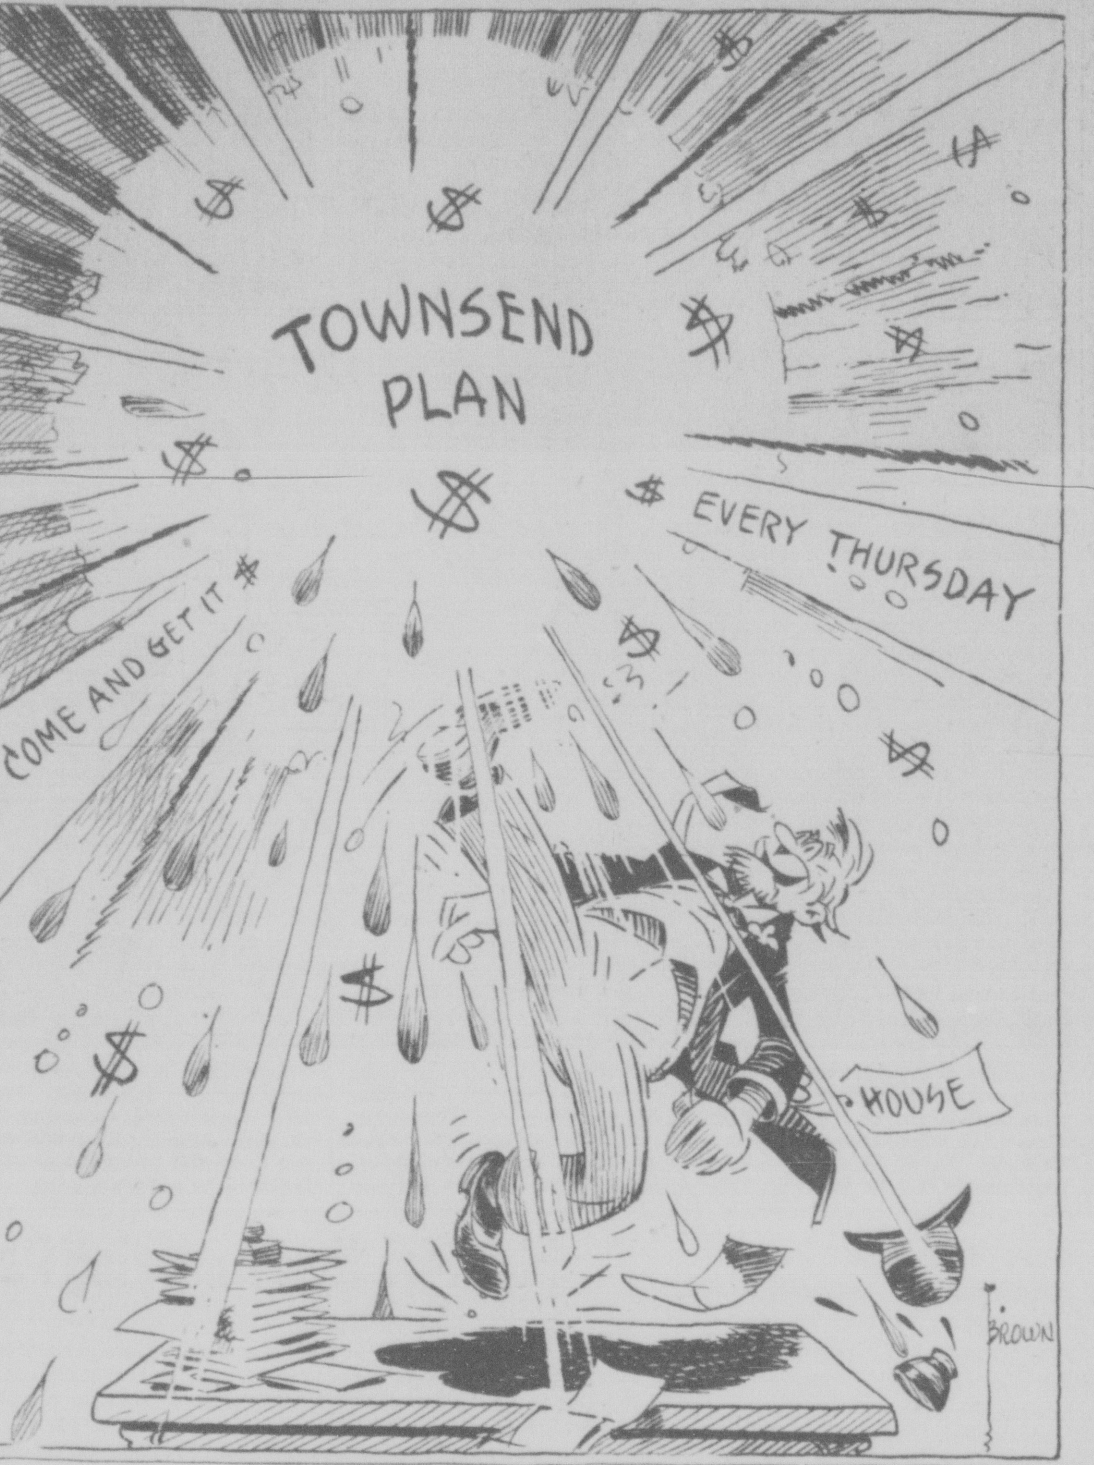

Even a simple question asking information compliments the would-be informer by giving him the pleasurable opportunity of telling something he knows which you do not. So don't be afraid to ask questions, concludes Mr. Crowder. Have an inquiring mind. You'll find it pays.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF BASEBALL

Here is the new postage stamp commemorating the centennial of baseball, intended primarily to stimulate on the part of youngsters a greater appreciation of healthy outdoor sports. The first day's sale of the stamps will be at Cooperstown, N. Y., home of baseball. The general sale is scheduled to begin June 12.

THE HOUSE DOES ITS BUBBLE DANCE

Randolph's Probe of Milk Producers Stresses Bad Government of Capital

By CHARLES P. STEWART Central Press Columnist

It generally is agreed, by everyone who is at all familiar with its local conditions, that Washington, D. C., is a very much misgoverned city. It isn't so much that its government there are hints at a bit of crookedness, too, in spots. The main difficulty, however, is that the Washingtonians themselves haven't the slightest voice in their own government. They might have an interest in improving it. They can't vote, though, locally or nationally. If a municipality like Kansas City is mismanaged or plundered, outsiders are entitled to say that it's up to Kansas citizens to do their own house cleaning. If a hash is made of Washington's government, the outsiders are to blame for it. They do the governing.

But these outsiders are too distant from the job to know the least thing about it. Comparatively few of them ever saw the District of Columbia. Now, Washington not only is a big place—about half a million. It also is Uncle Sam's capital. It ought to be a model. If it's the anti-theater of that, it's a country-wide scandal. That's what it is, moreover. Yet nobody with any influence cares a hoot any more than Miami's city council cares about the administration of Juneau, Alaska.

The place is run by a kind of city council consisting of the District of Columbia committee of the national senate and house of representatives. National legislators don't like serving on these committees. They're thankless jobs. They're not helpful to the members at home and the District of Columbians can't vote for them. Senator William H. King of Utah is chairman of the upper house committee. Representative Jennings Randolph of West Virginia is chairman of the lower house committee. Senator King is a coking conscientious, capable administrator, but what good does that Washington chairmanship do him with the Utah voters?—though it works him like a horse locally.

Representative Randolph has a mean local investigation on hand. He can't resign while it's pending, but he says he will, as soon as it's finished, and he can do it with a clean slate. I've no doubt of his slate's cleanliness, but he's bothered by complaints that arise solely from squawks that he has no personal or political interest in. That committee chairmanship has been a 100 percent liability to him, not one percent of an asset.

Representative Randolph's troubles started with complaints that milk producers surrounding the District of Columbia framed up regulations to keep western milk out of the District—by so-called health regulations. What asphalt regulations have to do with milk I'm darned if I know. Nevertheless, it's charged that, as a milk administrator, he's shown a preference to Trinidad asphalt, for Washington paving purposes over a United States petroleum substitute.

A little while back it was alleged that numbers racketeering was rampant in the District of Columbia. But the racketeers couldn't be caught, AS racketeers. But they might be caught as income tax dodgers, like Al Capone. The Warring brothers were grabbed on that ground. Their defense was that they were entitled to tax deductions, on account of graft paid to Washington police.

The Warrings were stung. They went to the pen. The police? Hushed up! That's Washington's local politics.

the people. To do this it follows, of course, that the government must control all of the agencies of human activity. In short, when the thing works out to its logical conclusion, everybody will be working for and living from the government.

By whatever name you may choose to call such a system, however much you may disguise the machinery employed, it is nothing but Socialism, pure and simple—a collectivist economy. It is the end toward which the New Deal has been heading constantly from the beginning.

If we want collectivism, by all means the Roosevelt regime should be continued. If we want free enterprise under the American system, we MUST clean house at Washington. Make no mistake about that.

Of course, in order to "invest" these great sums of money, the government must first get the money. It can get it in only one way—by taxing the people. And as it is the savings of the people it is proposed to invest, it follows that the government first must appropriate these savings.

Here is, of course, nothing more nor less than collectivism, in effect, the New Deal architects say, the system of private economy has failed. So they propose substituting a government-controlled economy for it. The government will spend the money, furnishing the means of investment, a market for the products of our industry and work for

Washington, D. C., June 5.—At least Harry Hopkins as a contact man between business and government has a two-way connection. Uncle Danny Roper invented the "Business Advisory Council." It was a group of industrialists, some important, some less so. It was supposed to keep the president advised through his secretary of commerce as to the needs of business and to keep business informed of the plans and policies of government.

But Uncle Danny, as a telephone, worked only one way. The business big-shots wore out their patience, if not their hearts, out suggesting this and that with never so much as an echo in response. Now Harry has taken some leading spirits right into the White House Holy of Holies—even though it turned out to be a sick-room.

No account of what happened there has been made public—but it will seep out. If the past is any indication of the future, I know what happened. The president did the talking—charmingly, except for a few clever little digs, and the pundits finally filed out just as wise and no wiser than when they came into the room.

Not Fruitless Formerly There was a time in early 1933, when such conferences were not as fruitless. Business was trying to help make the administration's program succeed and the president was meeting them more than half way. There is no man in this country who can conduct such a conference as successfully, when he wants to, or to get more action out of an unofficial group.

But the honeymoon was over before 1934 and, after that, the relations grew so frigid that there were no meetings at all. Mr. Hopkins' part may not have accomplished much, but something was gained by the mere fact of the foregoing.

Such men as Averell Harriman, Edward Stettinius and Arthur Whitehead, are a long way from being New Dealers. But, from the very beginning, they have earnestly tried to have business cooperate with this administration. They were prominent in the old N. R. A. I think the president knows that, when he gathers with his group, he is at least not sitting in the presence of his enemies.

Resigned to Objectives Such business leaders do not want to turn the hands of the clock of social progress back beyond 1933. They are resigned to the general objectives of the New Deal. They ask for just one thing—to know what those rules are. That is what they went to the White House to ask the president.

They have not known that. That ignorance, rather than "deterrent" taxes or any other single uncertainty of which business complains, is the principal barrier to returning business activity. Business is essentially a process of planning ahead. You can take a chance, based on experience and judgment, with the usual fluctuations of the economic cycle. But where so much control of business influence has been taken by what Jerome Frank is recently reported to have called "administrative absolutism," business needs to be told with authority what to expect and what is expected of it.

One of Many Examples Congress enacted a law which most lawyers believed authorized the National Labor Relations Board in its discretion, to hold labor elections at the request of either employers or employees. That board arbitrarily ruled that only employees could call it in. Such a howl went up that Congress seemed about to clarify its intention by an amendment. Whereupon the chairman of the board indicates that it will receive requests from employers.

That is only one of the many examples of the uncertainty which attends the constantly widening control of business by government. The control is largely unavoidable, but its harmful effect could be much eased if, by more definite pronouncement of policy, it were made less of a guessing game of blind man's buff.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

The Townsend Bill Defeat

OPINION seems to be general that the Townsend old-age pension plan is done for as a result of the latest emphatic thumping down it received in the national House of Representatives.

But, there is much criticism over the method by which the adverse vote was registered. It was brought out with gag rule attached which would have prevented any amendments from the floor designed to eliminate its more objectionable features. It was used by the House Democrats to put on the spot those Republicans from districts where the Townsend clubs have been the most active. This strategy pre-supposed a solid Democratic vote against it. But it didn't work, as forty Democrats voted for it.

As politics goes, the defeat was legitimate enough, but the fact remains that Democratic leadership resorted to a cheap and mean method of killing it by deliberately stacking the cards against it.

The death of the plan is not accepted by some observers. The New York Herald Tribune, for example, says the answer to that will not be available until the next elections.

"While some, of course, of those who voted for the Townsend plan sincerely believed in it, and others equally sincerely felt that the proportion of their constituents favoring it was so great that they were bound, as representatives of the voters to support the plan," it says, "others voted for it because they feared the threatened revenge of the Townsends if they opposed the bill."

As for the latter it may be said that if a representative does not have the courage to vote his convictions, but yields it to group pressure, he does not have any business being in Congress.

"In the next election," the Herald Tribune continues, "the Townsends will know whom to punish. If any substantial number of the members of Congress who opposed the plan are beaten, and it can be made clear that they were beaten because of the votes of Townsends, then the plan may be expected to crop up perennially in Congress. But if, as there is reason to believe, friends and enemies of the plan alike over-estimated the number of its supporters, then it is more than likely that the plan will cease to be a serious political factor."

The plan has a beautiful sound and it looks attractive, but it seems to be one of those boot-strap ideas that, however good looking, just won't work out. The reason for its latest defeat has been summarized by Representative Charles Eaton, of Cincinnati. "The pyramiding taxes which this bill would levy," he said, "are not merely unequal, unfair and unsound, but are bound to jeopardize our entire financial structure and drive every branch of industry closer to bankruptcy and ruin." The unsound and burdensome taxes we already have have just about done that as it is.

Mystery

THE LATEST MYSTERY THRILLER seems to have been provided by the Cumberland city council in suddenly reversing the attitude long entertained at City hall about an airport and turning thumbs down on it.

The reason for the sudden action seems to be the kernel of a mystery for the Scotland Yarders to tackle. Surveys and other preparations for an airport have been encouraged in the past. When even much more costly airport plans were under consideration, the city fathers seemed to be in favor of it.

Now, when quite by accident a much less costly and more suitable project has been evolved, the council goes haywire on it. The latest plan would involve WPA labor, which some seem to think advisable, but there seems to be much opposition to it among the councilmen.

Perhaps the increasing opposition to the New Deal squander has played a part in this development, and can be chiefly blamed. There is no countenancing the fact that this opposition is spreading pretty much like wildfire all over the country.

Unicameral Legislatures

ALTHOUGH states have been slow to follow Nebraska in adoption of one-house legislatures, nine bills proposing unicameral organization gained place on 1935 legislative calendars, according to a report submitted to the Council of State Governments by Prof. Alvin W. Johnson, Pacific Union College.

The report shows that three of the nine proposals were introduced in the Washington legislature, which adjourned without passing any of them. Unicameral bills were defeated in the legislatures of Maryland, Kansas and Michigan, which also have adjourned. They are pending in Ohio, California and New Jersey.

The 1935 bills showed several definite trends, according to the report. Most of them proposed higher pay for legislators "in order that persons might devote a reasonable amount of their time to law-making without too much financial sacrifice." One of Washington's measures, for example, allowed $400 a month plus expenses. California's proposal provides a salary of $2,500 a year.

Four of the measures proposed two-year terms for legislators and four set four-year terms. Most state legislative terms are two years for representatives and four for senators. The Ohio unicameral proposal provides for two classifications. One group, known as senators, would be elected from congressional districts in the state and would serve four years. The other group, known as representatives, would be elected from the state's eighty assembly districts and hold office for two years. Both groups would meet as one body.

In size, some of the proposals followed the Nebraska law in specifying a minimum and maximum number of members, leaving the exact number to be determined by the legislature. The number in California, however, is specified as eighty in the bill. In New Jersey, it would be not more than sixty.

Two of the bills proposed non-partisan legislatures. Annual sessions were proposed in Ohio and Washington.

The report noted that last year, when only nine legislatures met in regular session, four proposals for single-house bodies were introduced and two were made to New York's constitutional convention. From 1935 to 1937 over half the states considered one or more measures designed to institute the one-house system. Unicameralism made its debut in 1912, when measures were introduced in Ohio and Oregon proposing a single legislative chamber. Nebraska provided for its one-house legislature in 1934.

Pudding Proof

NEW DEALERS frequently try to excuse their failure to restore prosperity by talking of "world-wide deficits and depression." It would be well for them if they looked a little more carefully at the recent financial history of England. The United Kingdom has 45,000,000 inhabitants, or its 130,000,000, which on a population basis should give us three times their national income. In 1929 our national income was four times theirs. In 1932, at the bottom of the depression, it was two and two-fifths times that of England.

Now, the United Kingdom did not attempt to spend itself out of hard times. From 1932 to 1938 the English budget showed a surplus of about $400,000,000. During the same years the United States budget showed a deficit of about $29,400,000,000. What have been the comparative results in restoring prosperity in these two countries?

From the low point of the depression in 1932 to the beginning of 1938 the national income of the United Kingdom had increased 101 percent. During the same years the national income of the United States increased only forty-nine percent. In England since 1932 national tax receipts have increased eleven percent. In this country the increase has been 193 percent.

Isn't it about time for the New Dealers to learn that like charity, economy begins at home?

Welcome Trend

THOSE familiar with conditions agree that the long awaited activity of the building industry has begun. And most significant is the statement that conditions again favor the building of small homes.

Real estate prices are advancing, and money is becoming available to finance small building projects on reasonable terms. Tending to promote this movement also, is the fact that owners of houses are finding it possible to boost rents.

The difference in the cost of living in a multi-family building and in a one-family house is militating in favor of home ownership. This is a definite sign of a return of desirable conditions. The home owner is the firm defender of safe institutions, of good government and observance of law and order.

If President Roosevelt succeeds in establishing peace in Europe he might see what he can do for the Democratic party.

America will need all its old pioneering spirit, as well as arithmetic, if posterity is to find a pass through the mountains of debt.

What type of program will feature television? asks a radio mag editorial. That's easy—bathing beauty contests, you dope.

Maybe in 1940 Farley will bring out the point that the country should not change mules in the middle of the toboggan.

But if Junior is so smart and wonderful, why suspect him of dumbness just because you don't like the girl?

Our Nudist Colony

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I used to belong to a nudist colony, myself. Our toes were all stubbed, our knees were lacerated, our backs were red and blistered, we had freckles all over our faces, we were scrawny and noisy and the farmers in the neighborhood were known to complain about our presence—but as I remember our nudist colony it was a great success.

It met every sunny day in summer on the banks of a little California river, right where the Salpuedes creek flowed into Palmar, near a rock where a turtle was always sunning himself until we came along. . . . We had fun. . . . It was a mile out of town by a dusty road, and sometimes we'd catch a ride all the way on the water wagon or we walked along squishing our toes in the newly watered road. We had to go through a farmer's orchard to get there and the farmer had a couple of fierce dogs who made the day even hotter for us if they caught us. . . . But we usually succeeded in filling our shirts with apples as we went through.

Last one in the water was a nigger baby—and unless you hid your clothes the last one out always found that somebody had chawed beef on him and if you think it isn't possible to tie a small boy's shirt into what is practically a Gordian Knot then you never had anybody chew beef on your clothes.

We climbed into trees and dived in like frogs. We tried to see who could swim the farthest under water. We got way up the creek and knocked two big rocks together under water—and that hurts the other fellow's ears something awful. . . . But most of the time I guess we just lay on the sandy-silty bank and ate apples and threw the cores in the creek and watched them float away and smoked wormwood cigarettes or cubeds or maybe real cigarettes—I was a sissy and wouldn't smoke those—and boasted!

Boasted about everything! About where we'd been and what we'd done and how long we could stay under water and how tough we were and what we were going to do when we got out of school. . . . We didn't have any fancy ideas about freedom and the joy of going without clothes and being "free of the intolerable restrictions of civilization." . . . But, except for the absence of girls, it seems to me it was just as much a "nudist colony" as any of those I read about in the papers.

Or maybe we were just naked small-town kids swimming in a creek in the summer time. . . . I won't argue about it.

The Human Side Of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

If Joe Louis is superstitious, it will be perhaps just as well if he never reads this new book, "Galento the Great," by Joseph P. Donovan. While it is an eloquent encomium for Two-ton Tony, it takes on a mortuary tone in its recital of what happened to the men who traded wallops with Tony. There was Bobbie Brown, the Cuban, who took him off two days after his fight with the Orange, N. J., publisher. Al Friedman lived only two months after his fight, as did Phil Mercurio. Ernie Schaaf was killed in his fight with Primo Carnera, soon after fighting Galento. On the night Max Schmeling defeated Joe Louis, a Tom O'Rourke, old-time manager of fighters, died in Tony Galento's dressing room, with Tony fighting Al Gainer in a preliminary bout.

Students of the combat du boxe can, and doubtless will, offer satisfactory explanations of this high mortality rate in Tony's vicinage. None of the knowing railbirds thinks there is anything particularly deadly about him, although his round-house swing is quite as errant and sometimes almost as disastrous as a train wreck. However, fight crowds seem to nurse legends and to cherish them more than the most shrewdly and coldly calculated expert fight dope.

If by any chance the rhomboidal Tony should dump Joe Louis, the fact that he has more hair on his chest than he has on his head will be noted to fan him into some kind of abysmal brute, and the deaths in his neighborhood will become pertinent thereto.

Must Have A Behemoth

The crowds must have a belting Behemoth ever so often. I remember an incident pertaining thereto at Reno, in 1910, when the Jeffries-Johnson hostilities were impending. Jack London had been getting away with a great deal of expensive lingo about the "abysmal brutes." The fans lapped it up because, no matter how you slick up prizefighting, with grammatical contenders like Gene Tunney and Lou Nova, we like nothing better than a dash of the cave-man stuff in our ring gladiators—Dempsey, for example.

London stirred the other reporters to competitive jungle chatter, but they didn't have a chance. They could never hope to match the master in low, savage snarls and the throb of the jungle drums. This so embittered a hard-bitten veteran sports writer of the then flourishing Chicago Inter-Ocean that he went into training in his room, with two flags of red-eye, for a word-fight with London, under no rules whatsoever.

"I'll show up that imitation tough guy and all his dude words," he told his mates. That evening, in the bar, punch-drunk from beaming himself with big words, he showed the boys his night story, ready for filling. He had been interviewing Jeffries in his shower. The story began: "There stood the shaggy monster, beating his bearded breast."

The Question a Valuable Tool

No Declares Writer In the Current Rotarian Magazine

The question is one of the most valuable of conversational tools. It pays to know how to use the little barked hook, says Farnsworth Crowder in the current Rotarian Magazine, for when you do, you have the key to delightful conversation, friendly contacts, and desired information.

"It is often remarked that the two most absorbing subjects for talk in the world are shop and love," he says. "It was probably as well not to go about asking people about their love life. But its safe to ask them to talk shop." You'll be surprised at the interesting things you'll learn from asking about the work of folks who "know their stuff" in trades or professions different from your own. A question along this line is sincere flattery; it is bound to get results for it shows an interest in the thing most interesting to the person himself—his own life.

Even a simple question asking information compliments the would-be informer by giving him the pleasurable opportunity of telling something he knows which you do not. So don't be afraid to ask questions, concludes Mr. Crowder. Have an inquiring mind. You'll find it pays.

To date, he tosses in most of his own Paul Bunyan touches and the legend has grown by itself, like Tony's own bulbous torso. Now this year-old kid of mine, I'm going to make him behave, and he'll grow up to be a professor or a doctor."

After Tony had knocked out Nathan Mann, he said, "I did it for the baby"—thus the one-time leechman around the Oranges, baldish and beetle-browed, wearing a table cloth for an apron, in the little family gin mill and spaghetti palace down by the railroad tracks. That steam shovel wallop may or may not be as catastrophic as it is supposed to be. ## The Plunge on To Socialism

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

Pump-priming, write a Washington correspondent of The Christian Science Monitor, is about to be shelved by the New Deal. But that, unfortunately, doesn't mean that federal spending is to be curtailed. Far from it. It simply means that instead of nursing the pump, we are to begin carrying water to the well.

The new theory, says this writer, is one of "permanent federal intervention to put idle men and money to work under a changed national economy."

The theme of this newest phase of the Roosevelt regime is being developed, we are told, before the Senate Monetary committee. The trend of questioning is designed to establish the fact that American industry now is virtually self-financing, which is to be the New Deal answer to the question of why idle capital is not being invested. If, therefore, runs the argument, the savings of the people cannot hope to find an avenue of investment in the business and industrial world, there will be continued chronic unemployment unless some other means of putting the money to work is found.

And here's where the brain trusters come in. We are, they say in a "new economy" with a slowed down population gain and an inevitable restriction of business expansion—a condition which calls for permanent "investment" by the government. Stated in plain language, what the gentlemen mean is that the government as a permanent policy must keep on spending cast sums of money. One avenue of expenditure already has been suggested. It is a modest outlay of a billion and a half dollars at two percent interest to stimulate the construction of homes in the $6,000 class. Other schemes, equally well designed to get rid of money, will come readily to the minds of the spenders, we may rest assured.

Of course, in order to "invest" these great sums of money, the government must first get the money. It can get it in only one way—by taxing the people. And as it is the savings of the people it is proposed to invest, it follows that the government first must appropriate these savings.

Here is, of course, nothing more nor less than collectivism. In effect, the New Deal architects say the system of private economy has failed. So they propose substituting a government-controlled economy for it. The government will spend the money, furnishing the means of investment, a market for the products of our industry and work for

The control is largely unavoidable, but its harmful effect could be much eased if, by more definite pronouncement of policy, it were made less of a guessing game of blind man's buff.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Scientists Urge Spiritual Basis for Problems

Change from Material Outlook Is Advocated at Church Meeting

Boston, Mass., June 5.—Thousands of Christian Scientists, meeting in city today, challenged a traditional world to change its perspective from a material to a spiritual basis for search for release from physical and economic and political problems.

On the occasion for the great influx of the followers of Mary Baker Eddy was the annual meeting of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, which was filled to an early hour this afternoon and up to the center balcony under the very dome of the great building.

For World Peace
Through an entire afternoon's and of addresses and reports from the field, the power of the Christ, to lift individuals above the material, to human sense was acknowledged and this same spiritual power was recommended for the healing of the nations and the establishment of a permanent world peace.

Church Progress Reported
Various reports heard during the afternoon cited specific instances of spiritual enlightenment actively working among the nations today. It was revealed that Europe, seething with turbulent political upheavals, is also a fertile field for spiritual growth, indicated in the formation of 21 new branch churches and organizations abroad, 12 of them in England.

Officers Named
Announcement of new officers constituted the main business of the meeting. George Shaw Cook, B. S., of Brookline, Mass., was named president for the ensuing year to succeed Ralph H. Knapp of Newham. Edward L. Ripley of Oakline, and Ezra W. Palmer of Newfield were re-elected Treasurer and clerk, respectively. The president is elected by The Christian Science board of directors for a one-year term, his chief duty being to serve as presiding officer at the annual meeting.

Indications of the colossal number of Japan's war dead were seen recently in a proposal to establish a separate shrine to them in each of the nation's 46 prefectures.

Franco's Army To Be Demobilized

Madrid, June 5 (AP)—New government orders today set June 16 for completing demobilization of 420,000 soldiers of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's army of 1,000,000.

Trains and other forms of transport are thronged with home-going soldiers and sailors preparing to leave the Nationalists' victorious forces.

Officials, however, are keeping careful records of all demobilized men in order to assure rapid remobilization should a national emergency arise.

Franco also is demilitarizing private war industries and rapidly liquidating other military units. All vessels, automobiles and trucks requisitioned from private owners for war purposes are being returned.

Thousands of demobilized soldiers daily are being assigned to reconstruction projects.

Pioneer in Radio
Dies in England

London, June 5 (AP)—Sir Henry Norman, 80, a pioneer in radio telegraphy and an early proponent of daylight saving time, died Sunday at his Ramster, Surrey home after a long illness.

Sir Henry, who was graduated from Harvard, began agitation for national conservation of Niagara Falls and his efforts were said to have influenced the state of New York in buying them.

As a member of the House of Commons in 1916 Sir Henry proposed the adoption of daylight saving, a step Britain later took.

Thousands Attend Funeral Services For Murrel Poor

Fairmont, W. Va., June 5 (AP)—A crowd estimated at 10,000 persons jammed the street outside a funeral home Sunday at services for Murrel Poor, "Hill-Billy" radio entertainer, who died Thursday in Philadelphia from injuries suffered in an auto accident.

Funeral Director R. C. Jones said people came in cars from Pennsylvania, Ohio and Maryland and O. J. Kelchner, manager of radio station (WMMN) estimated 30,000 have viewed the body at the funeral home since Friday.

Poor, as the "old partner", conducted a daily radio program and made personal appearances in northern West Virginia and the tri-state area.

The service in the funeral home was broadcast through amplifiers to an overflow crowd in the national guard armory and in the street outside.

Poor came here two years ago from Wheeling. Previously he had toured on the Chataqua circuit. His widow and a son, 7, survive him. He was a native of Newport, Ill.

Government Coercion Deplored by Hoover

Harrogate, Tenn., June 5 (AP)—Herbert Hoover said here the gravest danger to American Democracy lies in government coercion to force cooperation from the people. Systems of compulsory cooperation he said, stifle individual liberties, destroy representative self-government and lead eventually to dictatorships.

The former president spoke at commencement exercises at Lincoln memorial university, a small mountain school—near historic Cumberland Gap—dedicated to the memory of the civil war president.

His address was carried by loudspeakers to hundreds of people, unable to crowd into Duke hall, who came out of the hill country of Tennessee, Kentucky and Virginia. Hoover told the 51 members of the graduating class "our intellectual and spiritual liberties were not founded upon power over matter," and added:

"They were founded upon endowments of freedom from the creator and upon spiritual truth, tolerance, justice and faith. Upon the youth of America will depend the survival of this continent."

Confederate Vet Reburied 78 Years After Death in War

Hagerstown, Md., June 5 (AP)—A confederate soldier killed 78 years ago at Gettysburg, Pa., was solemnly reburied in the conference cemetery Sunday in celebration of Confederate Memorial Day.

The unidentified infantry officer was found in a shallow grave on the Gettysburg battlefield last summer by workmen digging water lines for the camp for veterans at the 75th anniversary celebration.

The grave, about 16 inches deep, was 150 yards northwest of "the angle." After the identification was made, by means of a button nearby, the bones were turned over to Superintendent John Kyde Beckenbaugh of the Antietam Battlefield Cemetery, who suggested they be reburied on the southerners' memorial day.

The Morris Brock Post, American Legion, had charge of the services today. Those participating in a parade prior to the actual burial included Legionnaires, members of the Washington county Confederate Memorial Association, the Henry Kyd Douglas and Shepherdstown chapters of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, and the Henry Kyd Douglas camp of Sons of Confederate Veterans of Shepherdstown.

Flier Urges Protection Of Canada's Arctic Shore

Winnipeg (AP)—With the rapid development of long-range aviation Canada must begin to worry about defense of its Arctic shoreline, says Walter E. Gilbert, veteran northern flier.

He points out that on air routes running over the top of the world, Canada is only 2,500 miles from North Central Europe and 1,500 miles from Greenland.

"Canada might well give major consideration to the unfortified border of the Canadian Arctic," he said in an address here.

Scientists Urge Spiritual Basis for Problems

Change from Material Outlook Is Advocated at Church Meeting

Boston, Mass., June 5.—Thousands of Christian Scientists, meeting in this city today, challenged a troubled world to change its perspective from a material to a spiritual basis. The search for release from present economic and political problems was the occasion for the great influx of the followers of Mary Baker Eddy, who was the annual meeting of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, which was held on an early hour this afternoon. The up to the ceiling balcony under the very dome of the great church.

For World Peace
Through an entire afternoon's session of addresses and reports from the field, the power of the Christ, to lift individuals above the level of human sense was acknowledged and this same spiritual power was recommended for the healing of the nations and the establishment of a permanent world peace. Looking beneath the surface ripples of troubled international relationships apparent in the world today, The Christian Science Board of Directors saw the deep-running currents of spiritual progress "keep alive the vital realization of spiritual truth which Christian Scientists must always nurture, whether their work be along the healing line of healing or in the important channels connected with church, business, and government."

Church Progress Reported
Various reports heard during the afternoon cited specific instances of spiritual enlightenment actively working among the nations today. It revealed that Europe, seething with turbulent political upheavals, is also a fertile field for spiritual growth, indicated in the formation of 21 new branch church organizations abroad, 12 of them in England.

Similar progress was reported in North America where 25 new branch organizations were launched. Africa, Australia, it was stated, have formed one new organization each. The 32 societies were found raising their status to that of churches during the last 12 months. In educational fields, nine new university organizations became recognized members of the Christian Science movement.

Officers Named
Announcement of new officers constituted the main business of the meeting. George Shaw Cook, D. S., of Brookline, Mass., was elected president for the ensuing year to succeed Ralph H. Knapp of Waltham. Edward L. Ripley of Brookline, and Ezra W. Palmer of Ashfield were re-elected Treasurer and clerk, respectively. The president is elected by The Christian Science board of directors for one-year term, his chief duty being to serve as presiding officer at the annual meeting.

Indications of the colossal number of Japan's war dead were seen recently in a proposal to establish separate shrines to them in each of the nation's 46 prefectures.

Franco's Army To Be Demobilized

Madrid, June 5 (AP)—New government orders today set June 16 for completing demobilization of 420,000 soldiers of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's army of 1,000,000.

Trains and other forms of transport are thronged with home-going soldiers and sailors preparing to leave the Nationalists' victorious forces.

Officials, however, are keeping careful records of all demobilized men in order to assure rapid remobilization should a national emergency arise.

Franco also is demilitarizing private war industries and rapidly liquidating other military units. All vessels, automobiles and trucks requisitioned from private owners for war purposes are being returned.

Thousands of demobilized soldiers daily are being assigned to reconstruction projects.

Antonio Maseda, entrusted with repatriation of Spanish children given refuge abroad during the war, said Franco would ask Soviet Russia for the return of 3,000 children sent there.

Pioneer in Radio Dies in England

London, June 5 (AP)—Sir Henry Norman, 80, a pioneer in radio telegraphy and an early proponent of daylight saving time, died Sunday at his Ramster, Surrey home after a long illness.

Sir Henry, who was graduated from Harvard, began agitation for national conservation of Niagara Falls and his efforts were said to have influenced the state of New York in buying them.

As a member of the House of Commons in 1916 Sir Henry proposed the adoption of daylight saving, a step Britain later took.

Thousands Attend Funeral Services For Murrel Poor

Fairmont, W. Va., June 5 (AP)—A crowd estimated at 10,000 persons jammed the street outside a funeral home Sunday at services for Murrel Poor, "Hill-Billy" radio entertainer, who died Thursday in Philadelphia from injuries suffered in an auto accident.

Funeral Director R. C. Jones said people came in cars from Pennsylvania, Ohio and Maryland and O. J. Kelchner, manager of radio station (WMMN) estimated 30,000 have viewed the body at the funeral home since Friday.

Poor, as the "old partner", conducted a daily radio program and made personal appearances in northern West Virginia and the tri-state area.

The service in the funeral home was broadcast through amplifiers to an overflow crowd in the national guard armory and in the street outside.

Poor came here two years ago from Wheeling. Previously he had toured on the Chataqua circuit. His widow and a son, 7, survive him. He was a native of Newport, Ill.

Government Coercion Deplored by Hoover

Harrogate, Tenn., June 5 (AP)—Herbert Hoover said here the gravest danger to American Democracy lies in government coercion to force cooperation from the people. Systems of compulsory cooperation he said, stifle individual liberties, destroy representative self-government and lead eventually to dictatorships.

The former president spoke at commencement exercises at Lincoln memorial university, a small mountain school near historic Cumberland Gap—dedicated to the memory of the civil war president.

His address was carried by loudspeakers to hundreds of people unable to crowd into Duke hall, who came out of the hill country of Tennessee, Kentucky and Virginia. Hoover told the 51 members of the graduating class "our intellectual and spiritual liberties were not founded upon power over matter," and added:

"They were founded upon endowments of freedom from the creator and upon spiritual truth, tolerance, justice and faith. Upon the youth of America will depend the survival of this continent."

Confederate Vel Reburied 78 Years After Death in War

Hagerstown, Md., June 5 (AP)—A Confederate soldier killed 78 years ago at Gettysburg, Pa., was solemnly reburied in the conference cemetery Sunday in celebration of Confederate Memorial Day.

The unidentified infantry officer was found in a shallow grave on the Gettysburg battlefield last summer by workmen digging water lines for the camp for veterans at the 75th anniversary celebration.

The grave, about 16 inches deep, was 150 yards northwest of "the angle." After the identification was made, by means of a button nearby, the bones were turned over to Superintendent John Kyde Beckenbaugh of the Antietam Battlefield Cemetery, who suggested they be reburied on the southerners' memorial day.

The Morris Brock Post, American Legion, had charge of the services today. Those participating in a parade prior to the actual burial included Legionnaires, members of the Washington county Confederate Memorial Association, the Henry Kyd Douglas and Shepherdstown chapters of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, and the Henry Kyd Douglas camp of Sons of Confederate Veterans of Shepherdstown.

Flier Urges Protection Of Canada's Arctic Shore

Winnipeg (AP)—With the rapid development of long-range aviation Canada must begin to worry about defense of its Arctic shoreline, says Walter E. Gilbert, veteran northern flier.

He points out that on air routes running over the top of the world, Canada is only 2,500 miles from North Central Europe and 1,500 miles from Greenland.

"Canada might well give major consideration to the unfortified border of the Canadian Arctic," he said in an address here.

District Governor Formally Inducts Ridgeley Lions at Clary Club Dinner

West Virginia and Maryland Lions club members joined in a charter presentation event last evening at a dinner at the Clary club, at which the newly formed club of Ridgeley, W. Va., received its charter.

The presentation was made by Dr. Carl L. Kennedy, of Montgomery, W. Va., the West Virginia district governor of the organization, in an address in which he set forth the achievements and purposes of the Lions, and welcomed the new group into the body. Frank H. Heskell, president of the new club, received the charter with a responsive address. The introduction was made by Dr. L. E. Daugherty, president of the Cumberland Lions. Short talks were made by officers of the various clubs represented.

Harley Slaggers, of Keyser, presided as toastmaster. The invocation was given by the Rev. Robert J. Kilgannon, pastor of St. Anthony's Catholic church of Ridgeley.

Members of Lions clubs of Cumberland, the Tri-Towns, Lonaconing, Keyser, Romney and Warfield, W. Va., joined the Ridgeley Lions at the dinner. Approximately eighty attended.

The committee in charge of the arrangements comprised Dr. L. E. Daugherty, Cumberland, and Leon C. Hammond and Richard A. Biggs, of Ridgeley.

Here's What to Do For Eyes When Soul Lamps Look Tired

By HELEN FOLLETT

EYES TIRED at the dinner hour when they should be brightest? That's because you are suffering from fatigue; soul shiners are sympathetic.

Before putting on your new cosmetic face, remove make-up with a cleansing oil or cream, wiping it every bit away. Dip a heavy washcloth in hot water, press to your eyes, repeat half a dozen times. Run to the refrigerator, get an ice cube. Place it in a saucer, add a little witch hazel, dip in a piece of gauze and place over the blinkers. While this refreshing pack is getting in its helpful work, lie down for ten minutes.

Get out the massage cream. Dip in the first finger of the right hand, place it on the eyelid close to the nose, sweep outward to the temple where you are to do a few little brisk taps and circles; come back under the eye to the starting point.

Wipe away the cream with the moist cloth that has been used, fluff on powder lightly. With a rouge pad brighten the eyelids. Touch the temples with coloring. A little rose glow around the eyes gives freshness and sparkle to them.

Touch the eyelashes with mascara, dip the brush in mineral oil and groom the eyebrows. There you are! Happy evening!

SUMMER FOODS—NO. 1

BREAD: RESTORES TOT'S ENERGY QUICKLY

By LOGAN GLENDENING, M. D.

In the summer time, which is now full upon us, the younger element especially needs more quick energy from its foods. Children play and exercise more, they dissipate more energy and require that energy to be replaced rapidly by quickly-absorbed foods.

In very hot weather we should all, old and young, avoid or at least reduce, the intake of the specific dynamic energy-producing foods—the "heating" foods, in other words—such as meats.

Bread, and bread and jam give the young athlete in the summer a quick pick-up and a rapid restorer of energy.

Bread is a concentrated food and one of the cheapest forms of energy. It is not surprising to learn that the consumption of white bread in the United States is over 80 pounds per capita annually.

Not Complete Food

Bread is not a complete food, however. Bread alone does not make a balanced diet. The principal nutritive value of bread consists of wheat flour. The process of milling does not reduce the protein or starch content of wheat, but it does reduce the fat and the mineral content.

The old question of whether white flour or wholewheat flour has an advantage is one that cannot be settled dramatically. Unquestionably, if a person likes wholewheat flour, he gets more for his money from it than from white flour. Fine and extreme milling reduces several elements. Wholewheat has decidedly more protein and is of more nutritive value than white flour. Whole wheat has about twice as much calcium, more potassium, phosphorus and iron than white flour.

As to the vitamins, wheat is practically without vitamins D and C. In some breads vitamin D is added artificially. White wheat flour contains about one-fourth as much vitamin B as wholewheat flour. Wheat contains a good quantity of pro-vitamin A, carotene, but much of this is reduced in the milling process.

For Energy

But these things are of more apparent importance than real. The minerals and vitamins absent in white bread are easily supplied; in fact, inevitably supplied in other foods. As was emphasized in the beginning of the article, bread is eaten for its good energy-giving value, rather than the minerals and accessory factors.

The advocacy of wholewheat bread by wild-eyed food faddists breaks down because more people will not eat it. The bakers and millers are perfectly willing to supply wholewheat bread. They can do it just as easily and just as cheaply—in fact, more so—than fine milled white flours. But, as a matter of practical business experience, they have found that some people simply will not eat it.

Wholewheat flour gives some people indigestion on account of the contained bran.

FAINTEST OF CLUES

YOUR LINE of play to make your contract depends sometimes upon the most delicate factors. Even the faintest kind of a clue to the location of some important missing card is considered by the finished cardman. Whereas in many cases ordinary players with a good measure of carelessness in their system are likely to decide that the location of a card is a plain guess, the winning type will usually say that the guess is tempered slightly by either something an opponent did or something he failed to do.

Heart contract would have been set promptly, but he chose the Club K, which was ruffed. After two heart rounds, South led a spade and finessed the 8 to the 10. The spade A and diamond A then set the contract.

Had South reckoned that West probably held something outside of his clubs, from East's failure to double, and that it was more likely the spade Q than the Q of diamonds which East had bid, he would have finessed the spade J on the first round. After that it would have been impossible for the defenders to take anything but the spade and diamond Aces, since a ruff of one spade would set up enough to discard two diamonds.

District Governor Formally Inducts Ridgeley Lions at Clary Club Dinner

West Virginia and Maryland Lions club members joined in a charter presentation event last evening at a dinner at the Clary club, at which the newly formed club of Ridgeley, W. Va., received its charter.

The presentation was made by Dr. Carl L. Kennedy, of Montgomery, W. Va., the West Virginia district governor of the organization, in an address in which he set forth the achievements and purposes of the Lions, and welcomed the new group into the body. Frank H. Heiskell, president of the new club, received the charter with a responsive address. The introduction was made by Dr. L. E. Daugherty, president of the Cumberland Lions. Short talks were made by officers of the various clubs represented.

Harley Stagers, of Keyser, presided as toastmaster. The invocation was given by the Rev. Robert J. Kilgannon, pastor of St. Anthony's Catholic church of Ridgeley.

Members of Lions clubs of Cumberland, the Tri-Towns, Lonaconing, Keyser, Romney and Warfield, W. Va., joined the Ridgeley Lions at the dinner. Approximately eighty attended.

For Brighter Sight

JOY HODGES... careful treatment keeps her eyes pretty, bright.

Here's What to Do For Eyes When Soul Lamps Look Tired

By HELEN FOLLETT

EYES TIRED at the dinner hour when they should be brightest? That's because you are suffering from fatigue; soul shiners are sympathetic.

Before putting on your new cosmetic face, remove make-up with a cleansing oil or cream, wiping it every bit away. Dip a heavy washcloth in hot water, press to your eyes; repeat half a dozen times. Run to the refrigerator, get an ice cube. Place it in a saucer, add a little witch hazel, dip in a piece of gauze and place over the blinkers. While this refreshing pack is getting in its helpful work, lie down for ten minutes.

Get out the massage cream. Dip in the first finger of the right hand, place it on the eyelid close to the nose, sweep outward to the temple where you are to do a few little brisk taps and circles; come back under the eye to the starting point. Wipe away the cream with the moist cloth that has been used, fluff on powder lightly. With a rouge pad brighten the eyelids. Touch the temples with coloring. A little rose glow around the eyes gives freshness and sparkle to them.

Touch the eyelashes with mascara, dip the brush in mineral oil and groom the eyebrows. There you are! Happy evening!

To the victim of self-consciousness the frank friend says, "Oh!

don't be silly!" which doesn't help at all. Reform is not so easy; it comes through the cultivation of self-respect and a little healthy conceit.

If you suffer from shyness, hand yourself some apple sauce. You are probably just as intelligent as the life of the party that you envy. Think more about other people than about yourself. Don't fancy that they are paying attention to you. You are suffering from social fear; there's no reason why you should suffer torment as all of us are cut off pretty much the same piece of cloth. Even the smartest among us do stupid things, make mistakes.

There's danger in them that elaborate coiffures that the stylists are offering. They look grand in pictures but they are likely to make one seem overdressed. And being overdressed is to look dowdy.

A mode has been revived that is twin-sister to the pineapple bob that was fashionable a decade ago. The hair is clipped the same length all over the head, about three inches from the scalp. Unless the fairy godmother gave one homegrown ringlets, there must be a permanent wave.

Strands are separated in squares, rolled up on metal rods and dried. The curls are combed carefully, not arranged in rolls, and the effect is like that of a small child with naturally curly wool. Very naive, if you ask us, and even if you don't.

Williams, of Mt. Savage, returned from a weekend fishing trip at Scotland, Md., where they were guests of Albert Greenwell.

Dr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Koon yesterday attended the graduation exercises at Hood college, Frederick, where their niece, Miss Jane B. Hutson received her A.B. degree.

Following the graduation program Miss Hutson, accompanied by Mrs. Koon, left for West Point, N. Y., where Miss Hutson has been invited to attend the graduation program at the United States Military Academy.

National Commander of Legion Visits W. Va.

Huntington, W. Va., June 5 (AP)—Commanders of two state departments of the American Legion led their colleagues from three states today in tribute to the National Commander, Stephen F. Chadwick. Governor and Mrs. Holt attended the banquet in Chadwick's honor. State Commander W. Elliott Nefflen of West Virginia and Ell Jensen, head of the Ohio department, both were present at the dinner.

SUMMER FOODS—NO. 1

BREAD: RESTORES TOT'S ENERGY QUICKLY

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

In the summer time, which is now full upon us, the younger element especially needs more quick energy from its foods. Children play and exercise more, they dissipate more energy and require that energy to be replaced rapidly by quickly-absorbed foods.

In very hot weather we should all, old and young, avoid or at least reduce, the intake of the specific dynamic energy-producing foods—the "heating" foods, in other words—such as meats.

Bread, and bread and jam give the young athlete in the summer a quick pick-up and a rapid restorer of energy.

Bread is a concentrated food and one of the cheapest forms of energy. It is not surprising to learn that the consumption of white bread in the United States is over 80 pounds per capita annually.

Not Complete Food

Bread is not a complete food, however. Bread alone does not make a balanced diet. The principal nutritive value of bread consists of wheat flour. The process of milling does not reduce the protein or starch content of wheat, but it does reduce the fat and the mineral content.

The old question of whether white flour or wholewheat flour has an advantage is one that cannot be settled dramatically. Unquestionably, if a person likes wholewheat flour, he gets more for his money from it than from white flour. Fine and extreme milling reduces several elements. Wholewheat has decidedly more protein and is of more nutritive value than white flour. Whole wheat has about twice as much calcium, more potassium, phosphorus and iron than white flour.

As to the vitamins, wheat is practically without vitamins D and C. In some breads vitamin D is added artificially. White wheat flour contains about one-fourth as much vitamin B as wholewheat flour. Wheat contains a good quantity of pro-vitamin A, carotene, but much of this is reduced in the milling process.

For Energy

But these things are of more apparent importance than real. The minerals and vitamins absent in white bread are easily supplied; in fact, inevitably supplied in other foods. As was emphasized in the beginning of the article, bread is eaten for its good energy-giving value, rather than the minerals and accessory factors.

The advocacy of wholewheat bread by wild-eyed food faddists breaks down because more people will not eat it. The bakers and millers are perfectly willing to supply wholewheat bread. They can do it just as easily and just as cheaply—in fact, more so—than fine milled white flours. So, as a matter of practical business experience, they have found that some people simply will not eat it.

Wholewheat flour gives some people indigestion on account of the contained bran.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. B. R.: "Will you please tell me what is the cause of ulcers forming in the eye?"

Answer: Ulcers of the eyeball are usually due to infection. The kind of infection varies. It may be a simple germ infection or it may be tuberculosis.

Overdoing It

Johnstown, Pa., June 4 (AP)—High school students deemed it perfectly all right for Fire Chief John Amoran to stage a surprise fire drill. But they thought he was overdoing it a bit when, just as they returned to the classrooms they had recently evacuated, another alarm sent them marching out again. School officials said a prankster sounded the second alarm.

FAINTEST OF CLUES

YOUR LINE of play to make your contract depends sometimes upon the most delicate factors. Even the faintest kind of a clue to the location of some important missing card is considered by the finished cardman. Whereas in many cases ordinary players with a good measure of carelessness in their system are likely to decide that the location of a card is a plain guess, the winning type will usually say that the guess is tempered slightly by either something an opponent did or something he failed to do.

Radio Will Carry Will Rogers Event

Statue Presentation Ceremonies Will Be on Air at 3 p. m.

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor

New York, June 5.—Presentation ceremonies for the Will Rogers memorial statue in the rotunda of the capitol at Washington will be broadcast on two networks, WJZ-NBC and the MBS-Chain at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky will accept the statue for the government and Gov. L. C. Phillips of Oklahoma will participate in the ceremonies with others.

Talk by Murphy
Attorney General Frank Murphy is to talk on "Youth in Tomorrow's World" when he participates in festivities commemorating the 95th anniversary of the founding of the Y. M. C. A. at the World's Fair. Broadcast will be by WOR-MBS at 8:30.

The William S. Paley amateur station award, which goes this time to Wilson E. Burgess of Westbury, N. Y., will be made at a luncheon broadcast via WABC-CBS at 2. The award is the third annual.

Belle Baker, trouper of stage, screen and radio, will be the Bob Hope guest on WEAF-NBC at 9.

Extra Answerers
Clifton Radman, in his Information Please, is presenting as extra answerers H. I. Phillips, New York Sun columnist, and the return of Deems Taylor for WJZ-NBC at 7:30. If one should tune each and every one of the serial sketches available on NBC and CBS chains alone on Tuesdays he would find forty-nine of them available. And if he tried to get all of them he would need three radio sets at times, for at times each chain is broadcasting a sketch.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins' press conference at 4:30 goes on the air via the MBS-Chain.

SYNOPSIS
SARAH ANNE MELTON, minister's daughter and close friend of JUDITH DRAKE, daughter of luxury, had a childhood romance with JACK COURTNEY, who attains sudden fame by flying the Pacific.

CHAPTER THREE
BING WELLS' mocking voice took a long time to answer Sarah Anne's question. "What did you tell Jack?" she repeated.

"I mentioned your name as being a high school heart. That was enough. The reporter could find out what he needed from the young aviator. Why be so angry? I was giving you plenty of good, free publicity."

"You've never gone around dispensing sweetness and light. I'm afraid I don't understand it at all," Sarah Anne mused.

"Don't you want to see yourself in the movies, the newsreel, the rotogravures?" Sarah Anne did not answer. If she had belonged there, if that pin which was tucked under a golden founce on her party frock held continued meaning, she would have smiled gladly, from any page, any screen. But to hold on to something not freely given was to lose it forever. Love was like mercury. When you chased it, it rolled away. But if you cherished it, it did not touch it, it might stay.

And yet this man with his false ideals of help had held Judith's interest for the nine months he had been in town. She wondered why. Judith was so straightforward, so honest, so sincere.

"Do you want something?" Sarah Anne asked, and her lips smiled a little. "When people dispense compliments and favors they're really doing."

"You're a smart girl. You know what Judith's father's factory makes, don't you?"

"Some kind of parts used in aviation, in ships. I don't know much about it."

"Right! You don't need to know much about it. I sit at a desk and try to help with promotion, you know. There's a contest on now, with a prize of $1,000 for the best testimonial as to the durability of—"

Sarah Anne was beginning to see a light. Faint and far-away. A testimonial, a girl whose favor he was trying to court by giving her a glamorous set-up.

The young man shrugged his thin shoulders, lighted a cigaret, sank back in his seat.

"The ship Courtney flew carried our engine. I checked on that. He probably would tell me to go take a nose dive if I asked for a testimonial, but if you suggested it, he might think it was a good stunt to boost his old home town's products."

Sarah Anne shook her head, but she wasn't annoyed so much as bored. She wanted to dump this man into the darkness and go down the winding road to the small city alone.

"Friendship and business don't mix, Bing. What good would it do me? I'd lose Jack's admiration, if he ever did remember me, which he probably didn't. Sorry, Mister Bing Wells, but you and I play different rules."

"Have it your way, honey. I thought I saw a glimmer of sense in your blue eyes—"

"Sorry. Your brown eyes. I'll go to bat on my own. Now if you'll stop at this corner I live two blocks down."

Sarah Anne stopped the car and Bing climbed out. He stood for a moment with his hand on the door and said: "Really love the flying guy, don't you? I figured you would go for the build-up. My mistake."

Riding along alone, Sarah Anne felt that something beautiful had been desecrated. Why didn't people

"I'm waiting," said Judith. "What did the young gallant want?"

look after their own lives? But that was what Bing was trying to do. He wanted that prize. Probably to show Judith he could win.

Judith was sitting in the parsonage swing, her dull gold frock a yellowish blur in the warm corner behind the honeysuckle vines. "Hurry, Sally Anne, I'm waiting," she called. "What did the young gallant want?"

"One thousand dollars, but I thought you were in the clouds." She sat down on a large cushion on the top of the veranda.

"You mean he asked for it?" There was no mistaking the incredulity in the girl's voice.

"Only indirectly." She explained about the testimonial. It was too bad to hurt Judith, but some day she had to wake up.

"I knew there was mischief afoot. So that's it. The lad wanted to borrow from me, so your pretty theory of making a grand impression on my slow-functioning consciousness is all wrong. He needs money in a hurry for something or other. I was so slow in seeing through him." She stretched her long brown arms. "He was like a dog or a child, sort of amusing to have around. But you said he wants a statement from Jack."

"Jack has a wise adviser, I imagine, hasn't he? And anyway, the endorsement's legal. So don't worry."

"That's just it. It isn't legal and Jack wouldn't know he was out of order. Before we could turn around our company would have the nicest lawsuit of its turbulent life. This is strictly confidential, of course." She stood up and held out her hand. "Come on, let's run. I'll explain as we go."

But not until they stood crowded close together in the telephone booth at the nearest drugstore, did Sarah Anne know what it was all about or whom Judy was calling.

Then the manufacturer's daughter asked for San Francisco. "Jack Courtney, please. Hunt, won't you, tell you locate him?"

Waiting for the bell to ring, she fanned her flushed face with the slim telephone directory and tried to make the matter clear to Sarah Anne. "The factory's been doing a lot of navy work and had to let out some orders, and the company which made Jack's engine got one of them. See how it looks? Just as though we're taking full credit. And how that concern would love to sue us! So, if we reach Jack before that worm does..." The bell any other grasses present and the soil itself will not be productive for sometime after such treatment.

If Sodium Chloride is used in the spring to kill out Quack-Grass, grass can then be sown in the fall, or if the treatment is given in the fall then grass seed can be sown the following spring.

In established lawns Quack-Grass can be smothered out by covering with tar paper for two or three months. It also can be pulled out by hand, but one must be sure to get all the roots.

HELP TO STAMP OUT WHOOPING COUGH

That Plague of Children that Takes too much Toll...

Whooping cough is a rack-ing, destructive and sometimes fatal, acute infectious disease, all too often looked upon as one "a child must have." Do not treat whooping cough lightly—it is serious for very young children, and most unpleasant and painful, in any case.

Medical Science has discovered a vaccine for this disease that often prevents a child contracting the disease. After whooping cough has developed, this vaccine will often cure in a week or two, and save weeks of suffering, and much mental anguish and broken rest for parents. Treatment is inexpensive, harmless, and attended by very little pain. Ask your doctor about it.

Radio Will Carry Will Rogers Event

Statue Presentation Ceremonies Will Be on Air at 3 p. m.

Associated Press Radio Editor
New York, June 5.—Presentation ceremonies for the Will Rogers memorial statue in rotunda of the capitol at Washington will be broadcast on two networks, WJZ-NBC and the MBS-Chain at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky will accept the statue for the government and Gov. L. C. Phillips of Oklahoma will participate in the ceremonies with others.

Talk by Murphy.
Attorney General Frank Murphy is to talk on "Youth in Tomorrow's World" when he participates in festivities commemorating the 95th anniversary of the founding of the Y. M. C. A. at the World's Fair. Broadcast will be by WOR-MBS at 8:30.

The William S. Paley amateur station award, which goes this time to Wilson E. Burgess of Westerly, R. I., will be made at a luncheon broadcast via WABC-CBS at 2. The award is the third annual.

Belle Baker, trouper of stage, screen and radio, will be the Bob Hope guest on WEAF-NBC at 9. Extra Answers. Clifton Radman, in his Information Please, is presenting as extra answers H. I. Phillips, New York Sun columnist, and the return of Deems Taylor for WJZ-NBC at 7:30. If one should tune each and every one of the serial sketches available on NBC and CBS chains alone on Tuesdays he would find forty-nine of them available. And if he tried to get all of them he would need three radio sets at times, for at times each chain is broadcasting a sketch.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins' press conference at 4:30 goes on the air via the MBS-Chain.

By HELEN WELSHIMER

SYNOPSIS
SARAH ANNE MELTON, minister's daughter and close friend of JUDITH DRAKE, daughter of luxury, had a childhood romance with JACK COURTNEY, who attains sudden fame by flying the Pacific.

CHAPTER THREE
BING WELLS' mocking voice took a long time to answer Sarah Anne's question. "What did you tell Jack?" she repeated.

"I mentioned your name as his high school heart. That was enough. The reporter could find out what he needed from the young aviator. Why be so angry? I was giving you plenty of good, free publicity."

"You've never gone around dispensing sweetness and light. I'm afraid I don't understand it at all," Sarah Anne mused. "Don't you want to see yourself in the movies, the newsreel, the rotogravures?"

Sarah Anne did not answer. If she had belonged there, if that film which was tucked under a golden founce on her party frock held continued meaning, she would have smiled gladly, from any page, any screen. But to hold on to something not freely given was to lose it forever. Love was like mercury. When you chased it, it rolled away. But if you cherished it, it did not touch it, it might stay.

And yet this man with his false deals of help had held Judith's interest for the nine months he had been in town. She wondered why. Judith was so straightforward, so honest, so sincere.

"Do you want something?" Sarah Anne asked, and her lips smiled a little. "When people dispense compliments and favors they generally do."

"You're a smart girl. You know what Judith's father's factory makes, don't you?" "Some kind of parts used in aviation, in ships. I don't know much about it."

"Right! You don't need to know much about it. I sit at a desk and try to help with promotion, you know. There's a contest on now, with a prize of $1,000 for the best testimonial as to the durability of—"

Sarah Anne was beginning to see a light. Faint and far-away. A testimonial, a girl whose favor he was trying to court by giving her a glamorous set-up.

The young man shrugged his thin shoulders, lighted a cigaret, sank back in his seat.

"The ship Courtney flew carried our engine. I checked on that. He probably would tell me to go take a nose dive if I asked for a testimonial but, if you suggested it, he might think it was a good stunt to boost his old home town's products."

Sarah Anne shook her head, but she wasn't annoyed so much as bored. She wanted to dump this man into the darkness and go down the winding road to the small city alone.

"Friendship and business don't mix. Besides, what good would it do me? I'd lose Jack's admiration, if he ever did remember me, which he probably didn't. Sorry, Mister Bing Wells, but you and I play different rules."

"Have it your way, honey. I thought I saw a glimmer of sense in your blue eyes—"

"Brown."

"Sorry. Your brown eyes, I'm going to bat on my own. Now if you'll stop at this corner I live two blocks down."

Sarah Anne stopped the car and Bing climbed out. He stood for a moment with his hand on the door and said: "Really love the flying guy, don't you? I figured you would go for the build-up. My mistake."

Riding alone, Sarah Anne felt that something beautiful had been desecrated. Why didn't people

Judith was sitting in the paragon swing, her dull gold frock a yellowish blur in the warm corner behind the honeysuckle vines.

"Hurry, Sally Anne, I'm waiting," she called. "What did the young gallant want?"

"One thousand dollars, but I thought you were in the clouds." She sat down on a large cushion on the top of the veranda.

"You mean he asked for it?" There was no mistaking the incredulity in the girl's voice.

"Only indirectly." She explained about the testimonial. It was too bad to hurt Judith, but some day she had to wake up.

"I knew there was mischief afoot. So that's it. The lad wanted to borrow from me, so your pretty theory of making a grand impression on my slow-functioning consciousness is all wrong. He needs money in a hurry for something or other. I was so slow in seeing through him." She stretched her long brown arms. "He was like a dog or a child, sort of amusing to have around. But you said he wants a statement from Jack."

"Jack has a wise adviser, I imagine, hasn't he? And anyway, the endorsement's legal. So don't worry."

"That's just it. It isn't legal and Jack wouldn't know he was out of order. Before we could turn around our company would have the nicest lawsuit of its turbulent life. This is strictly confidential, of course." She stood up and held out her hand. "Come on, let's run. I'll explain as we go."

But not until they stood crowded close together in the telephone booth at the nearest drugstore, did Sarah Anne know what it was all about or whom Judy was calling.

Then the manufacturer's daughter asked for San Francisco. "Jack Courtney, please. Hunt, won't you, till you locate him?"

Waiting for the bell to ring, she fanned her flushed face with the slim telephone directory and tried to make the matter clear to Sarah Anne. "The factory's been doing a lot of navy work and had to let out some orders, and the company which made Jack's engine got one of them. See how it looks? Just as though we're taking full credit. ## FAIR GOING

BY DIONIS GEPPERT

The Consumers Building containing the focal exhibit of the Production and Distribution zone (Zone 6) at the New York World's Fair, is decorated with seven large murals by Bradford. The focal exhibit, titled "This New World of Power," depicts the problems of production, distribution and consumption.

The Plaza of Light is the center of some of the most interesting exhibits of this zone. Here are found the electric companies. The Consolidated Edison Company is fronted by a long wall along which a series of fountains spray upward. At night this curtain of water is flood-lighted. Within this building is an exhibit titled the "City of Light." Here an entire room becomes the city of New York in miniature. The importance of the use of electricity is explained and demonstrated in this city. We see New York at night with its million lighted skyscrapers and buildings—offices, operating rooms, machines generated by electricity. Morning appears followed by an afternoon storm and we see the additional power needed from the various power houses—even to the little subway trains running along underground tracks.

Time Revolves Backward
Also on the Plaza of Light we find the Electric Utility building sponsored by 175 electric companies. The theme exhibit is titled "Forward March of America." Here time revolves backward to 1892, and we find ourselves walking down a cobblestone street looking into tiny shops dimly lighted with gas lamps. We pass on through streets of time watching the progress and change made through the discovery of the electric light, finally coming through glass doors to the world of 1940 with its modern shop windows. One display of much interest is that by Van Pelt which shows an elaborate Kovich and Ladie mounted upon richly embroidered satin, from the Russian imperial palaces. An electric fountain—a spectacular symphony of light, sound and color—climaxes the display.

Still on the Plaza of Light, is the General Electric building. In the exhibit hall is seen a large mural by Rockwell Kent depicting the development of electricity throughout the ages. Also is a complete television studio and a 2700-year-old mummy from the Chicago Museum. In this same building are two main shows: "Man Made Lightning"—a shower of light and color produced by ten million volts flashing over a thirty foot arc; and the "House of Magic"—great whirling discs of light, a metal shadow carpet floating in space, a sun-motor driven by sunlight, a shadow that comes and goes and goes independently of the person who casts it.

Many Electrical Devices

number of electrical machines to be operated by the public which shows all sorts of unusual experiments with electricity. There is an eight-foot metal robot, which talks, counts on its fingers and even smokes a cigarette.

The Time Capsule can be seen at the entrance of the Westinghouse building. A person can look down into the ground fifty feet through a shaft and see where is placed the long bullet-shaped capsule, which is to be opened 5,000 years hence. A reproduction of this capsule is on display, packed with every sort of article depicting our modern times, i. e. micro-films of magazines and books, articles of apparel, cigarettes, cosmetics and so on.

Other buildings of interest in this zone include the Dupont building, where a number of chemists demonstrate and explain many interesting experiments such as soap making, cellophane manufacture, a candy wrapping machine, man-made rubber, and (good news for the ladies) a non-run silk stocking which is to be put on the commercial market.

Glass of All Kinds
At Glass Inc., experts are at work continually firing, blowing and shaping hot glass into various bowls, vases and the like. Here also the visitor can view the process of spun glass.

In the Hall of Pharmacy is located the "Soda Fountain of the Future."

Petroleum, Inc. is a huge illuminated blue triangular building which exhibits the story of petroleum. Outside is found a huge oil derrick in actual operation. Latest reports are that slow progress is being made here, due to striking granite.

At the Meals building is an interesting display on the story of copper. You can have your hair measured by a special machine in the Timkin Co. display. Bethlehem Steel has an interesting exhibit of "How Steel Is Made."

In the Science and Education building is located the focal exhibit on Science and Education. This exhibit is sponsored by the Fair corporation and the American Association for Adult Education. In the auditorium there are motion pictures, lectures and forums.

Retail Clerks Offered
Holiday Monday, July 3

Retail merchants of the city yesterday proffered a holiday to their sales people with no reduction in pay.

The holiday is to be given Monday, July 3, on which day the stores of merchants belonging to the Mercantile Bureau of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce will be closed.

In exchange, the sales workers are to work extra Friday evening preceding when the stores will remain open until 9 o'clock, as on Saturday night in the usual schedule.

The offer is contingent upon acceptance by the workers, but it was stated yesterday that they were expected to "jump at the chance" of exchanging the Friday night work for the full holiday inasmuch as it represented a virtual present of half a day and also gave opportunity of extending the Fourth of July holiday period into a three-day vacation.

Deaths
Mrs. Charles W. Couthard
Mrs. Louise H. Couthard, wife of Charles W. Couthard, died yesterday morning at her home, 720 Pine place. She was 63.

Mrs. Couthard was a native of Elkins, W. Va. She was a daughter of the late Andrew and Margaret Courtney Fansler. She had been married twice.

Surviving, besides her husband, are two sons, Bernard and Bruce Crothers, by her first husband; six daughters, Mrs. Charles E. Smelser, Mrs. B. G. Huff, Mrs. Roy VanMeter, Mrs. M. G. Hoff, Mrs. B. Mayhew, and Mrs. Charles Keplinger, all of Cumberland; a brother, G. C. Fansler, of Thomas, W. Va., and one sister, Mrs. Willis Woods, of Long, Md.

The body will remain at Stein's chapel.

Mrs. George Compton
Mrs. Rita Moran Compton, wife of George Compton, of Detroit, and a sister of Mrs. Mary E. Baker, 155 Bedford street, died Saturday in Detroit. She was 29.

The body was taken yesterday morning to the home of her father, Daniel J. Moran, in Thomas, W. Va., for burial.

Surviving, besides her father, husband and sister, are two brothers, Michael Moran, of Detroit, and Daniel J. Moran, Jr., of Thomas, and two other sisters, Mrs. St. Caplinger, of Elkins, W. Va., and Mrs. Jack Thompson, of Detroit.

Girls Sleep in Barn, Then Get Jail Beds

Two youths and two young runaway girls, grimy and travel-worn, slept in the county jail last night after spending Sunday night in a barn near here.

State Trooper Carl G. Storn booked the quartette for investigation after picking them up on U. S. Route 40 in the Narrows yesterday morning as they sought to hitchhike to Uniontown, Pa. They will be held here pending word from Virginia authorities, Storn said.

The girls gave their names as Nellie Donovan, 16 of Harrisonburg, Va., and Ethel Dickerson, 17, of Dayton, Va. The men were booked as William Burgess, 19, of Danville, Va., and William Taylor, 26, who said he had no home.

Trooper Storn said the men told him they had been connected with a show and left it with the girls when it moved from Harrisonburg to Buchanan, Va. They left Harrisonburg Friday, the officer said he was told.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, June 3 (AP) — Ralph Guldahl is a 6 to 1 shot to win a third consecutive National Open golf championship at Philadelphia this week, but he is not the shortest priced favorite on the records of Jack Doyle, Broadway betting commissioner.

"Bobby Jones was a 4 to 1 choice when he was making his grand slam in 1930," Doyle recalls. "And Gene Sarazen also was 4 to 1 when he won at Fresh Meadow. That is, Sarazen was 4 to 1 when the tournament started."

"However, he had been playing so poorly the price dropped to 20 to 1 the last day. Nobody gave him a chance. Then, on the ninth hole of the morning round of the last day he dropped a deuce, and he was off to the races. He played the last 28 holes in an even 100 strokes."

Sam Snead and Henry Picard are second choices in Doyle's book, each at 8 to 1. Behind them, at 12 to 1, are Ed Dudley, Byron Nelson, Dick Metz, Craig Wood, Harry Cooper and Ben Hogan. Others are scattered down the line, although Doyle hastens to add that any of them might win.

"There are about 165 men out there gunning for the title," he explains. "Each can do with his clubs what any other can do, except for minor exceptions, like Snead's driving, which few can match. So when it comes to the stretch, the last nine or 18 holes when the payoff looms, it becomes a question of individual temperament, of nerve control."

"That's when Guldahl is outstanding. He is nerveless in the clutch."

Doyle takes age and past-performance into consideration when making the odds.

"For instance, fellows like Johnny Revolta and Horton Smith and many others might win, but the fact is that they never have, and each passing year lessens their chances."

"Take Harry Cooper, for instance. Cooper won the Goodall match play tournament, defeating a fine field. The fans will say: 'Cooper is hot,' and go out on the limb on him."

"Personally, I think that tournament took a lot out of Cooper and his chances aren't as good as they would have been otherwise. He's getting old in a golf sense, and he's a high strung fellow. He was curling a little in the home stretch of that tournament and just barely won out."

Hubby 'Doesn't Bother' With Marriage Duties; Wife Wins Divorce

A woman who said her husband "did not want to bother with the responsibilities of married life" has been granted an absolute divorce in Circuit Court.

Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan signed a decree granting Mrs. Margaret Weatherwax Roberts her freedom from William C. Roberts Jr. and awarding her the custody of their small son.

The 26-year-old wife, represented by Attorney Edward J. Ryan, told a court examiner that she and Roberts were married at Elkton March 1, 1935, and that her husband subsequently "refused to live with me."

Meanwhile, Mrs. Dorothy Ethel Eyer filed suit for a partial divorce from Albert Theodore Eyer, charging desertion and cruelty.

The bill of complaint, docketed by Attorney William S. Jenkins, shows that the couple were married July 11, 1935, and lived together here and in Probstburg until April 22 of this year, when Eyer allegedly deserted his wife.

Eyer treated his wife "with great cruelty, harshness, and brutality," the suit says, describing his conduct as "intolerable."

FAIR GOING

BY DIONIS GEPPERT

The Consumers Building containing the focal exhibit of the Production and Distribution zone (Zone 6) at the New York World's Fair, is decorated with seven large murals by Bradford. The focal exhibit, titled, "This New World of Power," depicts the problems of production, distribution and consumption.

The Plaza of Light is the center of some of the most interesting exhibits of this zone. Here are found the electric companies. The Consolidated Edison Company is fronted by a long wall along which a series of fountains spray upward. At night this curtain of water is flood-lighted. Within this building is an exhibit titled "City of Light." Here an entire room becomes the city of New York in miniature. The importance of the use of electricity is explained and demonstrated in this city. We see New York at night with its million lighted skyscrapers and buildings—offices, operating rooms, machines generated by electricity. Morning appears followed by an afternoon storm and we see the various power houses—even to the little subway trains running along underground tracks.

Time Revolves Backward Also on the Plaza of Light we find the Electric Utility building sponsored by 175 electric companies. The theme exhibit is titled "Forward March of America." Here time revolves backward to 1892, and we find ourselves walking down a cobble-stone street looking into tiny shops dimly lighted with gas lamps.

We pass on through streets of time watching the progress and change made through the discovery of the electric light, finally coming through glass doors to the world of 1940 with its modern shop windows. One display of much interest is that by Van Pelt which shows an elaborate Kovch and Ladie mounted upon richly embroidered satin, from the Russian imperial palaces. An electric fountain—a spectacular symphony of light, sound and color—climaxes the display.

Still on the Plaza of Light, is the General Electric building. In the exhibit hall is seen a large mural by Rockwell Kent depicting the development of electricity throughout the ages. Also is a complete television studio and a 2700-year-old mummy from the Chicago Museum. In this same building are two main shows: "Man Made Lightning"—a shower of light and color produced by ten million volts flashing over a thirty foot arc; and the "House of Magic"—great whirling discs of light, a metal shadow carpet floating in space, a sun-motor driven by sunlight, a shadow that comes and goes and goes independently of the person who casts it.

Many Electrical Devices The Westinghouse building on the Plaza of Light is another center of great interest for here is housed a Shield Expert Here Again E. J. Meinhardt, widely known expert of Chicago, will personally be in Washington, Pa., at the George Washington Hotel, Thursday only, June 8th, from 1 p. m. to 4 p. m. and 6 p. m. to 8 p. m. He will also be in Pittsburgh, Pa., at the William Penn Hotel, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, June 5th, 6th, and 7th. Same hours as above. Please note dates carefully.

MR. MEINHARDT says: The new Shield, which he recently invented, is a tremendous improvement, usually affecting immediate results. It strengthens the weakened muscles of the Opening—retaining the Rupture in 10 days on the average case, regardless of the size or location and no matter how hard you work or strain. It is waterproof, quickly removable and has no leg straps or cumbersome arrangements. (Positively no surgery or caustic burning injection treatments used.) Mr. Meinhardt has been coming here for 15 years.

Rupture (Hernia) can cause backache, constipation, nervousness, weakness, stomach pains—some times resulting in serious conditions. # Tom Bridges' Bout against Yanks

Tiger Ace First To "Whitewash" N.Y. This Year

Detroit Wins 3 to 0 as Greenberg and Higgins Hit Home Runs

Detroit, June 6 (AP)—Tommy Bridges was the toast of the American League today for he did what no other pitcher has been able to do this season—blank the Yanks. He did it with a sparkling four-pitch performance as the champions went down, 3-0 in the face of successive home run blasts by Hank Greenberg and Pinkie Higgins in the fourth inning.

The Yanks' four hits were all singles.

The fourth inning, which accounted for the Yanks' downfall, their eighth since the season started, out of 41 tries—came in this fashion:

Greenberg socked his twelfth homer of the season into the upper deck of the left field stands. Then Higgins promptly parked one in the lower deck of the center field stands. Fox singled, stole second and Rogell pumped a single over second to score him.

The loss was Monte Pearson's first of the season. He has won five.

It was Bridges' seventh victory of the season against one loss.

U. S. To Challenge For All-England Net Title

London, June 5 (AP)—The United States will challenge for the all-England tennis titles at Wimbledon with a team of ten players, headed by Bobby Riggs, the country's top ranking amateur from Chicago, and Alice Marble, San Francisco's national champion.

Entries for the June 26-July 8 championships closed today with between 350 and 400 players from virtually every nation seeking the titles. The Don Budge and Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, Budge has turned over to Mrs. Moody, in New York, said she did not feel her game was as good enough—shape to warrant playing at Wimbledon.

Galento Fawns On Louis, Exploding Enmity Legend

By JOHN LARDNER

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

New York, June 5.—It was pretty humiliating for Tony Galento, up in the ring, the night Lou Nova fought Max Baer.

For several weeks Galento had been calling Joe Louis a bum, and threatening to kick Joseph's brains out in the first round of their coming fight. On the night of the Baer-Nova fight, Galento and Louis were both called up to take a bow before the crowd. They stood together in the middle of the ring, and right then and there Antonio must have decided to protect his carcass to the best of his ability.

He shook Joe's hand some seven times, and when they returned to their ringside seats, he fawned upon the champion of the world with no little lack of dignity.

Makes Polite Conversation

"A couple of bumps up there, Hey, Joe?" said the bold Galento.

"Yeah," said Joseph Louis.

"We could lick 'em both, Hey, Joe?" said Tony.

"Yeah," said the champion.

"You and me are in a class above those mugs, Hey, Joe?" said the intrepid challenger.

"I guess so," said Joe, making no great effort to conceal a yawn.

"You and me are pals, Hey, Joe?" said Mr. Galento.

"Listen, boy," said Louis, pretty tired of the whole conversation by this time. "You are a bum, and those fellows up there are bums. Lemme alone for a while, will you? I want to watch this. Maybe I'll see you again before we fight, and then you can talk to me all you want to. Now go away."

And there, in front of several dozen witnesses, Anthony Galento exploded the carefully cultivated legend that he is Louis's sworn foe, asking nothing better than to beat the champion in the nose the first time he sees him, rules or no rules.

Tony kicked away the myth that he hates Joe's intestines, and has no fear of the dark destroyer. He ruined the story so painstakingly developed by the promoter of the next title fight, on June 28. Tony was so refined, genteel, and ingratiating, the first time he saw Louis, that he burned up the imminent ballyhoo as swiftly and surely as he did the cigar he clamped between his teeth that night.

Your correspondent does not wish to be a muckraker or a belittler, but here is a warning which you deserve to have delivered to your door: The Louis-Galento fight, for the heavyweight championship of the world, is of no more consequence than the Louis-Rogell fight, or the Louis-Lewis fight, or the dozen fights that Louis fought with such hand-picked stooges as Natie Brown, Charlie Retzlaff, Eddie Simms, and George Brescia.

Brown, Retzlaff, Simms, and Brescia would all have given Galento trouble, had they fought him squarely without rehearsal, as man to man. Galento belongs in the class. He will be beaten by Louis as surely as they were.

In short, this is the tip I must hand out if I wish to avoid deluding you: Don't go close to the Louis-Galento bout if you expect to see a fight. Don't listen to it on the radio if you expect to hear a fight. If you're curious, and in search of entertainment, as I am, listen to it, or see it. It will be short. Maybe it will be interesting.

A lot of guff will be circulated about this current battle of the century between now and the night it takes place. Don't believe anything you read, if it gives you the impression that the fight will be close. It will be valid, because Louis means to take no chances and waste no time. But it won't be close. It won't be a Dempsey-Firpo fight.

The heat of the moment has a tremendous effect upon us fight writers. We get feverish, because we have nothing else to do, and because any sort of training camp supplies legitimate color, and we have to write about something.

Galento is quite a character. His preparations will have to be reported. But before we go any further, remember this—the fight is strictly a question of the hammer and the nail, and Tony Galento is the nail.

Eyer Birds Score In Olney, Ill., Race

Birds from the loft of Charles Eyer captured the first three places in the sixth race of the old-bird series flown by the Allegheny Pigeon Racing Club yesterday from Olney, Ill., a distance of 502 miles.

The winner averaged 677.52 yards per minute while second place was a tie, two birds averaging 676.45 yards per minute. A pigeon owned by Brenneman was fourth with 676.09, a Cramer entry fifth with 676.08 and a Barker bird sixth with 673.45.

The fifth race of the series was from St. Louis, 615 miles, and was won by L. G. Trimmer's "Seneca," red check color, which averaged 688.29 yards per minute. Eyer clocked two birds for second and third with speeds of 667.93 and 580.89. Next Sunday's event will be another distance race from Olney, Illinois.

Walters Wins His Seventh Game as Reds Beat N.Y.

Cincinnati Wallops Giants 8 to 2 as Lombardi Hits Home Run

New York, June 5. (AP)—Stucky Walters won his seventh victory of the season today as he paced the league leading Cincinnati Reds to a clean-cut 8-2 victory over the Giants.

He allowed only seven hits.

The victory was the second straight over the Giants in the current series and was generally displeasing to a crowd of 7,297 who booed derisively as the Giants bowed.

A five-run rally in the sixth inning broke up the game and blasted Hal Schumacher from the mound. Linus Frey tripped with the bases full.

The game was tied 2-2 all going into the fifth. The Reds' two runs coming on Ernie Lombardi's tenth homer of the season in the fourth inning to score Frank McCormick, who had tripped.

Zeke Bonura made three of the losers seven hits.

West's Slugging Helps Boston Defeat Cards

Boston, June 5 (AP)—The home-run slugging of Max West, who connected for two circuit drives, and rookie Eddie Miller today enabled the Boston Bees to gain a 10-4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Miller's homer, whacked in the second inning, was the first of the 11 hits the Bees made off four Cardinal pitchers. West carried the left field stand in the fifth inning with two mates on base and found almost the same spot against Paul Dean in the eighth.

North End Merchants Down Shamrocks 11-7

The North End Merchants proved their right to league leadership last evening by playing heads up ball and taking advantage of all breaks won a 11 to 7 victory over the Shamrocks of the East End League.

Nave and Cumiskey shared hitting honors each making two safe blows. Sheetz pitched good ball for the Shamrocks but errors by his teammates caused his defeat.

Tonight at 6 o'clock North End Merchants will play Bowling Green at Bowling Green.

Punk Plug Picker

Alias Paddock Pete

Been dock' pretty fair of late in my job of pickin' plugs, in fact if I had of had any dough and knew where there was anybody to take my bets I'd a been a century or so ahead of this business.

Anyhow, speaking of business I notice a hoos named "Royal Business" running in the sixth at Charlestown today and it's going to be my business to get two smackers on his nose. I don't care who cashes in on this with me as long as I get mine. So long.

Saddle Strap Sam's Postscript to P.P.

Dear Paddock: "Celanese Kelly" got "cold feet" sitting in his reserved seat on the ground at the amateur fights last night. He refused to fight for you, and I'm resting on my laurels what with my fourth in a row on "PETER ARGO" yesterday.

Because I blew your horn elsewhere and because I, too, got jammed up at the fights then tried to scavenge the race results from all over the country side last night, I'm making this postscript short and sweet. Today I'm taking "Sandy Boot" in the fifth at Belmont and "Proph" in the fifth at Suffolk and if the price is short on them both, it'll still be sweet.

Saddle Strap Sam.

Saddle Strap Sam's Postscript to P.P.

Dear Paddock: "Celanese Kelly" got "cold feet" sitting in his reserved seat on the ground at the amateur fights last night. He refused to fight for you, and I'm resting on my laurels what with my fourth in a row on "PETER ARGO" yesterday.

Because I blew your horn elsewhere and because I, too, got jammed up at the fights then tried to scavenge the race results from all over the country side last night, I'm making this postscript short and sweet. Today I'm taking "Sandy Boot" in the fifth at Belmont and "Proph" in the fifth at Suffolk and if the price is short on them both, it'll still be sweet.

Saddle Strap Sam.

Good Crowd Sees Amateur Card at Ball Park

Slow Main Bout Decision Given To Homer Jackson

Slater Kayoes Norwood—Stewart and Newhouse Bout Steals Show

Despite a slow main bout, a crowd of over 1,000 persons turned out last night at Community Park to witness a seven-bout benefit fight program, 10 percent of the proceeds of which will be given the Keating Memorial Day Nursery. As a whole, however, the card was pleasing.

Memorial Gets $30.00

The Keating Memorial Day Nursery received $30.00 from the amateur fight card last night. Promoter William Niland adding to the $25.37 net percent gross (after federal and A. A. U. tax were deducted) to make the amount the even $30.00.

Homer Jackson, Frostburg South Atlantic Association A. A. U. mid-weight champion exchanged punches with Vince Browning, one of three fighters from the Connellsville (Pa.) Recreation Center on the card, in the ballyhooed featured attraction of the evening. The scuffle was definitely a lot slower than any of the other six.

Only one knockout was recorded. That was the match between Billy Norwood of Cumberland and "Chuck" Slater of the C. R. C. Norwood took the count in a minute and 25 seconds of the first round.

Lots of Action
The tussle between Billy Lynch and Ferdinand Franchi, both of Cumberland; Don Boot of Eckhart and Billy Corbin, C. R. C. mauler; and Tony Lisanti, South End fighter, and Ralph Immel, Connellsville lad who holds the Allegheny Mountain Association A. A. U. junior 126-pound title, were all marked by lots of action. Lynch was declared the winner over Franchi in a close battle; Immel piled up points early to defeat Lisanti, and Corbin fought off the charges of Boot to win a decision.

The Harry Stewart-George Newhouse bout was the lid lifter. Both boys were rugged and managed to throw plenty of leather. Stewart floored Newhouse three times, once in each round but never for a count. Stewart copped all three rounds.

The second event was the K. O. job between Norwood and Slater. Both waited around the ring as the sound started but after a lapse of a little more than a minute, Slater began to pour punches from all sides and dropped Norwood in a corner under a barrage of lefts and rights. Norwood remained motionless as Referee Jack Rorick tolled the old "dipsy doodle" count.

Lynch was credited with all three rounds in his engagement with Franchi but all were by narrow margins. Billy used a right uppercut to good advantage throughout the fight and started blood trickling from Franchi's nose in the second round. Franchi, however, ducked plenty of potential swings and was throwing punches as the bout ended.

Lisanti Loses to Immel
The John Root-Robinette affair was the fourth on Niland's ticket. This particular match was featured by occasional outbursts of swinging by both fighters, following a first round which resembled swaying to the "Beer Barrel Polka" Robinette was the victor.

Don Boot conceded Billy Corbin of Greenspring three pounds in weight and a few inches in height in the fifth scramble but put in a "whale" of a fight before bowing. Boot, a stocky-built youngster, took a lot of hard wallops from Corbin and landed numerous times with nice counter attacks. The third session was a toe-to-toe exhibition that had the fans yelling.

In the semi-final tilt Tony Lisanti waited too long to start to work on Ralph Immel and dropped a close decision. Lisanti fought his best in the final round but Immel piled up enough points in the first two chapters to win handily. Immel's most effective blow was a left jab.

The most damage done in the final and feature bout was the opening of Browning's left eye by Jackson in the first round. Jackson worked on the eye in the succeeding two sessions and displayed at times a nice left hook, but frequent clinches spoiled what should have been the climax of the card.

Amateur Arrangements
There were the usual drawbacks to the usual amateur arrangements. The delay between early bouts was caused by lack of bandage to cover the participants' hands; a hurried scamper to a down-town drug store being necessary before the second bout could be put on after the conclusion of the curtain-raiser.

There was also a lack of ringside seats with about 170 on hand instead of the 1,000 for which Promoter Niland announced, he "had made arrangements." As a result many would-be ringsiders had to stand or take seats in the grandstand.

Transpacific passengers on the clipper transport planes divide as follows: traveling for pleasure, 53 per cent; on business, 42 per cent; emergency and other reasons, 5 per cent.

Phillies Defeat Cubs By Score of 8 to 7

Philadelphia, June 5.—The Phillies laced Larry French, Charlie Root and Gene Lillard for 13 hits to defeat the Cubs here today by the score of 8-7.

Kirby Higby, former Cub, started for the Phillies but was yanked in the eighth after allowing eight hits, walking five and hitting a batsman. Hugh Mulcahy replaced him.

French was knocked out of the box and charged with his first defeat after four straight victories. Dizzy Dean pitched the Cubs' half of the eighth and didn't allow a hit.

And "WHAT DID PADDOCK PETE DO?"

One thousand, four hundred and 92 (or was that the year Columbus landed in America?) people have asked the question "What Did Paddock Pete Do?" and since there's nothing much doing we hustle to answer in the interim.

Since April 8 (we couldn't check beyond that) Paddock Pete's Selections at a $2 flat bet to win made a net profit of $80! That's figuring parlays where a horse ran out causing a total loss, no matter what the other plug did. . . and, of course, all horses were played where the photograph decided whether it won by a nose or lost by a whisker. . . TO WIN!

Pete's not bragging. . . but for the boys . . . and girls . . . who wondered, we waded through the files and found that Pete's not so bad as he's been cracked up to be. . . if he's cracked at all!

We rather like the idea that he had long shot winners on the nose . . . rather than 3 to 5 shots being played in the second and show holes . . . as our "big time" brethren blow about.

The reason we didn't check beyond April Fool's Day is because there's an old saying "What Fools We Mortals Are!" . . . and the guy who cracked that one lived back in the days before bangtails. . . so he couldn't have been referring to race horse followers . . . at least not to them alone!

Billy Conn Held Possible Threat To Louis' Crown

Grantland Rice Says Pittsburgher Lacks Weight but Loves to Fight

Light-Heavy, However, Could Build Up Body by Six-Month Layoff

By GRANTLAND RICE
New York.—The glumest spectator at the Nova-Baer fight must have been Joe Louis. Before the fight Louis and Tony Galento were introduced and everybody laughed. Then came the fight, the complete obliteration of Baer and the confirmation of a rather general suspicion that, while Nova may be ready for Louis some day, he isn't ready for him now.

Galento a laughing stock—Baer gone—Nova a year or so away—the outlook isn't bright for a rich harvest of gold for the champion within the next few months. The Galento fight may draw as a novelty act. If Nova is projected into a September match with Louis—even though he doesn't rate it—the bout may pull a few koicks into the till. But the million-dollar gate is a long way off again—and with a million-dollar fighter at the head of the heavyweight division.

There is, of course, Bob Pastor. Pastor once fought ten rounds with Louis, outwitted him, eluded him and, at the time, did greater damage to his reputation than Max Schmeling did when he knocked him out. Since then, however, Louis has come on amazingly and Pastor while winning his fights, has failed to impress anybody as a dangerous opponent for the Bomber. It is doubtful if he could beat Nova—although that would be a good match.

Meanwhile, introducing Louis and Galento the other night seemed to be a tactical error. The sight of the two of them together high-spotted the tremendous edge that the champion will have when they move out of their corners on the night of June 28—and impressed the onlookers all over again with the idea that the squat Italian, for all his ruggedness and gameness will have but the faintest chance to win when Louis begins to throw those leather grenades in his direction.

Galento Called The Turn

But if Tony lacks something as a contender for the title he ranks well as a prophet.

I ran into him and Joe Jacobs at Nova's training camp and observed that a better match than Nova and Baer would have been Galento and Baer.

"That's right," said Joe, "and I offered Baer $50,000 for his end for a fight under Mugsy Taylor's promotion in Philadelphia but he wouldn't take it."

"He took the Nova fight instead," Tony said. "He wanted no part of me and took Nova because he thought Lou would be a soft touch for him. But you wait and see. Nova won't be any softer for him than I would have been. He can't hit as hard as I can but he hits oftener."

The prediction was practically perfect. Nova met Baer in the center of the ring in the first round and slugged it out with him, taking all Max's heaviest fire, which must have been a shock to Max. He fought toe-to-toe with him for seven rounds and then, switching to a more skillful offense, pounded him out of the picture in the eleventh round.

Nova, as Galento said, doesn't hit as hard as he does but he does hit more often. If he carried Galento's punch he would have flattened Baer—but he hit Max often enough to knock his face out of shape, seldom missing as he poured punches at him through the last three rounds.

Conn Among Light Heavies

Billy Conn's impending clash with Melio Bettina will live up to the light heavyweight class, especially if Conn wins. The nice looking kid from Pittsburgh has caught on with the fight crowds and would be a popular champion.

Here—though this is a long range view—may be the fellow who some day will meet Louis on equal terms—or better. He is tall, rangy, has a good left hand, loves to fight and is thoroughly game. Right now he lacks the weight, the ruggedness and the punch to combat Louis. But he is only twenty-one years old and growing. He has two or three years in which to grow into a shot at the heavyweight title—and by that time Louis may have been slowed down at least a little.

Certainly, Conn has more natural equipment than Nova. If he has Nova's determination he can do a lot with it. It might not be a bad idea for him—whether he wins or loses against Bettina—to lay off active campaigning for six months and go into the woods or to the mountains to harden himself and build himself up for bigger game.

Gene Tunney was just about Conn's size when he entered seriously on the business of fitting himself for a crack at Jack Dempsey. His first move in this direction was to build up his body, strengthen his hands and do just enough boxing to keep his eyes and his punches sharp. It was a long, hard grind and a less determined young man might have abandoned

Sportmanship Banquet Held At Frostburg

Third Annual Dinner for Athletes of State Teachers College

Frostburg, June 5.—The Third Annual Sportsmanship dinner in honor of the men athletes of State Teachers College was held here this evening with Prof. John L. Dunkle, president of the college presiding.

Dr. Albert Cook, Frostburg, made the principal address whose subject related to the spirit of unselfishness in athletics and the faculty of making quick and correct decisions.

Awards to individual players were made by Coach George Carrington, who in presenting them made brief reference to the athletic accomplishments of each boy and in many instances pointed out his weakness as well as his strong points.

Listed as accomplishments of which the athletic teams were particularly proud were:

Basketball—Victories over Potomac State, Western Maryland, St. Francis and Towson Teachers College.

Baseball—Victories over Mt. St. Marys and Towson Teachers College.

Carrington said "as much as we were elated over those victories the most satisfactory result of the season in all three sports was the high degree of sportsmanship displayed by members of the team."

At the conclusion of Carrington's presentation of awards Burns Stanley, member of the student body was introduced and in a brief talk praised Coach Carrington for his splendid record, not only as a coach but as a companion of the boys during the season and said he presented an example unparalleled in the experience of the boys. The coach was presented a pen and pencil set which he acknowledged with a few well chosen words.

The banquet was served by the girls of the college and was attended by seven persons including members of the various teams, faculty members, Frostburg business men and the following coaches: John D. Leatherman, Hancock; James House, Flinstone; William Grimm and principal; Frank Getty, Grantville high school.

Letter Awards

Three letter men: (soccer, basketball, baseball)—Joseph Wagner, Louis Connor, John Meyers, John Thomas, Leo Rice, William Thomas.

Two letter men—Fred Sacco (soccer, baseball); Marvin Bell, (basketball, baseball); Harold Conrad, (soccer, baseball); Max Nordeck, (soccer basketball).

One letter man—Michael Byrnes, (baseball); Lionel Middleton, (baseball); Jack Thomas, (baseball); Charles Morgan, (soccer); James Peters, (soccer); Hopwood Wood-dell (soccer); William Shuff, (soccer); Delbert Clark, (basketball); Burns Stanley, (manager of basketball); Peter Kreigh (manager of baseball); Charles Wilt, (manager of soccer); Robert Browning, (soccer); Delbert Gnezy, (soccer).

Bi-State Umpires To Meet Tomorrow

An important meeting of the Bi-State Baseball League umpires' staff will be held at the Central Y.M.C.A. here tomorrow night at 8:30. Chief-of-Staff John J. "Bob" Cavanaugh emphasized that all umpires must attend Wednesday's session in order to hold their places on the staff. Several clubs have recommended other prospects for assignments and these men will be given trials if they report Wednesday for instructions.

It somewhere along the way but Gene stuck—and reaped a rich reward for his toil in his fights with Dempsey.

Conn, up to now, seems to lack some of the earnestness of a Tunney—or a Nova. But the situation should appeal to him. No one in the upper heavyweight bracket stands much of a chance with Louis now. If some one is going to beat Louis in the next couple of years—well, his future looks brighter than that of anyone else. (Release by North American Newspaper Alliance)

Stocks Decline Slightly in Dull Session of the New York Exchange

Only a Few Issues Manage to Close the Day with an Advance

New York, June 5 (AP)—The stock market cooled its heels on a generally trendless range today in one of the slowest sessions of the past year.

Fractional declines predominated throughout the greater part of the proceedings but a number of issues managed to edge up a trifle at the last.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at 47.3. Transfers totaled 349,470 shares against 397,040 Friday.

Steels, down most of the time, steadied before the close when the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated this week's operations up 2 points at 54.2 per cent of capacity, the best level in about two months.

General Motors and Chrysler were unchanged on the Detroit continued as a restraining factor for the motor group. In addition, a walk-out at the Canton, Ohio, plants of the Hercules Motor Corp. was none too inspiring marketwise.

Fractionally lower in the curb were Electric Bond & Share, Niagara Hudson Power Consolidated Copper and Lockwood, Columbia Oil & Gas edged higher.

Todd Shipyard's tumbled 4 1/2 on small sales. Turnover of 74,000 shares compared with 80,000 Friday.

Chicago Grain Prices

Chicago, June 5 (AP)—Wheat values tumbled 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 cents today to the lowest level in almost two weeks in the sharpest decline the market has had since the rise generated by corn deterioration began a month ago and a half ago.

Closing prices out the value of summer delivery contracts below 76 cents, July wheat was quoted at 75 1/2, and September 75 1/4, at the lowest point of the session. Other grains also worked with wheat, corn closing 3 1/2 down, July 35 1/4, September 35 1/4; oats 1 1/2 lower; rye 1 1/4 off and laid unchanged to 3 lower.

Municipal Elections in Many West Virginia Towns Today

Woman Officials At Friendly Not To Be Re-elected

All-Woman Government for Last Two Years on Way Out

Charleston, W. Va., June 5 (AP)—The mayor of Friendly went out of town to do some shopping today, which to some indicated the all-woman government in that Ohio river village is ready to step out.

Mrs. Stella Eddy, 48-year-old mayor of the Tyler county village since 1937, was unavailable for comment but it seemed most probable a man will head the government.

Friendly, community of 200 residents, will hold its biennial election tomorrow, along with 132 other West Virginia small towns.

Because most of the women went to commencement exercises instead of to nominating conventions, the men took charge. Therefore, John Fisher is running for mayor on the Citizens ticket and John Haight is the Community party nominee.

May Write in Names

There was some small talk of a "write-in" to keep the women in power but it didn't look today as if it would go through.

Mrs. Elsie Rustenmeyer, recorder-treasurer of Friendly, is running for re-election and she was non-committal.

Her only comment was, "wait until Tuesday."

Over at Webster Springs, in the center of the state, Juanita Detamore, 24-year-old waitress, campaigned against three men for the job of mayor.

Miss Detamore is running on a platform of down with parking meters and the town's curfew law.

Mayor Kenneth White declared, however, he is certain of re-election.

Most of the smaller communities of the state chose their officials on the same day every two years, but they are also joined by some of the larger towns.

Many Towns Will Elect

Among the bigger communities planning elections are Morgantown, Buckhannon, Glenview, Richmond, Summersville, Kingwood, Moundsville, Princeton, Athens, Iaeger, Beverly, Fayetteville, Alderson, Rainelle, Harpers Ferry, Keyser, Romney, Petersburg, Wayne, Barboursville, Lewisburg, Roncove, Sutton, Middlebourne and Bethany.

Other towns to elect officials are Burnsville, Cowen, Flemington, Cassaway, Jane Lew, Smithfield, West Union, Rowlesburg, Reedsville, Tunnelton, Terra Alta, War, Durbin, Huttonsville, Fairview, Farmington, Hudred, Monongah, Riverside, Worthington, Rainelle, Union, Davis, Hendricks, Fort Gay, Kernit, Clay, Glendenin, Camden-on-Gauley, Madison, Ripley, White Sulphur Springs, Ravenswood, Gilbert, Matewan, Grantsville and Reedy.

Vogtman To Speak

On World's Fair

Harry R. Vogtman, member of the faculty of Fort Hill high school of Cumberland, will give illustrated talks on "How to see the New York World's Fair on limited budget" at several high schools in Western Maryland this week. He gave his first talk at Bruce high in Westernport last night.

His schedule for the week follows:

Barton, Wednesday, June 7, 7 p. m.

Lonaconing, Wednesday, June 7, 8:30 p. m.

Mt. Savage, Thursday, June 8, 7 p. m.

Frostburg, Thursday, June 8, 8:15 p. m.

Oldtown, Friday, June 9, 7:30 p. m.

Flintstone, Saturday, June 10, 8 p. m.

At Frostburg, Principal Arthur Taylor of Beall high school is making the occasion Thursday night a "home-coming" event as Mr. Vogtman is a graduate of Beall, being a member of the class of 1927.

Many of Mr. Vogtman's friends will greet him at Oldtown high Friday night as he began his teaching career there, being a member of the Oldtown faculty from 1929 to 1936.

Verus "Buck" Phillips and Carlton Bennett left for a visit with friends at Niagara Falls and will also attend the New York Fair.

Miss Jean Dickson, Fairmont, spent the week-end here with her mother, Mrs. Ethel Dickson, East Parsons.

No arrests have yet been made in connection with the C. W. Harvey store robbery at Hendricks the latter part of the week.

Cabins for Rent

In Garrett County

Baltimore, June 5 (AP)—For rent: Log cabins complete with firewood and furniture. Apply State forestry department.

That, in effect, was the department's method of entering the summer resort business in Garrett county's scenic Savage river forest.

Mimeographed sheets posting the 1939 rates for vacationers were distributed today, advertising a variety of furnished cabins in the New Germany Lake and Big Run area of the county.

Two-person cabins at New Germany Lake will cost $12 for the first week, with 10 per cent off per week thereafter. Four-person cabins (with loft) cost $15 a week, with the same discount. Tent platforms with fireplaces and spring water are 50 cents a night or $2 weekly.

In the Big Run area, vacationists may rent one-room cabins for $6 weekly, three-room cabins for $8, and four-room frame cabins without fireplaces for $9. The 10 per cent discount holds for all rentals.

In addition, campers may rent cots, mattresses, cooking utensils, dishes, blankets and sheets for nominal fees from camp supply stores.

Registration fees of $5 must accompany each rental application, and all rentals must be paid in advance. No cabin may be rented for less than one week.

Wash basins, the department bulletin noted, are included in cabin rental.

Federated Church Women Will Meet In Frostburg

Mrs. Henry Goedeke, Baltimore Will Be the Principal Speaker

Frostburg, June 5.—Mrs. Henry Goedeke, Baltimore state president, will be the guest speaker Tuesday evening at the annual meeting of the Frostburg Council of Federated Church Women to be held at Zion Evangelical and Reformed church. Her subject will relate to the present phase of the larger interests of the council, state and national. The meeting, scheduled for 7:30 o'clock, will be in charge of Mrs. Henry Little. The musical program, in charge of Mrs. Edgar Beckett, will include vocal solos by Mrs. Lenore Hohing. The meeting will be featured by a fellowship hour following the regular program. The council represents sixteen organizations from ten churches in the community.

The executive committee in charge of the first annual meeting consists of Mrs. Henry Little and Miss Ruth Engle, First Presbyterian church; Mrs. Alex Close, Mrs. Arthur Bond and Miss Nan Jeffries, First Methodist Episcopal; Mrs. Walter Plummer, Methodist Episcopal South; Mrs. Earl Brain, First Baptist; Mrs. Ray Greening, Congregational; Mrs. Marshall Lewis, Lutheran; Mrs. Irvin Kracke, Mrs. Henry Taylor, Evangelical; Mrs. William Reese, Memorial Baptist; Mrs. Bary Thompson, Church of the Brethren; Mrs. Karl H. Beck, Mrs. Harry Williams and Miss Kathleen Crowe, Salem Reformed church.

Marriage Is Announced

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Francis J. D. Plummer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Plummer, West Mechanic street, this city, and Miss Allene Os, daughter of Mrs. Harry Carroll, Sheridan Place, Cumberland. The ceremony was performed May 3 at Winchester, Va., by the Rev. Frederick Crowe, pastor of the Winchester Methodist Episcopal church, South. The attendants were Gordon Plummer, brother of the groom, and Miss Edna Oss, sister of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Plummer, both employed at the Celanese plant, will reside in the Blocher apartments, Ormond street, extended, this city.

Farewell Reception

A farewell reception as part of the vesper service, was held Sunday evening at the Congregational church, Bowery street, in honor of Miss Lillian Wright, a devoted Christian Endeavor worker who will leave in a few days to make her home on the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

Mrs. Albert Capel, superintendent of the Allegheny Intermediate C. E. Society; Philip Thomas, young people's counselor, and Miss Hazel House, of the local intermediate society, made short addresses, lauding Miss Wright for her interest in the church and the Christian Endeavor. Harold Kyle rendered a trombone solo, accompanied by Miss Eleanor Norris. Others taking part in the program were Harry Lancaster, Dorothy Williams, Rachel Truly, Evelyn Phillips, Helen Sperry, Harriett Sires and Pearl Davis.

Frostburg Briefs

Prof. Newman A. Wade, principal of the elementary school, State Teachers College, this city, will leave Friday morning for a motor trip across the continent to Tacoma, Wash., where he will be one of the instructors at the College of Puget Sound summer school. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Wade and their son, Newman A. Wade, II.

The Hospital Bridge Club will meet Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Arthur W. Taylor, Frost avenue.

The First Methodist Episcopal church will entertain with a dinner Friday evening, June 23, at Guthrie's, near Romney, W. Va., in honor of members of the choir and their husbands, wives and friends.

Edward Price, 296 East Main street, this city, was awarded a key by the University of Maryland Inter-Fraternity Council for making the highest scholastic standing among the fraternity men of the Freshmen class. Young Price is a 1938 graduate of Beall high school. He returned from the university yesterday, accompanied by his mother and sister, Miss Catherine Price. He is pledged to the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

Miners at Caretta And Coalwood Are Ordered To Vacate

Carter Coal Company Notifies Men To Leave Property by June 10

Welch, W. Va., June 5 (AP)—Notices to vacate houses owned by the Carter Coal Company at Coalwood and Caretta were sent today to dwellers in the two McDowell county mining towns.

The company did not sign a "union shop" contract with the United Mine Workers at the time work was resumed in most West Virginia mines.

Officials of the company declined comment on the notices which stated:

"You are hereby notified to vacate, quit, surrender and deliver up to the company the and yours and their goods and remove yourself, your family and yours and their goods and property on or before the 10th day of June, 1939. (Signed, R. L. Keel, Agent.)"

Prior to the Appalachian coal shutdown March 31 the Carter company employed about 2,500 men in its four operations at Coalwood and Caretta.

Work notices were twice posted after other mines resumed May 15 but no miners attempted to go through the picket lines. James Walter Carter, president of the company, was reported at various times to be negotiating further with the union but no contract was signed.

The miners at a mass meeting two weeks ago pledged themselves to remain out of the pits until an agreement was reached.

G. R. Jennings, general superintendent, announced a week after the shutdown that termination of employment notices had been sent out but Carter later stated in New York such notices had been sent only to several clerical and store workers.

Municipal Elections in Many West Virginia Towns Today

Woman Officials At Friendly Not To Be Re-elected

All-Woman Government for Last Two Years on Way Out

Charleston, W. Va., June 5 (AP)—The mayor of Friendly went out of town to do some shopping today, which to some indicated the all-woman government in that Ohio river village is ready to step out.

Mrs. Stella Eddy, 48-year-old mayor of the Tyler county village since 1937, was unavailable for comment but it seemed most probable a man will head the government.

Friendly, community of 200 residents, will hold its biennial election tomorrow, along with 132 other West Virginia small towns.

Because most of the women went to commencement exercises instead of to nominating conventions, the men took charge. Therefore, John Fisher is running for mayor on the Citizens ticket and John Haight is the Community party nominee.

May Write in Names
There was some small talk of a "write-in" to keep the women in power but it didn't look today as if it would go through.

Mrs. Elsie Rustenmeyer, recorder-treasurer of Friendly, is running for re-election and she was non-committal.

Her only comment was, "wait until Tuesday."
Over at Webster Springs, in the center of the state, Juanita Detamore, 24-year-old waitress, campaigned against three men for the job of mayor.

Miss Detamore is running on a platform of down with parking meters and the town's curfew law.

Mayor Kenneth White declared, however, he is certain of re-election.

Most of the smaller communities of the state chose their officials on the same day every two years, but they are also joined by some of the larger towns.

Many Towns Will Elect

Among the bigger communities planning elections are Morgantown, Buckhannon, Glenview, Richwood, Summersville, Kingwood, Moundsville, Princeton, Athens, Iaeger, Beverly, Fayetteville, Alderson, Rainelle, Harpers Ferry, Keyser, Romney, Petersburg, Wayne, Barboursville, Lewisburg, Roncove, Sutton, Middlebourne and Bethany.

Other towns to elect officials are Burnsville, Cowen, Flemington, Gasaway, Jane Lew, Smithfield, West Union, Rowlesburg, Reedsville, Tunnelton, Terra Alta, War, Durbin, Huttonsville, Fairview, Farmington, Huddon, Monongah, Riverside, Worthington, Rainelle, Union, Davis, Hendricks, Fort Gay, Kernit, Clay, Clendenin, Camden-on-Gauley, Madison, Ripley, White Sulphur Springs, Ravenswood, Gilbert, Matewan, Grantsville and Reedy.

Vogtman To Speak On World's Fair

Harry R. Vogtman, member of the faculty of Port Hill high school of Cumberland, will give illustrated talks on "How to see the New York World's Fair on limited budget" at several high schools in Western Maryland this week. He gave his first talk at Bruce high in Westernport last night.

His schedule for the week follows:

Barton, Wednesday, June 7, 7 p. m.
Lonaconing, Wednesday, June 7, 8:30 p. m.
Mt. Savage, Thursday, June 8, 7 p. m.
Frostburg, Thursday, June 8, 8:15 p. m.
Oldtown, Friday, June 9, 7:30 p. m.
Flintstone, Saturday, June 10, 8 p. m.

At Frostburg, Principal Arthur Taylor of Beall high school is making the occasion Thursday night a "home-coming" event as Mr. Vogtman is a graduate of Beall, being a member of the class of 1927.

Many of Mr. Vogtman's friends will greet him at Oldtown high Friday night as he began his teaching career there, being a member of the Oldtown faculty from 1929 to 1936.

Cabins for Rent In Garrett County

Baltimore, June 5 (AP)—For rent: Log cabins complete with firewood and furniture. Apply State forestry department.

That, in effect, was the department's method of entering the summer resort business in Garrett county's scenic Savage river forest. Mimeographed sheets posting the 1939 rates for vacationers were distributed today, advertising a variety of furnished cabins in the New Germany Lake and Big Run area of the county.

Two-person cabins at New Germany Lake will cost $12 for the first week, with 10 per cent off per week thereafter. Four-person cabins (with loft) cost $15 a week, with the same discount. Tent platforms with fireplaces and spring water are 50 cents a night or $2 weekly.

In the Big Run area, vacationists may rent one-room cabins for $6 weekly, three-room cabins for $8, and four-room frame cabins without fireplaces for $9. The 10 per cent discount holds for all rentals. In addition, campers may rent cots, mattresses, cooking utensils, dishes, blankets and sheets for nominal fees from camp supply stores. Registration fees of $5 must accompany each rental application, the forestry department warned, and all rentals must be paid in advance. No cabin may be rented for less than one week.

Wash basins, the department bulletin noted, are included in cabin furniture.

Oppone Action on Marriage Law Suit

Princeton, Md., June 5 (AP)—Action on the suit of the Rev. Joseph T. to invalidate Maryland's 48-hour marriage delay law was postponed today in Circuit Court until June 22.

Arguments originally were scheduled to be heard today on an order for the application for an order compelling the Circuit Court clerk from making the provisions of the bill effective.

The clergyman contended there was an error in the printed bill and that the bill signed was exactly the same as the one passed by the legislature. He also contended the law is unconstitutional.

A demurrer, Attorney General W. C. Walsh said Mr. Baker had not shown that he would suffer by operation of the bill and therefore was not entitled to continue.

The law was passed by the state legislature in 1937 and approved by referendum in 1938. It requires a 48-hour wait between the time of application and issuance of the marriage license.

"Federalists" at Boys' State Want Reformation in Government

Candidates for Governor Named as School in Practical Politics Opens

Jackson's Mill W. Va., June 5 (AP)—The "Federalists" scored the political activities of "state employees" today and called for a "reformation" of state government in the first nominating convention of Boys State, Inc.

About 350 high school youths settled down to the serious business of choosing their governmental officers on the first day of the American Legion's summer school in practical politics.

The "Federalists," with three candidates for the gubernatorial nomination, spent the afternoon perfecting a nine-plank platform. They nominated their slate along with the "Nationalists" at a primary tonight.

The nine-point program called for the popular election of all judges, state department heads — particularly the director of public assistance; abolition of the county unit school system; substitution of a nominal property tax for the gross sales tax; the abstinence of state employees from political activities and full cooperation with the federal government in flood control and wage and hour legislation.

Tomorrow the "citizens" will elect their governor and his cabinet, a legislature and fill various other offices.

The successful candidates will be sworn in by President Judge Fred L. Fox of the State Supreme court, in the presence of Governor Holt.

The three "Federalist" aspirants for the gubernatorial nomination were Lewis Wells of Bens Run, James B. Bisset of Piedmont and William Manley, Jr., of Clarksburg. Competing for the head of the "Nationalists" ticket were Andrew Reeves of Princeton, Rodney Wolfard of Huntington, Roland Potter of Charleston, Edward J. Odrakiewicz of Pilbert, McDowell county; James Stuart of Mount Clare, and Charles Fowkes and Charles E. Rule, both of Clarksburg.

Grantsville Man Takes Brooklyn Girl as Bride

Frostburg immediately. Dr. Meyer's condition was said to be serious and Mrs. Meyer was reported to have suffered a slight skull fracture. The occupants of the Schlossnagle car were less seriously injured however. They were taken to a nearby home.

Clyde J. Miller and Mrs. P. A. Connolly, Grantsville, who happened to be passing, upon learning the identity of the injured persons, stopped and took them to the office of a Frostburg physician and later brought them to the Hockman home where they remained for the night. Mrs. Schlossnagle was the more seriously injured of the three and sustained torn ligaments in her right leg, as well as other cuts, bruises and shock. She was taken back to the Frostburg Hospital Sunday night for further examination.

Mrs. Hockman suffered from shock, bruises, cuts and sprains. Mrs. Schlossnagle received only minor bruises.

Sportsmen Meet

J. Paul Rusk, Charleston, president of the West Virginia Affiliated Sportsmen's Association addressed the sportsmen from Hardy, Grant and Hampshire counties at the high school, Thursday night and presided over a round table discussion regarding game and fish conditions in this section.

Rusk gave a brief history of the organization in West Virginia and recalled that the state association was formed in Moorefield in 1934 and now embraces forty-two of the sixty-five sportsmen's clubs in the state.

The consensus of the reports on the condition of game in this section was that the mild spring, coupled with steady restocking and short hunting seasons has resulted in a plentiful supply of squirrel, rabbit, quail, wild turkey and deer. The sportsmen were pessimistic in their reports on fishing and urged continued stocking of trout and bass in the South Branch Valley streams.

Funeral Notice

THURDAY—Mrs. Louise Crothers, aged 81, wife of Charles Crothers, died at her home, 420 Pine Place, Monday, June 5. The body will remain at Stein's chapel, where funeral services will be held Wednesday, 2 p. m. The Rev. H. H. Hall, pastor of the church, will officiate. Interment will be in Rose Hill Cemetery. Arrangements by Stein's Funeral Service. 6-6-11-T

Card of Thanks

I wish to thank my neighbors and friends for the kindness shown me following the death of my husband, George M. Taylor. I also wish to thank the Rev. H. H. Hall and the Stein Funeral Service for their kind assistance. The floral tributes and the loan of cars for the funeral were greatly appreciated. His wife, MRS. GEO. M. TAYLOR. 6-6-11-T

High Schools Here Prepare Plans For Graduation

Fort Hill Seniors Get Diplomas June 14; Allegany, June 16

Dr. Theodore Distler, dean of Lafayette college, Easton, Pa., will be the speaker at the commencement exercises of both Fort Hill and Allegany high schools, it was announced last night.

Fort Hill's graduation ceremony is scheduled in the school auditorium at 8 o'clock Wednesday night, June 14, according to Principal Victor D. Heisey. Allegany's 192 seniors will receive their diplomas at 2 p. m. Friday, June 16, at the Strand theatre. Principal Ralph H. Webster announced.

Both schools will hold their baccalaureate services Sunday, June 11. The Rev. Fred B. Wyand, pastor of Central Methodist church, will be the speaker at the Allegany service, to be held at 3 p. m. at Centre Street Methodist church. As has been the custom for many years, the speaker is the father of a member of the graduating class. The Rev. Vernon N. Ridgeley, pastor of the host church, will assist in the service.

The baccalaureate sermon for Fort Hill's 188 graduates is scheduled at 2:30 p. m. in the school auditorium. The Rev. E. S. Price, pastor of Second Baptist church, will be the speaker, and the Rev. Charles K. Welch, pastor of Bethany United Brethren church, and the Rev. E. A. Wilcher, pastor of Emmanuel Methodist church, will also participate. Music will be furnished by the A Capella choir and the school orchestra.

Class Orators To Speak
At both commencement programs class orators will speak—William Holt for Allegany, and Bill Bruce for Fort Hill. Young Bruce's subject will be "After High School, What?"

William A. Gunter, president of the board of education, will present the diplomas to Fort Hill students. Principal Heisey will present awards and Superintendent of Schools Charles L. Kopp will introduce the speaker. The Rev. S. R. Neel, pastor of Trinity Methodist church, will make the invocation and pronounce the benediction. The A Capella choir will sing, and the orchestra will play several selections.

Allegany's graduates will receive their diplomas at the hands of Superintendent Kopp, and awards will be made by Principal Webster. Other commencement activities are scheduled as follows:

Allegany—Tuesday, June 13, class night; Wednesday, June 14, senior prom; and Friday night, June 16, Alumni Association dance, to which seniors are invited.

Fort Hill—Friday, June 9, senior prom; and Monday, June 12, class night.

Seniors in all county schools are taking their final examinations this week. Other students will begin theirs next week, during which only half-day sessions will be held.

Girl Scouts Hold Camp Rally Here

Pageant Is Feature Of Armory Program

Cumberland Girl Scouts held a camp rally last night at the State armory to recall last summer's experience and prepare for Camp Cal-u-tu-cue, at Pavia, Pa., and for Day Camp to be held this summer at the Colanese pool.

The first item on the Camp Rally program was a pageant, "Cal-u-tu-cue," depicting the early history of the Cumberland area. The narrator, Miss Phyllis Holmes of troop 20, was also the author of the descriptive passages which concerned the Algonquin Indians. Troops participating in the pageant were 2, 9, 17, 20. The Scout Brownies took part under the direction of Mrs. Howard Reese and Mrs. R. B. Stanford.

Second on the program were games led by troops Nos. 1, 3, and 7 and Pack 7. Immediately following was a style show in which troops 4 and 18 and Pack 5 participated.

Scout songs were led by Troops 10 and 18 and Pack 3. Moving pictures of last year's camp were presented by Dr. J. Russell Cook, and pictures of Brownie Day Camp were given by Harold Hirsch.

Refreshments of lemonade, cookies, candy, and cake were served by Troops 3, 13, and 19.

The Scouts thoroughly enjoyed the camp rally, and a spirit of scouting and camping prevailed. All the leaders were in their official Scout uniforms, as well as the troops participating in the program.

The committees which directed the program were as follows:

General committee—Mrs. Peter W. Smith, chairman; Mrs. Franklin W. Kremer, and Miss Kathryn Wright.

Fashion Show committee—Mrs. Peter Smith, chairman; Miss Elizabeth Johnson, Mrs. R. B. Stanford, and Mrs. Howard Reese.

Refreshment committee—Miss Polly Fisher, chairman; Miss Mary Hartman, and Mrs. James Bishop.

Songs—Miss F. A. Schlott, local scouts director.

Flintstone Couple Wed 60 Years Say Maybe They're Old Fashioned

Eighty-four-year-old Jasper Wilson Robinette grumbled when the photographer asked him to look at his 81-year-old wife, Mrs. Mary Gnaney Robinette, and smile.

"Why, I've been looking at her for over sixty years," he said, and then laughed with everybody else at his own joke.

Mrs. Robinette laughed, too. In fact, they both smiled as much as the photographer demanded, because they are a very happy couple.

Married Sixty Years
They were posing for the News camera at their home in Flintstone because they have been married for sixty years, which, needless to say, is a long time.

"I guess it's a little old-fashioned to stay married so long," commented Mrs. Robinette.

"But we're still going strong," said her husband, who describes himself not as a retired farmer, but as a "tired farmer."

Mr. and Mrs. Robinette were married May 21, 1879, at her home at Murley's Branch. Their wedding trip was a five-mile journey in a buggy to the Robinette farm, which was something of a trip at that time, because the bride had never seen her new husband's farm before.

Takes Fishing Trip
Mr. Robinette used to be a great hunter, and also a searcher out of bee trees, but he's given that up lately. He went fishing a few weeks ago.

One-Way Buying Rules Adopted
"One-Way Shopping" has gone into effect among members of the Mercantile Bureau of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

Final approval of a set of three rules pertaining principally to the privileges of returning merchandise was given at the monthly meeting of the bureau yesterday at the Fort Cumberland hotel.

The rules, which are termed a practical way to greater satisfaction in shopping, have been printed in a four-page leaflet, and copies are to be distributed to customers of the stores of member members. Usually the leaflets will be wrapped inside of merchandise packages.

The "One-Way Shopping" schedule is as follows:

1. All merchandise to be returned for credit or refund should be returned to the store from which it was purchased, in salable condition, accompanied by the sales check, within one week from date of delivery.
2. For legal, sanitary or other reasons, the following articles should not be returned:
  - (a) Bedding and mattresses, combs, hair ornaments, hair brushes, tooth brushes, and bathing suits, unless returned in original sealed packages.
  - (b) All merchandise which has been used or worn.
  - (c) Merchandise which has been correctly made, altered or monogrammed at customer's request.
  - (d) Merchandise advertised and sold as "final" or "not subject to return."
3. Any merchandise returned under conditions contrary to the provisions of Sections 1 and 2, immediately preceding, shall be regarded as "irregular" and must be referred to some properly designated individuals or office in each establishment.

City Goes After Citizens Back In Their Taxes

Council Is Called To Special Meeting On Subject Today

With Tax Collector James M. Conway hot on the trail of delinquent tax payers, Finance Commissioner Thomas F. Conlon stated last night that he would advocate using funds from the contingent fund to pay the county's share on any properties that may be put up for sale.

Although City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett told Council yesterday that the city would need between $4,000 and $5,000 to pay the county its share in the event delinquent properties are sold, Mr. Conway indicated last night that this amount actually might not be required.

Only Nine Delinquents
When the tax collector set about the task of reducing delinquencies he had a list of 51 properties that were in arrears. At the present time all except nine of those delinquencies have been paid off, with the possibility that three or more properties may be paid off by Friday.

However, if the back taxes are not paid on these properties, they will be advertised for sale, it was decided yesterday at a special meeting of the Council. Another meeting was called for 11 a. m. this morning when Commissioner Conlon will give his opinion on the matter.

Conlon To Air His Views
After conferring with City Auditor Arthur Gibson, Conlon stated last night that he would advise using funds from the contingent fund for paying the county its share if the sales are made. According to Mr. Conlon, the contingent fund is set aside for special emergencies that may arise from time to time.

Heskett stated yesterday that the collector is doing all in his power to bring in taxes when he offers delinquent properties for sale. It was proposed that if there are no other bidders, the city purchase the properties and then hold them for later sale.

Bans Narrows Dumping
After discussing the delinquent tax situation, the Council took up the matter of dumping along the banks of Will's creek in the Narrows. This practice will have to stop, Council decided.

When Mr. Heskett stated that the city has authority to stop dumping one mile outside the city limits under the charter and the flood prevention act, Council instructed police to give notice to persons dumping in this location. If the notice is disregarded, officers have been instructed to make arrests.

The Salvation Army was ordered paid $100 for transient work an application by Paul C. Nicewarner, 11 Fifth street, asking permission to allow a meeting of the Cumberland Council of Jehovah's Witnesses in the City Hall auditorium next Sunday, was rejected.

Boosters Club Gets Festival
The Boosters Club was granted a permit to hold a festival July 3 to July 8 in the N. & G. Taylor field. A permit for the installation of a gasoline tank by the Ort Brothers Bakery was also approved.

City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer was asked to investigate complaints by Joseph V. Ruppert, 503 Fayette street, and Robert W. Young, property agent, regarding the need for repairs for Essex place and an alley at George street in the rear of the Smith shoe store.

The bid of Spoer's Garage for a police patrol was accepted on recommendation of Commissioner Harry Irvine.

Girl Recovering From 8-Foot Fall

Eyesight Unharmful, Physicians Declare

A 10-year-old Pennsylvania Avenue school student was slowly recovering at her home last night from injuries sustained in an eight-foot fall.

The child, Shirley Sue Burke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley S. Burke, of 12 Fifth street, received a fractured skull and bruises about the body when she fell from the bannisters on the back porch of her home Thursday night.

Her father, proprietor of a restaurant on Fifth street, said Shirley was sitting on the bannisters when a swing, occupied by five or six playmates, broke and knocked her off. She landed on a concrete pavement and remained unconscious for about ten minutes, he said.

The little girl said last night that outside of her head hurting a little bit, she was feeling fine. Her room was filled with large bouquets of flowers and presents from friends and schoolmates.

Her mother, Mrs. Helen P. Burke, said Shirley, who sings every Saturday over Station WTBO and was scheduled to be commentator at a children's style show to be held Saturday at a local theatre, was told by her teacher that she would pass to the next grade in case she wasn't well enough to finish the term. She has been an honor student, her teacher said.

Mr. and Mrs. Burke were beaming over with joy last night when they said their daughter would be well and out playing in about two weeks. They said her physicians told them X-rays showed the fall wouldn't affect the girl's eyesight, as was previously thought.

Shirley will be passed to the sixth grade.

on High Roads Low Roads and By-Ways

In our last column, which was several days ago, we bemoaned the fact that we couldn't find a Cumberland restaurant which sold strawberries and cream, and right in the middle of strawberry season, too.

On the next day, however, we were treated to a very delightful repeat of ripe, red berries and yellow cream in our favorite breakfast restaurant. It was very wonderful. Ah, the power of the press.

Maybe we won't have to get married now after all.

—o—
Our friend, the bridegroom-to-be, is all upset. Because his budget got upset. He had that budget all worked out, just as a model husband-to-be is supposed to do, and knew where every penny was going, even if he didn't know where every penny was coming from.

But he forgot that he is going to move to a locality where the cops don't let you keep the car out on the street all night. Cost of a garage has knocked the budget into a cocked hat, or maybe into a New Deal.

—o—
We are grateful to Deputy Game Warden William McKenzie for giving us a call on the eagle they shot down in Frog Hollow Sunday. Some people think newspapers just have big ears and should know all that's going on. But the plain fact is that newspapers know only what people tell them and what they see, and the territory they can cover for themselves isn't very great.

So we remind you that when you feel like cussin' because something wasn't in the paper which should have been there, just stop and think it over and cuss yourself for not calling the paper and telling them about it. We get cussed enough for what we do, and although pretty thick-skinned we'd like to pass the buck for what we don't do.

After all, a paper is no better than its friends. A paper that doesn't have people ready to call up and tell the news doesn't get very far.

As the result of Mr. McKenzie's call, Frog Hollow got on the map in a whole flock of newspapers. If it hadn't been for the phone call, the eagle story might have gotten no further than the Frog Hollow Sunday school, and perhaps wouldn't have been believed there.

—o—
Strangely enough the Frog Hollow eagle is going to become a nationally famous bird. Representatives of National Distillers read about the big bird, raced down to Frederick, bought it from the CCCC boy who bought it from the killer, and now plan to have it mounted, photographed, and exploited in advertising Eagle brand whiskey.

—o—
Frog Hollow no doubt has turned out its share of high-powered moonshine, as most of the hollows hereabout have done in their time. Now that legal liquor is flowing plentifully again, it is only fitting that a Frog Hollow memento should appear as a trade mark.

—o—
We might add that the Frog Hollow eagle will soon be flying higher than he ever flew before.

—o—
We had a little chat with one of Cumberland's younger literary lights last night—Miss Phyllis Holmes, 14-year-old Allegany high freshman, who wrote the narrative for the Girl Scout pageant given in the armory last night.

—o—
We learned at the pageant that Girl Scouts are very versatile creatures—with paper bags over their heads, they hopped around as wild animals. With feathers in their hair, they whooped it up as wild Indian braves. And with joy in their hearts they consumed any number of cookies and lemonade.

—o—
We remarked above on the fact that reporters weren't superhuman—they find out only what people tell them. Detectives are the same way, although they are usually not very frank about it.

They like to make newspapermen and other mere mortals think they have uncanny powers of deduction. But they seldom tell how they solve a crime. We know, from years as police reporter, that the more mysterious a detective gets about how he solved something, the more certain it is that a guy who read about the mystery in the papers call up the dick and gave him a hot tip.

Snake-Bite Victim Goes Home Tomorrow

Barrying complications, Robert Noel, 40-year-old Rawlings man who was bitten by a copperhead snake Sunday, will be released from Allegany hospital tomorrow, physicians said last night.

Noel, a Kelly-Springfield Tire Company employe, was brought to the hospital by a friend about an hour after he was bitten. He said he had sucked the poison out of the wound, but physicians administered anti-venom serum immediately. His condition was described as "good" last night.

The victim told hospital attaches that the snake bit him on the right hand. "It was hiding under some leaves," he said, "and struck me as I picked up a large rock near my home."

Boyle Turns 'Truant Officer'; Treks to Ohio for 'Runaways'

County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle, Sheriff Lucian C. Radcliffe and Detective B. Frank Gaffney last night had completed a several hundred mile jump to Marietta, Ohio, where they journeyed for the purpose of picking up two Cumberland youngsters who are charged with being "runaways," according to Mr. Boyle.

Although the two 16-year-old

Exchangites Push Anti-Isms Drive Club To Emphasize 'True Americanism'

Americanism, democratically stiling foreign "isms" through increased appreciation of American citizenship, will receive special emphasis from the recently-organized Cumberland Exchange club, it was announced last night by Alvin H. Wilson, president.

Mr. Wilson announced appointment of an American Citizenship committee to foster local participation in a comprehensive national program on Americanism released this week by the National Exchange Club.

Members of the committee are George L. Williamson, chairman; F. H. Rockwell, John C. Maginnis, George F. Garlitz, and Stanley Buckley.

A complete citizenship program for the Cumberland club and various cooperating groups is to be announced soon by the committee, it was said.

Educational Materials Ready
Full educational materials have already been received from national Exchange headquarters. President Wilson declared, including information for use on the radio, in newspapers, schools and college, public and church meetings, citizenship classes, and meetings of lodges and other civic groups.

Since 1930, years before any menace to democracy was generally apparent, Exchange clubs have emphasized American citizenship as an objective, Mr. Wilson pointed out, and each subsequent national convention has reiterated this stand.

Describing the newest phase of the program, Herold M. Harter, national secretary, of Toledo, O., said, "We are not attempting to defend democracy. Democracy is so strong that it needs no defense. We are, however, outlining certain subversive dangers which can be corrected once the public recognizes them as dangers."

"We feel that the home, the school, and the church can advance the cause of practical American democracy, and we are trying to show just how that can be done."

In urging participation by communities in which un-American activities are not numerous, Mr. Harter added, "Lack of votes by Communists, Fascists, and Nazis in the United States does not indicate lack of strength. Many of them are aliens unable to vote. They pursue a technique of penetration into seemingly humanitarian American organizations and exercise dangerous control through leaders."

Throughout the past nine years, many Exchange clubs have taken leadership in the naturalization of aliens and in efforts to revive faith in the American principles of government. They also have advocated the development of the forces of national defense to a point at which no other nation will dare attack the United States.

Committee Members Listed
Members of the national committee on citizenship which prepared the materials to be used in the Cumberland club's campaign are Thomas C. Imeson, city commissioner of Jacksonville, Fla., chairman; Dr. LeRoy E. Cowles, dean, University of Utah, Salt Lake City; Judge Ames L. Conn, of Toledo and Perryburg, O.; Arthur J. Ruland, attorney and radio broadcaster, Binghamton, N. Y.; and Carey H. Snyder, editor and publishers' representative, Dallas, Tex.

Fourteen Get Diplomas From Greek School
Graduates from the Cumberland Greek school who received diplomas Sunday at commencement exercises at the Rubber Workers Hall, South Mechanic street, were Evelyn Mickles, Koula Elingo, Helen Anthony, Eugenia Spano, Elaine Diamond, Dolores Soterakos, Sylvia Mitchell, Everette Mitchell, Kathryn Dendriros, Pete Dendriros, John Diamond, Nicholas Mickles, Thomas Carros, and Demosthenes Carros.

A chorus made up of juniors and seniors presented a number, "Dance of the Winds"; Margaret McNamee presented "Our Tribute." Other students who took part in the program were Jane Peddicord, Helen Hughes, Agnes Helmsletter, Winifred Muir, Mildred Flynn, Helen Kerber, Irene Ley, and Mary Kelly.

Get Anti-Typhoid 'Shots' First For Safe Holiday, Doctor Urges

"If you have not been vaccinated against typhoid fever within the last year or two, go to your doctor or the nearest health officer, and have him give you the three 'shots' that will protect you against that disease."

This advice comes from Dr. R. H. Riley, director of the State Department of Health, and is addressed especially to young people—boys and girls scouts, camp fire girls, hiking clubs, campers, and trailer tourists. It also applies to all others, not protected against typhoid, who are making plans for out-of-doors, away from home, activities, for auto trips, or for holiday tours by boat, bus, train, and even by airplane, Dr. Riley said.

"You take typhoid by way of the mouth," Dr. Riley continued. "Each case comes directly or indirectly from some previous case. You eat or drink the germs that cause the disease, in food, water, or milk contaminated by the discharges from persons who are ill with the disease or who have had it at some time."

"The protection of public water supplies from pollution; the pasteurization of milk; inspection and supervision of food supplies; the operation of individuals and communities in the sanitary disposal of sewage; the steady improvement in household sanitation and hygienic schoolboys were lodged in the county jail upon their arrival back in their hometown, County Investigator Boyle stated that they were merely charged with running away from home. They are also guilty of playing hooky from their respective schools, Fort Hill and Allegany High.

While "Truant Officer" Boyle emphatically declared that the boys were merely a couple of lads with a dose of wanderlust, two other sources stated that the two youths were wanted in connection with the attempt to rob the Savoy Bowling Alley last Friday night.

One reliable source asserted that the two boys admitted trying to break into the establishment but were scared off and later hopped a freight train to Parkersburg, W. Va. The boys entered the establishment with a key, it was stated.

Questioned regarding a burglary at the same location several months ago when $100 was taken, the two boys denied any knowledge of it. However, "Truant Officer" Boyle last night reiterated his statement that three officers had made the trek all the way to Marietta and back to pick up two strays who had wandered too far from their native haunts.

I.O.O.F. Lodge Names Officers

W. L. Ranck Is Elected Deputy Grand Master

W. L. Ranck last night was chosen District Deputy Grand Master by Chapel Hill Lodge No. 53, I. O. O. F., at the semi-annual election meeting in the lodge hall on Virginia avenue.

Other officers elected were George H. McCracken, Past Grand; Willis D. Shomo, Noble Grand; E. E. Gerard, Vice Grand; E. F. Avers, recording secretary; W. F. Aronholt, financial secretary; J. D. Ranck, treasurer; Robert W. Young, chaplain; David A. Scott, warden; George Tedrick, inside guardian; Sylvester Malcolm, outside guardian; A. N. Hook, Right Supporter of the Noble Grand; Harry L. Smith, Left Supporter of the Noble Grand; J. L. Huff, Right Supporter of the Vice Grand; and C. Glenn Watson, Left Supporter of the Vice Grand.

The new officers will be installed at the first meeting in July, On June 19, the degree team of the Buffalo Mills, Pa., lodge will initiate a class of candidates into the first degree.

Ursuline Girls Honor Father Boniface

The Rev. Father Boniface, O. M. Cap., yesterday was honored by Ursuline Academy students who presented a program dedicated to him. Following the program, Father Boniface warmly praised the students who took part in the entertainment.

A play, "What the Doctors Said," featured the following cast: Nancy Lee Goebel, Rosemary Noonan, Catherine McKenzie, Edna O'Brien, Joan Kerr, Mary Catherine Habig, and Betty Foreman.

Fourteen Get Diplomas From Greek School

Graduates from the Cumberland Greek school who received diplomas Sunday at commencement exercises at the Rubber Workers Hall, South Mechanic street, were Evelyn Mickles, Koula Elingo, Helen Anthony, Eugenia Spano, Elaine Diamond, Dolores Soterakos, Sylvia Mitchell, Everette Mitchell, Kathryn Dendriros, Pete Dendriros, John Diamond, Nicholas Mickles, Thomas Carros, and Demosthenes Carros.

A chorus made up of juniors and seniors presented a number, "Dance of the Winds"; Margaret McNamee presented "Our Tribute." Other students who took part in the program were Jane Peddicord, Helen Hughes, Agnes Helmsletter, Winifred Muir, Mildred Flynn, Helen Kerber, Irene Ley, and Mary Kelly.

Teacher To Discuss Wayward Juveniles

Henry C. Gregory, of the Fort Hill High School faculty, will speak on the subject, "Juvenile Delinquency" today at 8 p. m. at the final meeting of the East Side School P-T-A. Officers for next year will be elected and parents of children entering school next September will be given a special welcome.

Careless Driver Fined

Joseph T. Miller, 303 Virginia avenue, was fined $5 yesterday in Police Court for careless driving on North Mechanic street. He was arrested by Officers George W. Deffenbaugh and Frank A. Shober, Jr.

Governor Veloes Only 4 of 25

Allegany Bills

State's Attorney Gets New Laws to Study; Movie Tax Change Out

Only four of the twenty-five Allegany county bills passed by the Legislature were voted by Governor O'Connor, it was stated yesterday. Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney who is making a study of the twenty-one new laws affecting the county.

Mr. Harris completed the roundup of the new measures yesterday and expressed the belief that they should receive the scrutiny of the Allegany county citizens.

The four bills which were voted by the governor were:

Movie Tax Bill Voted
1—The Sunday movie tax bill, allocating one-half of the proceeds to the Allegany County League for Crippled Children, which was vetoed by the governor following a storm of protests from Cumberland P-TA groups, the ministerial association, and the Mayor and City Council.

2—Cumberland's police and fire bill, which was killed by the governor for "not being clear." The bill also stirred up a tempest in teapot with City Hall officials contending that certain police officers went over Council's head in having the bill introduced at Annapolis.

3—A bill authorizing the State Roads Commission to pay $5,000 from gasoline tax funds to the Mayor and Town Council of Midland for the retirement of bonds.

Teachers' Increase Killed
4—The bill which was intended to increase the salaries of teachers in Allegany county having more than eight years' service.

Today, the state's attorney has twenty-one signed bills on his desk. Mr. Harris said yesterday the members of the Board of Education are puzzled regarding the wording in the school bus bill which states that operators of school buses shall not permit the number of passengers to exceed their seating capacity by more than 25 per cent.

Charity Bingo Passed
Other bills signed by the governor included:

1—Bill authorizing bingo under certain conditions, to wit, bona fide fraternal, religious, or charitable organizations or corporations, or volunteer fire departments for the benefit of charity in Allegany county.

2—Bill permitting the county commissioners to license walkathon or marathon contests.

3—Bill empowering the county commissioners to lease 3.13 acres of the property on which the County Home and Sylvan Retreat are situated to the State Roads Commission.

4—Two bills authorizing the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland to borrow the sums of $150,000 and $50,000 for a cross-town water line and work relief bonds.

Aid Fire Departments
5—Bill authorizing the county commissioners to pay out $6,125 annually for the maintenance of the several volunteer fire companies.

6—Bill providing for the compensation of tax collectors in the county.

7—Bill authorizing the county commissioners to borrow one million dollars for the Savage River dam.

8—Bill providing that the county board of education submit an itemized statement of all its expenditures for each year.

9—Bill authorizing the county commissioners to borrow $350,000 for a school improvement program.

10—Bill providing for the appointment of Civil Service commissioners and examinations for the police and fire departments in Cumberland.

11—Bill authorizing the establishment of a Teachers Relief Fund.

High Schools Here Prepare Plans For Graduation

Fort Hill Seniors Get Diplomas June 14; Allegany, June 16

Dr. Theodore Distler, dean of Lafayette college, Easton, Pa., will be the speaker at the commencement exercises of both Fort Hill and Allegany high schools, it was announced last night.

Fort Hill's graduation ceremony is scheduled in the school auditorium at 8 o'clock Wednesday night, June 14, according to Principal Victor D. Heisey. Allegany's 192 seniors will receive their diplomas at 2 p. m. Friday, June 16, at the Strand theatre. Principal Ralph R. Webster announced.

Both schools will hold their baccalaureate services Sunday, June 11. The Rev. Fred B. Wyand, pastor of Central Methodist church, will be the speaker at the Allegany service, to be held at 3 p. m. at Centre Street Methodist church. As has been the custom for many years, the speaker is the father of a member of the graduating class. The Rev. Vernon N. Ridgeley, pastor of the host church, will assist in the service.

The baccalaureate sermon for Fort Hill's 183 graduates is scheduled at 2:30 p. m. in the school auditorium. The Rev. E. S. Price, pastor of Second Baptist church, will be the speaker, and the Rev. Charles K. Welch, pastor of Bethany United Brethren church, and the Rev. E. A. Wilcher, pastor of Emmanuel Methodist church, will also participate. Music will be furnished by the Capella choir and the school orchestra.

Class Orators To Speak
At both commencement programs class orators will speak—William Holt for Allegany, and Bill Bruce for Fort Hill. Young Bruce's subject will be "After High School, What?"

William A. Gunter, president of the board of education, will present the diplomas to Fort Hill students. Principal Heisey will present awards and Superintendent of Schools Charles L. Kopp will introduce the speaker. The Rev. S. R. Neel, pastor of Trinity Methodist church, will make the invocation and pronounce the benediction. The Capella choir will sing, and the orchestra will play several selections. Allegany's graduates will receive their diplomas at the hands of Superintendent Kopp, and awards will be made by Principal Webster.

Other commencement activities are scheduled as follows:
Allegany—Tuesday, June 13, class night; Wednesday, June 14, senior prom; and Friday night, June 16, Alumni Association dance, to which seniors are invited.

Fort Hill—Friday, June 9, senior prom; and Monday, June 12, class night.
Seniors in all county schools are taking their final examinations this week. Other students will begin theirs next week, during which only half-day sessions will be held.

Girl Scouts Hold Camp Rally Here

Pageant Is Feature Of Armory Program

Cumberland Girl Scouts held a camp rally last night at the State armory to recall last summer's experience and prepare for Camp Cal-u-tu-cue, at Pavia, Pa., and for Day Camp to be held this summer at the Celanese pool.

The first item on the Camp Rally program was a pageant, "Cal-u-tu-cue," depicting the early history of the Cumberland area. The narrator, Miss Phyllis Holmes of troop 20, was also the author of the descriptive passages which concerned the Algonquin Indians. Troops participating in the pageant were 2, 9, 17, 20. The Scout Brownies took part under the direction of Mrs. Howard Reese and Mrs. R. B. Stanford.

Second on the program were games led by troops Nos. 1, 3, and 7 and Pack 7. Immediately following was a style show in which troops 4 and 18 and Pack 5 participated.

Scout songs were led by Troops 10 and 18 and Pack 3.

Moving pictures of last year's camp were presented by Dr. J. Russell Cook, and pictures of Brownie Day Camp were given by Brownie Hirsch.

Refreshments of lemonade, cookies, candy, and cake were served by Troops 5, 13, and 19.

The Scouts thoroughly enjoyed the camp rally, and a spirit of scouting and camping prevailed. All the leaders were in their official Scout uniforms, as well as the troops participating in the program.

The committees which directed the program were as follows:
General committee—Mrs. Peter W. Smith, chairman; Mrs. Franklin W. Kremer, and Miss Kathryn Wright.

Fashion Show committee—Mrs. Peter Smith, chairman; Miss Elizabeth Johnson, Mrs. R. B. Stanford, and Mrs. Howard Reese.

Games committee—Miss Phyllis McElfish, chairman; Miss Margaret Campbell, and Miss Violet, local scout director.

Flintstone Couple Wed 60 Years Say Maybe They're Old Fashioned

Eighty-four-year-old Jasper Wilson Robinette grumbled when the photographer asked him to look at his 81-year-old wife, Mrs. Mary Robinette, and smile.
"Why, I've been looking at her for over sixty years," he said, and then laughed with everybody else at his own joke.

Mrs. Robinette laughed, too. In fact, they both smiled as much as the photographer demanded, because they are a very happy couple.

Married Sixty Years
They were posing for the News camera at their home in Flintstone because they have been married for sixty years, which, needless to say, is a long time.

"I guess I'm a little old-fashioned to stay married so long," commented Mrs. Robinette.

"But we're still going strong," said her husband, who describes himself not as a retired farmer, but as a "tired farmer."

Mr. and Mrs. Robinette were married May 21, 1879, at her home at Murley's Branch. Their wedding trip was a five-mile journey in a buggy to the Robinette farm, which was something of a trip at that, because the bride had never seen her new husband's farm before.

Takes Fishing Trip
Mr. Robinette used to be a great hunter, and also a searcher out of bee trees, but he's given that up lately. He went fishing a few weeks back, and Mrs. Robinette blames that for his neuritis.

He had to see a doctor about neuritis, although he's had a doctor only twice since he grew up.

The couple laughed when asked to explain their formula for successful marriage for the benefit of younger generations.

They quickly agreed on Mrs. Robinette's kitchen magic as the key to their happy wedded life. Asked what his favorite food was, Mr. Robinette said, "Pie—any kind of pie she bakes."

Harold Hixson Heads K. of P.
Other Officers Named By Cumberland Lodge

Harold Hixson was elected Chancellor of Cumberland Lodge No. 60, Knights of Pythias, last night.

Other officers were named as follows: Ernest Treat, Vice-Chancellor; Herbert Bailey, Prelate; J. Walter McKee, Master of Work; Arthur E. Brant, Keeper of Records and Seal; Glenn A. Moore, Master of Finance; Robert M. Llewellyn, Master of Exchequer; William V. Cubbage, Master at Arms; George Keifer, inner guard; W. Lester Murphy, outer guard; J. Hillery Hayden, custodian; and Odith M. Brotemarkle, degree master.

Glenn A. Moore and Britton O. Shaffer were named representatives to the Grand Lodge convention at Salisbury September 28-29, with Belmont M. Robinette and Robert M. Llewellyn as alternates.

The newly-elected officers will be installed Monday, July 3, and will serve until December 31.

The local lodge also balloted last night for Grand Lodge officers, but the results were not made public. Results of the balloting throughout the state will be made public in Baltimore.

Julius E. Schindler, of Cumberland, now grand vice-chancellor, will be elevated to the grand chancellorship since he is unopposed for the office. Mr. Schindler, a member of Cumberland Lodge No. 136, was nominated for the post at the Grand Lodge convention last fall.

Odith M. Brotemarkle, of Cumberland, is one of four candidates for the office of grand prelate. He is a member of Cumberland Lodge No. 60. Opposing him are David Harris and Reginald S. Henry, both of Baltimore, and Philip A. Stewart, of Easton.

Others who will automatically take office by virtue of no opposition are W. George Skinner, of Union Bridge, grand vice-chancellor; A. Elwood Martak, of Annapolis, grand keeper of records and seal; William Lee Bean, of Baltimore, grand master of exchequer; and Joseph C. Parker, of Annapolis, supreme representative.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Homemakers Will Tour Outstanding Gardens

A tour of some of the attractive flower gardens in the county will be conducted this afternoon by members of the Homemakers Clubs.

The group will meet at 1:15 p. m. at the Court House and will make visits to the gardens of John A. Cuyler, of LaVale; Arthur Happe, of LaVale; Clyde W. Love, of Union Grove road, and the George C. Fey home on Bedford road, where refreshments will be served by the Union Grove Homemakers.

City Goes After Citizens Back In Their Taxes

Council Is Called To Special Meeting On Subject Today

With Tax Collector James M. Conway hot on the trail of delinquent tax payers, Finance Commissioner Thomas P. Conlon stated last night that he would advocate using funds from the contingent fund to pay the county's share on any properties that may be put up for sale.

Although City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett told Council yesterday that the city would need between $4,000 and $5,000 to pay the county its share in the event delinquent properties are sold, Mr. Conway indicated last night that this amount actually might not be required.

Only Nine Delinquents

When the tax collector set about the task of reducing delinquencies he had a list of 51 properties that were in arrears. At the present time all except nine of those delinquencies have been paid off, with the possibility that three or more properties may be paid off by Friday.

However, if the back taxes are not paid on these properties, they will be advertised for sale, it was decided yesterday at a special meeting of the Council. Another meeting was called for 11 a. m. this morning when Commissioner Conlon will give his opinion on the matter.

Conlon to Air His Views

After conferring with City Auditor Arthur Gibson, Conlon stated last night that he would advise using funds from the contingent fund for paying the county its share if the sales are made. According to Mr. Conlon, the contingent fund is set aside for special emergencies that may arise from time to time.

Heskett stated yesterday that the collector is doing all in his power to bring in taxes when he offers delinquent properties for sale. It was proposed that if there are no other bidders, the city purchase the properties and then hold them for later sale.

Bans Narrows Dumping

After discussing the delinquent tax situation, the Council took up the matter of dumping along the banks of Will's creek in the Narrows. This practice will have to stop, Council decided.

When Mr. Heskett stated that the city has authority to stop dumping one mile outside the city limits under the charter and the flood prevention act, Council instructed police to give notice to persons dumping in this location. If the notice is disregarded, officers have been instructed to make arrests.

The Salvation Army was ordered paid $100 for transient work. An application by Paul C. Nicewarner, 11 Fifth street, asking permission to allow a meeting of the Cumberland Council of Jehovah's Witnesses in the City Hall auditorium next Sunday, was rejected.

Boosters Club Gets Festival
The Boosters Club was granted a permit to hold a festival July 3 to July 8 in the N. & G. Taylor field. A permit for the installation of a gasoline tank by the Ort Brothers Bakery was also approved.

City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer was asked to investigate complaints by Joseph V. Ruppert, 503 Fayette street, and Robert W. Young, property agent, regarding the need for repairs for Essex place and an alley at George street in the rear of the Smith shoe store.

The bid of Spoor's Garage for a police patrol was accepted on recommendation of Commissioner Harry Irvine.

Eyesight Unharmed, Physicians Declare

A 10-year-old Pennsylvania Avenue school student was slowly recovering at her home last night from injuries sustained in an eight-foot fall.

The child, Shirley Sue Burke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley S. Burke, of 12 Fifth street, received a fractured skull and bruises about the body when she fell from the bannisters on the back porch of her home Thursday night.

Her father, proprietor of a restaurant on Fifth street, said Shirley was sitting on the bannisters when a swing, occupied by five or six playmates, broke and knocked her off. She landed on a concrete pavement and remained unconscious for about ten minutes, he said.

The little girl said last night that outside of her head hurting a little bit, she was feeling fine. Her room was filled with large bouquets of flowers and presents from friends and schoolmates.

Her mother, Mrs. Helen P. Burke, said Shirley, who sings every Saturday over Station WTBO and was scheduled to be commentator at a children's style show to be held Saturday at a local theatre, was told by her teacher that she would pass to the next grade in case she wasn't well enough to finish the term. She has been an honor student, her teacher said.

Mr. and Mrs. Burke were beaming over with joy last night when they said their daughter would be well and out playing in about two weeks. They said her physicians told them X-rays showed the fall wouldn't affect the girl's eyesight, as was previously thought.

Shirley will be passed to the sixth grade.

on High Roads Low Roads and By-Ways

In our last column, which was several days ago, we bemoaned the fact that we couldn't find a Cumberland restaurant which sold strawberries and cream, and right in the middle of strawberry season, too.

On the next day, however, we were treated to a very delightful repast of ripe, red berries and yellow cream in our favorite breakfast restaurant. It was very wonderful. Ah, the power of the press.

Maybe we won't have to get married now after all.

—o—
Our friend, the bridegroom-to-be is all upset. Because his budget got upset. He had that budget all worked out, just as a model husband-to-be is supposed to do, and knew where every penny was going, even if he didn't know where every penny was coming from.

But he forgot that he is going to move to a locality where the cops don't let you keep the car out on the street all night. Cost of a garage has knocked the budget into a cocked hat, or maybe into a New Deal.

We are grateful to Deputy Game Warden William McKenzie for giving us a call on the eagle they shot down in Frog Hollow Sunday. Some people think newspapers just have big ears and should know all that's going on. But the plain fact is that newspapers know only what people tell them and what they see, and the territory they can cover for themselves isn't very great.

So we remind you that when you feel like cussing because something wasn't in the paper which should have been there, just stop and think it over and cuss yourself for not calling the paper and telling them about it. We get cussed enough for what we do, and although pretty thick-skinned we'd like to pass the buck for what we don't do.

After all, a paper is no better than its friends. A paper that doesn't have people ready to call up and tell the news doesn't get very far.

As the result of Mr. McKenzie's call, Frog Hollow got on the map in a whole flock of newspapers. If it hadn't been for the phone call, the eagle story might have gotten no further than the Frog Hollow Sunday school, and perhaps wouldn't have been believed there.

—o—
Strangely enough the Frog Hollow eagle is going to become a nationally famous bird. Representatives of National Distillers read about the big bird, read down to Frederick, bought it from the CCC boy who bought it from the killer, and now plan to have it mounted, photographed, and exploited in advertising Eagle brand whiskey.

—o—
Frog Hollow no doubt has turned out its share of high-powered moonshine, as most of the hollows hereabout have done in their time. Now that legal liquor is flowing plentifully again, it is only fitting that a Frog Hollow memento should appear as a trade mark.

We might add that the Frog Hollow eagle will soon be flying higher than he ever flew before.

We had a little chat with one of Cumberland's younger literary lights last night—Miss Phyllis Holmes, 14-year-old Allegany high freshman, who wrote the narrative for the Girl Scout pageant given in the armory last night.

We learned at the pageant that Girl Scouts are very versatile creatures—with paper bags over their heads, they hopped around as wild animals. With feathers in their hair, they whooped it up as wild Indian braves. And with joy in their hearts they consumed any number of cookies and lemonade.

—o—
We remarked above on the fact that reporters weren't superhuman—they find out only what people tell them. Detectives are the same way, although they are usually not very frank about it.

They like to make newspapermen and other mere mortals think they have uncanny powers of deduction. But they seldom tell how they solve a crime. We know, from years as police reporter, that the more mysterious a detective gets about how he solved something, the more certain it is that a guy who read about the mystery in the papers call up the dick and gave him a hot tip.

Snake-Bite Victim Goes Home Tomorrow

Barrying complications, Robert Noel, 40-year-old Rawlings man who was bitten by a copperhead snake Sunday, will be released from Allegany hospital tomorrow, physicians said last night.

Noel, a Kelly-Springfield Tire Company employee, was brought to the hospital by a friend about an hour after he was bitten. He said he had sucked the poison out of the wound, but physicians administered anti-venom serum immediately. His condition was described as "good."

The victim told hospital attaches that the snake bit him on the right hand. "It was hiding under some leaves," he said, "and struck at me as I picked up a large rock near my home."

Boyle Turns 'Truant Officer'; Treks to Ohio for 'Runaways'

County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle, Sheriff Lucian C. Radcliffe and Detective B. Frank Gaffney last night had completed a several hundred mile jump to Marietta, Ohio, where they journeyed for the purpose of picking up two Cumberland youngsters who are charged with being "runaways," according to Mr. Boyle.

Although the two 16-year-old schoolboys were lodged in the county jail upon their arrival back in their hometown, County Investigator Boyle stated that they were merely charged with running away from home. They are also guilty of playing hooky from their respective schools, Fort Hill and Allegany High.

While "Truant Officer" Boyle emphatically declared that the boys were merely a couple of lads with a dose of wanderlust, two other sources stated that the two youths were wanted in connection with the attempt to rob the Savoy Bowling Alley last Friday night.

One reliable source asserted that the two boys admitted trying to break into the establishment but were scared off and later hopped a freight train to Parkersburg, W. Va. The boys entered the establishment with a key, it was stated.

Questioned regarding a burglary at the same location several months ago when $100 was taken, the two boys denied any knowledge of it.

However, "Truant Officer" Boyle last night reiterated his statement that three officers had made the trek all the way to Marietta and back to pick up two strays who had wandered too far from their native haunts.

Exchangites Push Anti-Isms Drive
Club To Emphasize 'True Americanism'

Americanism, democratically stilling foreign "isms" through increased appreciation of American citizenship, will receive special emphasis from the recently-organized Cumberland Exchange club, it was announced last night by Alvin H. Wilson, president.

Mr. Wilson announced appointment of an American Citizenship committee to foster local participation in a comprehensive national program on Americanism released this week by the National Exchange Club.

Members of the committee are George L. Williamson, chairman; F. H. Rockwell, John C. Maginnis, George F. Garlitz, and Stanley Buckley.

A complete citizenship program for the Cumberland club and various cooperating groups is to be announced soon by the committee, it was said.

Educational Materials Ready
Full educational materials have already been received from national Exchange headquarters. President Wilson declared, including information for use on the radio, in newspapers, schools and college, public and church meetings, citizenship classes, and meetings of lodges and other civic groups.

Since 1930, years before any menace to democracy was generally apparent, Exchange clubs have emphasized American citizenship as an objective. Mr. Wilson pointed out, and each subsequent national convention has reiterated this stand.

Describing the newest phase of the program, Herold M. Harter, national secretary, of Toledo, O., said, "We are not attempting to defend democracy. Democracy is so strong that it needs no defense. We are, however, outlining certain subversive dangers which can be corrected once the public recognizes them as dangers."

"We feel that the home, the school, and the church can advance the cause of practical American democracy, and we are trying to show just how that can be done."

In urging participation by communities in which un-American activities are not of moment, Mr. Harter added, "Lack of votes by Communists, Fascists, and Nazis in the United States does not indicate lack of strength. Many of them are aliens unable to vote. They pursue a technique of penetration into seemingly humanitarian American organizations and exercise dangerous control through leaders."

Throughout the past nine years, many Exchange clubs have taken leadership in the naturalization of aliens and in efforts to revive faith in the American principles of government. They also have advocated the development of the forces of national defense to a point at which no other nation will dare attack the United States.

Committee Members Listed
Members of the national committee on citizenship which prepared the materials to be used in the Cumberland club's campaign are Thomas C. Jackson, city commissioner of Ames, Iowa, chairman; Dr. LeRoy E. Cowles, dean, University of Utah, Salt Lake City; Judge Amos L. Conn, of Toledo and Perryburg, O.; Arthur J. Ruland, attorney and radio broadcaster, Binghamton, N. Y.; and Carey H. Snyder, editor and publishers' representative, Dallas, Tex.

Fourteen Get Diplomas From Greek School

Graduates from the Cumberland Greek school who received diplomas Sunday at commencement exercises at the Rubber Workers Hall, South Mechanic street, were Evelyn Mickles, Koula Elingo, Helen Antikles, Eugenia Spano, Elaine Diamond, Dolores Soterakos, Sylvia Mitchell, Everette Mitchell, John Diamond, Pete Dendinos, John Dendinos, Nicholas Mickles, Thomas Carros, and Demosthenes Carros.

Get Anti-Typhoid 'Shots' First For Safe Holiday, Doctor Urges

"If you have not been vaccinated against typhoid fever within the last year or two, go to your doctor or the nearest health officer, and have him give you the three 'shots' that will protect you against that disease."

This advice comes from Dr. R. H. Riley, director of the State Department of Health, and is addressed especially to young people—boys and girl scouts, camp fire girls, hiking clubs, campers, and trailer tourists. It also applies to all others, not protected against typhoid, who are making plans for out-of-door, away from home, activities, for auto trips, or for holiday tours by boat, bus, train, and even by airplane, Dr. Riley said.

Typhoid Germs Enter Mouth
"You take typhoid by way of the mouth," Dr. Riley continued. "Each case comes directly or indirectly from some previous cause. You eat or drink the germs that cause the disease, in food, water, or milk contaminated by the discharges from persons who are ill with the disease or who have had it at some time."

"The protection of public water supplies from pollution; the pasteurization of milk; inspection and supervision of food supplies; the cooperation of individuals and communities in the sanitary disposal of sewage; the steady improvement of household sanitation and hygienic habits; the careful medical supervision of every case of the disease; study of sources of infection and follow-up of 'carriers' of typhoid, have greatly reduced the danger from the disease. It is much less of a menace than it used to be. But there are still sources of infection to which individuals are exposed, that can not be reached by public measures, and for which vaccination affords the only protection."

Carriers Dangerous
"Persons who are apparently well, but who have had the disease at some time, may continue to discharge the disease germs. Such persons are known as 'carriers' and if they are not careful in their personal habits—if they do not wash their hands thoroughly, after they have been to the toilet, and always before handling or preparing food for others to eat—they are likely to contaminate any food they touch. Flies 'carry' germs from contaminated sewage to food, and are another source of danger."

"Vaccination gives personal protection against the disease. So go to your doctor—or the nearest health officer—if you haven't been protected recently against the disease, and have it done. It takes some little time for the vaccine to take effect. Don't wait until you are ready to start off. Have that at-tended to first; then go ahead with your other preparations for your trip."

Careless Driver Fined

Governor Veloes Only 4 of 25 Allegany Bills

State's Attorney Gets New Laws To Study; Movie Tax Change Out

Only four of the twenty-five bills passed by the Legislature were vetoed by Governor Veloes. It was stated yesterday by Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney who is making a study of the twenty-one new laws affecting the county.

Mr. Harris completed the round-up of the new measures yesterday and expressed the belief that they should receive the scrutiny of Allegany county citizens.

The four bills which were vetoed by the governor were:
Movie Tax Bill Vetoed
1—The Sunday movie tax bill allocating one-half of the proceeds to the Allegany County League for Crippled Children, which was vetoed by the governor following a storm of protests from Cumberland P-TA groups, the ministerial association, and the Mayor and City Council.

2—Cumberland's police and fire bill, which was killed by the governor for "not being clear." The bill also stirred up a tempest in teapot with City Hall officials contending that certain police officers went over Council's head in having the bill introduced at Annapolis.

3—A bill authorizing the State Roads Commission to pay $3,000 from gasoline tax funds to the Mayor and Town Council of Midland for the retirement of bonds.

Teachers' Increase Killed
4—The bill which was intended to increase the salaries of teachers in Allegany county having more than eight years' service.

Today, the state's attorney has twenty-one signed bills on his desk. Mr. Harris said yesterday that members of the Board of Education are puzzled regarding the wording in the school bus bill which states that operators of school buses shall not permit the number of passengers to exceed their seating capacity by more than 25 per cent.

Charity Bingo Passed
Other bills signed by the governor included:
1—Bill authorizing bingo under certain conditions, to wit, bona fide fraternal, religious, or charitable organizations or corporations, or voluntary fire departments for the benefit of charity in Allegany county.

2—Bill permitting the county commissioners to license walkathon or marathon contests.

3—Bill empowering the county commissioners to lease 3.13 acres of the property on which the County Home and Sylvan Retreat are situated to the State Roads Commission.

4—Two bills authorizing the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland to borrow the sums of $150,000 and $50,000 for a cross-town water line and work relief bonds.

Aid Fire Departments
5—Bill authorizing the county commissioners to pay out $6,125 annually for the maintenance of the several volunteer fire companies.

6—Bill providing for the compensation of tax collectors in the county.

7—Bill authorizing the county commissioners to borrow one million dollars for the Savage River dam.

8—Bill providing that the county board of education submit an itemized statement of all its expenditures for each year.

9—Bill authorizing the county commissioners to borrow $350,000 for a school improvement program.

10—Bill providing for the appointment of Civil Service commissioners and examinations for the police and fire departments in Cumberland.

11—Bill authorizing the establishment of a Teachers Relief Fund.

Voting Machines Legal
12—Bill authorizing the purchase, rent, or lease of voting machines in both Allegany and Carroll counties.

13—Bill authorizing the community of Cresaptown to incorporate and set up a corporate body including a mayor and commissioners.

14—Two bills authorizing Frostburg to issue bonds for $15,000 for street improvements and $35,000 for water improvements.

15—Bill stipulating that judges of the orphan's court shall receive a salary of $90 a month.
